

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, Whereas by an act of parliament of the third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming several funds of the governor and company of the bank of England, pursuant to former provisoes of redemption; and for securing to them several new funds and allowances redeemable by parliament; and for obliging them to advance further sums not exceeding two millions five hundred thousand pounds, at five pounds per centum, as shall be found necessary to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances; and for continuing certain provisions formerly made for the expences of his Majesty's civil government; and for payment of annuities formerly purchased at the rate of five pounds per centum; and for other purposes in this act mentioned, the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors, for circulating certain bills, commonly called exchequer bills, therein mentioned, amounting to two millions five hundred sixty one thousand and twenty five pounds or thereabouts, in principal money, and for exchanging the same for ready money on demand, are entitled to an annuity or yearly sum of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds fifteen shillings (being an allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, computed upon the said sum of two millions five hundred sixty one thousand and twenty five pounds) subject nevertheless to a proviso of redemption in that act contained, upon such notice as is thereby prescribed; which annuity or yearly allowance is by the same act charged upon and made payable out of the monies arisen or to arise at the receipt of the exchequer, of or for certain particular particular duties on houses, and of or for several other duties and revenues, called the aggregate fund in that act, and in former acts relating to the said fund more particularly mentioned and described in the order and course, and with such preference as is thereby directed; and by the act first above-mentioned it is enacted and declared, That as well the said particular duties on houses, and the duties, revenues and incomes composing the said aggregate fund, and all other duties which were settled for payment of a former yearly sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence, and the interest and allowances relating to former exchequer bills therein mentioned, should be continued, but be disposable to and for the several and respective uses and purposes appointed by that act and subject to the several provisos of redemption therein contained; and that all the monies of the said duties, revenues and incomes, which should or ought to be brought into the receipt of the exchequer (except the necessary charges for raising, collecting, levying, issuing, paying and accounting for the same) should be and are thereby appropriated, and should be issued and applied to and for the payment and satisfaction of several yearly and other sums in the said act particularly expressed, in their due course and with such preferences as are thereby appointed; amongst which payments an express provision is made for payment of the said annuity or allowance of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds fifteen shillings per annum, and for answering all demands of interest due and to be due upon the said exchequer bills as is therein mentioned. And by the same act it was declared and enacted, That the excess or surplus which, at the end of every or any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the usual feast-days) should or might be produced by the said several rates, duties, revenues and incomes thereby appropriated, and should remain in the exchequer (over and above the money then due or demandable for or upon the several annuities, allowances and other payments therein before-mentioned, or any arrears of the same) should attend the disposition of parliament, and be applied according to act or acts of parliament in that behalf, and not otherwise. And it was thereby declared and enacted, That any vote or resolution of the house of commons, signified by the speaker of the said house in writing, and delivered at the publick office of the said governor and company, should be deemed and adjudged to be a sufficient notice within the words and meaning of the said act for redeeming the said annuity or allowance of seventy-six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds fifteen shillings per annum, as by the same act, relation being thereunto had (amongst many other matters and things therein contained) may more fully appear. And whereas by Recital of another act of parliament of the said third year of your Majesty's the act of reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the yearly fund of the South Sea company, being after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, and settling on the said company a yearly fund after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament; and to raise for an annuity or annuities at five pounds per centum per annum any sum not exceeding two millions, to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances; and for making the said new yearly fund and annuities to be hereafter redeemable in the time and manner thereby prescribed, several other subsidies, impositions, duties, revenues and proportional parts of duties and revenues therein mentioned, or thereby referred unto, were continued for the several and respective uses and purposes in that act. And it was thereby enacted, That all the monies thereof which should or ought to be brought into the exchequer for those purposes (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, issuing and accounting for the same; and except such part thereof, as by any former act or acts of parliament was applicable to the repayment of loans then remaining unsatisfied, and to pay the interest of the same) should be and are thereby appropriated, and should be issued and applied to and for the payment of the yearly and other sums in the same act particularly expressed, in their due method and order, and subject to such redemption as are thereby prescribed. And by the same act it was provided and enacted, That if at any time at the end of any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the usual feasts) there should be an excess or surplus of the monies brought into the exchequer of the said subsidies, impositions, duties, revenues and proportional parts, and such excess or surplus should remain there, over and above the money then or before that time grown due, by or in pursuance of that act, as is therein mentioned, then such excess or surplus should from time to time attend the disposition of parliament, and be applied according to act or acts of parliament, and not otherwise, as by the act last mentioned (relation being thereunto had) may also more fully appear. And whereas by another act of parliament of the said third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the duties and revenues which were settled to pay off principal and interest on the orders made forth on four lottery acts passed in the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign, and for redeeming certain annuities payable on orders out of the hereditary excise, according to a former act in that behalf; and for establishing a general yearly fund, not only for the future payment of annuities at several rates, to be payable and transferable at the bank of England, and redeemable by parliament, but also to raise monies for such proprietors of the said orders as shall chuse to be paid their principal and arrears of interest in ready money; and for making good such other deficiencies and payments as in this act are mentioned; and for taking off the duties on linseed imported, and British linen exported, several other customs, subsidies, impositions, additional impositions, rates, duties, additional rates and duties, proportional parts of duties, revenues, and weekly and other payments out of duties and revenues therein specified, or thereby referred unto, were continued for the purposes in that act: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, reckoning the first year to begin from the feast of Saint Michael the archangel one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and from thenceforth for ever (subject nevertheless to such provisos and power of redemption as are in that act contained) the full sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, by or out of the monies arising of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, addiadditional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments by that act appropriated and directed to be brought, from time to time, into the exchequer, in case the same should extend to the said sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny, should be computed and reckoned to be a general fund; and in case all the monies so arising into the exchequer of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, should not amount to seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same would extend, should be part of the said general yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, for and towards the answering and paying all the annuities and payments by that act charged or chargeable thereupon; and in case all the monies by that act appointed or appropriated, as aforesaid, should at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year to be reckoned, as aforesaid, the said monies so arising in the exchequer, of or for all the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, should not amount to so much as seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny, that then and so often, and in every such case, so much as should be wanting to make up the said general fund or sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny, for every or any such year, should be supplied and made good, from time to time, by or out of the first aid or supply to be granted in parliament next after such deficiency should appear, and should from time to time be transferred thereunto, as soon as the same should be granted: and it was thereby enacted, That the excess or surplus, which at the end of every or any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the four most usual feast days) should or might be produced by the customs, subsidies, impositions, additional and other duties, proportional parts of duties, and by the said weekly and other payments, by that act appropriated or charged to make good the said general yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny, over and above so much as shall be sufficient to make good the same; and so much of the said general yearly fund as at the end of any quarter of a year shall remain in the receipt of the exchequer, over and above all the monies then due or payable, to discharge the several annuities and other payments by that act directed to be satisfied out of the same, and all arrears thereof (if any such were) should likewise from time to time attend the disposition of parliament and be applied according to act or acts of parliament, and not otherwise. And by the act last recited, it was further declared and enacted, That all the monies to arise from time to time, as well of or for the excess or surplus by virtue of the said act made for redeeming the funds of the governor and company of the bank of England, and of or for the

- the said excess or surplus by virtue of the said act made for redeeming the funds of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery; as also of and for the said excess or surplus of the said duties and revenues by the said other act of the third year of your Majesty's reign, appropriated to make good the said general yearly fund as aforesaid, and the overplus monies of the same general yearly fund thereby established, or intended to be established as aforesaid, should be appropriated, reserved and employed to and for the discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances as were contracted before the twenty fifth day of December one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and were declared to be national debts, and were provided for by acts of parliament, in such manner and form, as should be directed or appointed by any future act or acts of parliament to be discharged therewith or out of the same, and to and for none other use, intent or purpose whatsoever, as by the act last before recited (relation being thereunto had) may likewise more fully appear. And whereas the said sum, not exceeding two millions

- 3 Geo. 1. c. 9. South Sea company, or any part thereof, was not advanced by that company, or called for or required by the commissioners of your Majesty's treasury, so that the said duties, revenues and incomes, comprehended in the fund of that company, are not charged or chargeable with any annuity or other payment whatsoever in respect of the same, by virtue of the said act relating to that company or otherwise howsoever. And whereas your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled (pursuant to the clauses contained in the act first above recited) did on the tenth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen resolve, That notice should be given to the said governor and company of the bank of England, That the house of commons would at Lady-day one thousand seven hundred and nineteen redeem the said annuity of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds fifteen shillings; and ordered the speaker of the said house, on or before Lady-day one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, to signify the said resolution in writing to the said governor and company, which was signified accordingly. And whereas by computation as many of the said exchequer bills as do amount to the said sum of two millions five hundred sixty one thousand twenty five pounds in principal money, made forth by the said former acts of parliament, do on the fourteenth day of January one thousand seven hundred and eighteen remain undischarged and uncanceled, and the present cost and expence to the publick for circulating and exchanging the same doth, by the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and by the said growing interest of

of one penny per centum per diem, amount in the whole to one hundred and fifteen thousand seven hundred seventy nine pounds thirteen shillings and four pence per annum, or thereabouts, except so much thereof as is saved and may be abated for bills, from time to time, in the exchequer or in the hands of receivers or collectors of any taxes, aids or revenues payable to your Majesty; and it being apparently just and necessary with regard to the publick, that the said present cost and expence, and the said national debts and incumbrances be lessened as far as conveniently may be, We your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, for that end and purpose have resolved, That the surplus monies herein after particularly directed and appointed, and a further sum not exceeding five hundred thousand pounds, to be raised by way of a lottery, and another further sum, not exceeding five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, to be raised by way of loan, be applied towards paying off the principal and interest borne upon the said bills, and for cancelling the bills whereof the principal and interest shall be so paid off; and that so many of the said exchequer bills as shall remain undischarged and uncanceled by or with the money so to be applied, shall be circulated and exchanged in the manner hereafter in this act appointed in that behalf: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for the better and effectual accomplishment of their desires and intentions in the premisses, and that your Majesty and your subjects may be eased of the burden of the said national debts and incumbrances as fast as is consistent with honour and justice, do most humbly pray your Majesty, That it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the sum of one hundred ninety six thousand four hundred forty four pounds eighteen shillings three pence half penny, which remained in the exchequer at Michaelmas one thousand seven hundred and eighteen for the overplus of the said particular duties on houses and other duties and revenues comprehended in the said fund, commonly called the aggregate fund, appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid, being over and above the excess of the civil list fund for three years, ended at the same feast day; and that all the overplus monies of the civil list fund for three years ended at Michaelmas one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, which overplus is also appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid; and the sum of nineteen thousand five hundred seventy seven pounds and ten shillings, which remained in the exchequer at Michaelmas one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, for the surplus or overplus of the fund, commonly called the fund of the South Sea company, appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid; and the sum of one hundred ninety thousand four hundred thirty six pounds fifteen shillings eleven pence and nine twentieth parts of a penny, being the excess or surplus for the year ended at Michaelmas one thousand seven hundred

An act for continuing certain duties upon coals and culm, and for establishing certain funds to raise money, as well to proceed in the building of new churches, as also to compleat the supply granted to his Majesty; and to reserve the overplus monies of the said duties for the disposition of parliament; and for more effectual suppressing private lotteries.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty several duties upon coals, for building fifty new churches in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which from and after the fourteenth day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, should be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city, upon the same river, there should be paid to her Majesty her heirs and successors by way of imposition thereupon (over and besides all other impositions and duties) according to the rates therein after mentioned, that is to say, from and after the said fourteenth day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, for all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of two shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of two shillings; and from and after the eight and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the eight and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, there should be paid for every such said chalders of coals and culm and tun of coals, the sum of three shillings; and that all the monies which should be raised by virtue of that act (the ne-

And whereas in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, another act was made and passed in parliament for enlarging the time given to the commissioners appointed by her Majesty, pursuant to the said former act for granting the said duties for building the said new churches, and other purposes therein mentioned, and for giving to the said commissioners further powers for better effecting the same, and for appointing monies for rebuilding the parish church of St. Mary Woolnoth in the said city of London. And whereas 10 Ann. c. 11. by an act of parliament made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making provision for the ministers of the fifty new churches which are to be built in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and for rebuilding and finishing the parish church of St. Mary Woolnoth in the said city of London, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which from and after the twenty seventh day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, and before the twenty eighth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, shall be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames, within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there should be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon (over and besides all other impositions and duties, according to the rates therein after mentioned, that is to say) for all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of three shillings; and that all the monies which should be raised by virtue of that act (the necessary charges of raising, managing, and accounting for the same, excepted) should be brought into the receipt of exchequer, and should be appropriated for and towards the providing due maintenances for the ministers to attend the service of God in the said new churches; and should for that purpose be issued, applied and disposed, in such manner as should thereafter be directed by parliament: and it was thereby enacted, That the said parish church of St. Mary Woolnoth, and the tower thereof, should be rebuilt and finished out of the duties granted by the said recited act of the ninth year of her said late Majesty's reign; and that the monies to be employed for that purpose, should be replaced and made good out of and by the monies applicable by virtue of the said act of the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, to the rebuilding and finishing the said church, and the tower thereof, as by the said several acts, relation being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear: and whereas out of the said duties of coals and culm, or out of monies lent upon credit of the same, several considerable sums, amounting in the whole to one hundred sixty one thousand one hundred seventy and five pounds sixteen shillings and seven pence, have been already raised and issued for the buildings, repairs, and other purposes prescribed in or by the said recited acts, and the building of some of the new churches thereby appointed to be built, hath been begun, and several repairs which were thereby directed, have been entered upon, and some scites, cemeteries, burying-places, and ministers houses have been purchased or contracted for, and other charges have been borne, and payments made pursuant to the orders of the several commissioners, who from time to time have been intrusted in and for the execution of the powers in the said several acts contained; but the charge of the said buildings and repairs already begun or performed, hath been so excessive, that over and above the application of the said monies already issued, a great debt is now owing to workmen and others for the same; and it evidently appears, That in case the expence of the said buildings and repairs should proceed and be carried on at or near the same excessive rates, the whole produce of the said duties, during the said time or times to come therein by the said former acts (though such produce far exceeds the original estimates made for building the said new churches and repairs) will be very deficient for those purposes, and may probably at the end of the said present terms leave a great debt for work and materials unprovided for: and whereas it is computed or estimated, That the said duties laid by the said former acts on coals and culm to be imported, as aforesaid, between Lady-day one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and the said twenty eighth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, may amount in the whole to the sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds; and in case the present terms in the said duties be enlarged, so as to make up thirty two years, from Lady-day one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds may be raised for the purposes before mentioned, as in this act is afterwards provided, upon a particular yearly fund or security in that behalf; and that the sum of five hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred and twenty pounds one shilling and nine pence may be raised by establishing another particular yearly fund, and by such other ways and means as are hereafter in this act provided, for making good the supply granted to his Majesty in this session of parliament in the manner herein after mentioned; and that the surplusses which shall or may, from time to time, arise by the said duties on coals and culm, over and above so much as shall be sufficient to discharge the payments by this act intended to be charged thereupon, may be reserved for the use of the publick: therefore we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to pursue your Majesty's pious and gracious intentions for the honour and benefit of the church of England and advancement of our holy religion, by making provision for raising the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds in such proportions at a time as shall be needed to be employed (so far as the same will extend) for or towards the building and finishing of churches, purchasing sites, church yards, burying places, and houses for ministers, repairing the said collegiate church of St. Peter, Westminster, and the chapels of the same, finishing Greenwich Hospital and the chapel thereunto belonging, and making provisions for ministers, according to the true intention of the said former acts of parliament; and being also desirous to make good the supply granted to your Majesty in this session of parliament, by making provision to raise a sum, not exceeding the said sum of five hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred and twenty pounds one shilling and nine pence; and being also desirous to have the said surplusses reserved for the use of the publick as aforesaid, do most humbly present to your Majesty the several impositions, rates and duties herein after mentioned, and do most humbly pray, That it may be, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That for all sorts of coals and culm which, from and after the twenty-seventh day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, and before the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, shall be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there shall be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon (over and above all other impositions and duties) according to the rates hereafter mentioned, (that is to say) for all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings, and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of three shillings.

Coals and culm imported into the port of London, after 27 Sept 1725, and before 25 March 1751, to pay, viz. 3 s. per chalders and tun. These duties are made perpetual by 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. sect. 1. See 13 Geo. 1. c. 21. sect. 1.

These duties to be under the management of the commissioners of the customs.

II. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said respective sums of three shillings for every chalders of coals and culm and tun of coals, which from time to time, from and after the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and before the said feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, shall be imported or brought into the said port port or river within the liberty of the said city, as aforesaid, and payable by virtue of the said recited acts of the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign and the first year of his Majesty's reign, and by virtue of this present act, every or any of them, shall from time to time be under the management of the commissioners and officers of his Majesty's customs for the time being, according to such orders and directions as are or shall from time to time be given by the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them now being, or by the high treasurer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being; and shall or may from time to time be raised, levied, collected and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such manner, method and form, and at such places and by such rules, ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned, expressed and referred unto in and by any act, law or statute, acts, laws or statutes now in force, for raising, levying, collecting or answering any other duty or duties now payable to his Majesty for or upon any coals or culm whatsoever imported or brought coastwise into the said port of London; and that all and every the powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, articles, rules and clauses in the same acts, laws and statutes, or any of them, mentioned or contained (except such and so much of them, for and concerning which it is otherwise provided in this and the said recited acts, or any of them) shall be of such force and effect, to all intents and purposes, for the raising, levying, collecting and answering the impositions hereby granted, for and during the said term or time herein before limited, as if the same were particularly and at large set down and enacted by this act; any former law, custom or usage whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

This act is explained by 7 Geo. 1. stat.
1. c. 16. f. 16.

WHEREAS by an act passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act to revive and continue an act of the eighth and ninth years of the reign of his late majesty King William, for repair of the piers of Bridlington alias Burlington in the east-riding of the county of York, it was enacted, That the said act of the eighth and ninth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, and all the duties and sums of money thereby granted and made payable, and every clause, matter and thing therein contained, should from and after the twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and sixteen stand and be revived, continued and paid, for the term of fourteen years, videlicet, from the said twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and sixteen until the twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and thirty: and whereas for the greater security of such ships and vessels as shall, from time to time, come into the harbour of Bridlington, it is absolutely necessary, that both the said piers should be lengthened, and the whole south pier be speedily rebuilt (and most part thereof upon a new foundation) and that new jetties should be also built, and other necessary works made for the security thereof: be it enacted, &c.

The trustees in the recited act, and those herein named, may lengthen the north and south piers, build jetties, &c. The act 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 29. shall continue in force for 25 years, after June 24, 1730. The trustees in the recited act of 1 Geo. 1. stat. 2. c. 49. and those herein named, shall have power to raise and dispose of the duty granted by 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 29. Trustees dying, the survivors may elect others. Additional duties granted after June 24, 1719. To be raised, &c. as by the former acts. Persons, lands, &c. heretofore chargeable with building, &c. the said piers, &c. shall continue to be so after the said piers, &c. are lengthened, &c. Trustees may assign the duties, and grant the tolls, &c. for thirty-six years, as a security for money to be borrowed for the purposes of this act. If any person be sued, the action shall be laid in the county of York, and the defendant may plead the general issue, &c. and shall recover treble costs.

C A P. XI.

An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs.

WHEREAS the laws already made for preventing the unlawful importing and clandestine running and landing of customable and prohibited goods and merchandizes, have by experience been found to be ineffectual to prevent such illegal practices, whereby his Majesty is greatly defrauded of and in his duties, and fair traders, who duly pay duties, are very much discouraged and injured in their trades: and whereas for the better carrying on such private and clandestine trade, divers small vessels, under the burthen of fifteen tons, are generally employed in the undue importing, running and landing foreign brandy, strong-waters and spirits, contrary to the laws already made and in force: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That if any foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters or spirits of any kind whatsoever, shall from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven or creek thereof, in any ship, vessel or boat, under the burthen of fifteen tons (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship, vessel or boat, not exceeding one gallon for each such seamen) every such ship, vessel or boat, with all her tackle, furniture and apparel, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, and shall and may be proceeded against and recovered c. 18. sect. 1. in the manner herein after mentioned; and after the seizure and condemnation of such ship, vessel or boat, the principal officers of his Majesty's customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of condemnation, are hereby directed to cause such ship, vessel or boat, to be entirely broke up, and the materials to be publickly sold to the best advantage, together with the tackle, furniture and apparel thereunto belonging, the produce whereof to be divided as herein after mentioned.

II. And whereas rum is now imported in much greater proportions than formerly: and whereas the importing thereof in small casks or vessels is many times done with design that the same may more easily, privately, and clandestinely be carried off and conveyed without paying the duties: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if after the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, any rum shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven or creek thereof, in any cask or vessel, not containing twenty gallons at the least (excepting only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship or vessel)

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any foreign goods, wares or merchandizes, shall after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, by any collier, fisher-boat, or other coasting vessel or boat be taken in at sea, or out of any ship or vessel whatsoever, in order to be landed or put into any other ship, vessel or boat, within the limits of any port, without payment of the customs and other duties due and payable for the same, such goods, wares and merchandizes shall be forfeited, and the master of such collier, fisher-boat, or other coasting vessel or boat, shall forfeit treble the value of such goods, unless in case of necessity, which such master shall immediately give notice of, and make proof before the chief officers of the customs of the first port of this kingdom where he shall arrive; and the master, purser, or other person taking charge of the ship or vessel, out of which such goods shall be taken in at sea, unless in case of necessity, as aforesaid, shall forfeit treble the value of such goods so unshipt; one moiety of which forfeiture to be for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him, her or them who will inform or sue for the same, and shall and may be recovered in like manner as is herein after mentioned.

IV. And whereas in ships from foreign parts, goods are often found at clearing such ships concealed in false bulk-heads between the linings and false knees, or in concealed lockers, in order to their being landed without payment of duties, so that 'tis almost impossible for officers of the customs to discover them without having some previous information: for prevention of which fraudulent practices, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, all goods not reported, and found after the clearing the ship by the proper officer or officers of the customs, shall be liable to forfeiture, and such goods shall and may be seized and prosecuted in the manner herein after mentioned; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

20 Ann. c. 26.

V. And whereas by an act made in the tenth year of the late Queen's reign, for laying additional duties on hides and skins, vellum and parchment, and new duties on starch, coffee, tea, drugs, and other things, certificates for the discharge of bonds given at the custom house upon the exportation of coffee or tea, that the same shall not be re-landed in any part of Great Britain, are to be under the common seal of the chief magistrate in such place or places in parts beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants when being at such place or places, That such coffee, tea or drugs was there landed; which provision is found insufficient for the security of the revenue of customs against any secret relanding such coffee, tea or drugs, in some part of this kingdom: and in regard a better provision may be made with respect to such goods exported to Ireland, as is made in the case of tobacco, by an act made in the eighth year of her said late Majesty's reign; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no such bond given for the exportation of coffee, tea, or other certificate goods exported to Ireland, shall be delivered up, or any drawback allowed for any goods entitled thereto, until a certificate shall be produced under the hands and seals of the collector, controller and surveyor of the customs of some port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such goods shall be landed, testifying the landing thereof; and for the future the condition of all such bonds, required by law to be given for the exportation of any of the said goods to Ireland, shall be, to produce such certificate in six months from the date thereof (the danger of the seas and enemies excepted;) and in case no such certificate shall be produced within the said time of six months, it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively to cause such bonds to be put in suit, unless they shall find sufficient cause to forbear the same; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding:

8 Ann. c. 13.

VI. And whereas the remedies already provided by law, to prevent the relanding goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas, have not been sufficient to put a stop to the fraudulent relanding such goods, to the prejudice of the revenue and the fair traders; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, if any such goods shall be unshipped, or put on shore (unless in case of distress to save the ship from perishing, or in the presence of an officer of the customs) the said goods shall be forfeited; and if the master, purser, or other person, taking care of any ship wherein the said goods shall be laden, shall suffer or permit any of the said goods to be landed or unshipped (unless as aforesaid) the said master, purser, or other person, taking care of such ship, shall forfeit the value of such goods so unshipped or landed; and the person or persons to whose hands or possession the said goods shall come, after the unshipping or landing thereof, he or they knowing the same to be so unshipped, shall forfeit double the value of the said goods, unless he or they shall make discovery thereof to the principal officers of the customs in six days after the said goods shall so come to his or their hands; provided the said goods shall not have been seized by, or information given thereof to any officer of the customs before such discovery.

After 15 March 1719, goods prohibited to be worn here, and foreign goods, relanded, forfeited.

VII. And whereas the persons concerned in carrying on the said fraudulent practices do frequently cause the package of such goods to be opened on board the ship, during the time she continues in port, whereby they have a better opportunity to reland the said goods: for the prevention whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the package of any such goods shall, with the privacy or consent of the master, purser, or other persons taking care of such ship or vessel, be opened on board any ship or vessel, or put into other form or package, during the time the said ship or vessel remains in port, without leave of one or more of the principal officers of the port, the said master, purser, or other person, taking care of such ship or vessel, shall forfeit one hundred pounds; and if the said master, purser, or other person, taking care of such ship or vessel, shall permit or suffer any of the said goods to be unshipped or landed, or the package of any such goods to be opened, or put into any other form, without leave, as aforesaid, then such master, purser, or other person shall also suffer six months imprisonment, without bail or mainprize.

VIII. And whereas divers ships and vessels of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, laden with coffee, tea, cocoa-nuts, French wrought silks, East India goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, pepper, and other spices, brandy, spirits, and other customable and prohibited goods, pretending to be bound for foreign parts, do frequently lie hovering on the coasts of this kingdom, with intention to run the same privately on shore as opportunity offers, to the great diminution and loss of the revenue, and ruin of fair traders; and by reason of the said vessels so hovering, frequent opportunities are found for carrying on the clandestine trade of exporting wool, and other staple commodities of this kingdom prohibited to be transported: for the better preventing whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, laden with customable or prohibited goods, shall be found hovering on the coasts of this kingdom, within the limits of any port, and not proceeding on her voyage for foreign parts, or to some other port of this kingdom, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs to go on board every such ship or vessel, and to take an account of the lading, and to demand and take security from the master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel in that voyage, by his own bond by him to be entred into unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such sum or sums of money as shall be treble the value of such foreign goods then on board, with condition, That such ship or vessel (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel doth permit) shall and will proceed regularly on such voyage, and shall land such foreign goods in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel, vessel, shall upon such demand refuse to enter into such bond, or having entred into such bond, shall not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage (as soon as wind, weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel shall permit) unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector (or other principal officer in his absence, of such port where such ship or vessel shall be, not exceeding twenty days) then and in either of the said cases, all the foreign goods so on board such ship or vessel, shall and may, by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector or other principal officer, as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured; and in case the said goods are customable, the customs and other duties shall be paid for the same; and as concerning wool or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which may be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unlading, as aforesaid, the same are hereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs shall and may prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel, in case she shall be liable to condemnation, as in the manner herein after mentioned.

The foreign goods may be taken out of the ship, and secured, and custom paid.

And wool or prohibited goods forfeited.

IX. Provided always, That after such goods are so taken out of such ship or vessel, and brought on shore and secured by such officer or officers, such bonds so to be given, as aforesaid, shall be void and delivered up without any fee or reward for taking or delivering up the same; and such bond not being otherwise discharged, shall on a proper certificate returned under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants upon the place that such goods were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons, that such goods were taken by enemies or perished in the seas (the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the commissioners of the customs) shall be vacated and discharged.

Such goods brought on shore, bond to be delivered up.

How bonds not otherwise discharged, shall be vacated.

X. And whereas altering the package of coffee for exportation hath been found to be prejudicial to his Majesty's customs: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no coffee shall be exported but such only as shall be contained in the original bale or package, or in some bale or package containing the same quantity therein, or in some bale or package containing not less than four hundred weight, and the same marks and numbers thereon with which it was first entred at his Majesty's custom-house; excepting only such coffee as shall be exported to his Majesty's plantations or Ireland.

Coffee to be exported in the original bale, or in some bale containing the same quantity, or not less than 400 lb. &c.

XI. Provided, and be it further enacted, That so much of this act as relates to the importation of foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong-waters or spirits, in any ship, vessel or boat, under the burthen of fifteen ton; and so much of this act as relates to such foreign goods, wares and merchandizes, as shall be taken in at sea, and out of any ship or vessel, in order to be landed or put into any other ship, vessel or boat; and so much of this act as relates to goods not reported, and found after clearing ships; and so much of this act as provides further remedies against re-landing goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas; and so much of this act as relates to the opening or altering the package of goods on board ships outward bound; and so much of this act as relates to hovering ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons, or under; and so much of this act as concerns the bales or package in which coffee shall be exported; shall continue and be in force for three years, from the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer: and so much of this act as relates to rum imported in casks or vessels not containing twenty gallons at the least, shall continue and be in force from the nine and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for three years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer; and so much of this act as relates to certificate goods entred in order to be exported for Ireland, shall continue and be in force for three years from the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

XII. And whereas great quantities of wrought silks, bengals, and stuffs mixed with silk and herba, as also muslins, and other callicoos, of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East-India, are, notwithstanding the laws already made to the contrary, frequently imported from foreign parts, and landed in Ireland, to the prejudice of fair traders: for the better preventing the same for the future, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That none of the before mentioned goods shall, from and after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be imported into the said kingdom of Ireland, from any place or places whatsoever, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this and the former acts (other than from Great Britain) under the penalty and forfeiture of all such of the aforesaid goods so imported, or the value thereof, as also of the ship or vessel importing the same, with all her guns, furniture, ammunition, tackle and apparel; one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform or sue for the same, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Dublin, in the said kingdom of Ireland; and if any officer or officers of the customs in Ireland shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation of any of the goods afore-mentioned, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or if any such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said goods, and shall by fraud or collusion desist or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation, he or they so conniving, desisting or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for and divided in the manner aforesaid; and such officer or officers shall also be incapable of holding any office

XIII. And whereas an act was made in the twelfth year of the late ^{12 Ann. stat. 2.} Queen, intituled, An act for the preserving all such ships and goods ^{c. 18.} thereof, which shall happen to be forced on shore or stranded upon the coasts of this kingdom, or any other of her Majesty's dominions; wherein is recited (among other things) That many ships of trade, after all their dangers at sea escaped, have unfortunately near home run on shore or been stranded on the coasts thereof, and been barbarously plundered by his Majesty's subjects, and their cargoes imbezilled; and when any part has been saved, it has been swallowed up by the exorbitant demands for salvage, to the great loss of his Majesty's revenue and damage of his Majesty's trading subjects; and therefore it is by the said act (among other things) enacted, That such ships, vessels or goods so to be saved, as therein is mentioned, shall remain in the custody of the officer of the customs or his deputy for the purposes of the said act; and if such goods shall not be legally claimed by the rightful owner within the time therein limited, that then publick sale shall be made thereof (and if perishable goods, forthwith to be sold) and after all charges deducted, the residue of the monies arising by such sale, with a fair and just account of the whole, shall be transmitted to his Majesty's exchequer, there to remain for the benefit of the owner; which act was made perpetual by another act of the fourth year of his ^{4 Geo. 1. c. 12.} *Majesty's reign made in that behalf: and whereas from the want of express words whereby to subject stranded goods so saved to the payment of customs and other duties, a doubt has arisen, whether such goods are liable to pay the same, to the great loss of his Majesty's revenue and contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said acts: be it therefore enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all goods, wares and merchandizes, which from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen shall be saved out of any ship or vessel that shall happen to be forced on shore or stranded upon the coasts of this kingdom (not being wrecked goods, or Jetsham, Flotsham or Lagan) shall, after charges of salvage and other charges paid as aforesaid, be subject and liable to the payments of the like customs and other duties, with such drawbacks upon exportation, and the like allowances and abatements, as such goods, wares or merchandizes would, by any law or laws now in force, be liable unto and entitled to have, in case the same were regularly imported; any thing in the aforesaid acts or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.*

Goods saved out of any stranded ship, after salvage and charges paid, liable to customs, &c.

XIV. And whereas in the preamble of the act made in the first ^{1 W. & M. Seff. 1. c. 32.} year of King William and Queen Mary, for the better preventing the exportation of wool and encouraging the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fuller's-earth, fulling-clay and tobacco-pipe-clay, are enumerated; but in the enacting part thereof, which relates to the carrying wool coastwise, wool only is mentioned, and the other enumerated goods left out, whereby frequent opportunities are given for the exportation of them, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act: it is therefore hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen the like provision made for preventing the exportation of wool in and by the act before-mentioned, is hereby directed and appointed to extend to wool-fells, mort-lings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay and tobacco-pipe-clay aforesaid, carried coastwise; any thing in the said act or in any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

XV. And whereas great quantities of silks, callicoes, linens or stuffs, printed, painted, stained or died, in Great Britain, are exposed to sale without having a mark or stamp to denote the payment of the duties: and whereas such as have been so marked or stamped are frequently shipped off in order to be exported into parts beyond the seas, whereby the person or persons exporting the said goods are entitled to a great drawback; and it hath been found by experience, that great quantities of such goods, after they have been shipped for exportation, have been privately relanded in this realm; and the remedies already provided by law have not been sufficient to obviate a practice so prejudicial to his Majesty and all fair and honest traders in such goods: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, during the continuance of the said duties, in case any silks, callicoes, linens or stuffs, printed, painted, stained or died, in Great Britain, shall be found in any place whatsoever, on land or water, without being marked or sealed with a stamp or seal, denoting, That the duties have been duly paid or charged (except on board such ships or vessels on which such goods have been shipped for exportation) the same shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer of the customs or excise; and the person or persons in whose custody or possession the goods so seized shall be found, shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of fifty pounds; one moiety of which forfeitures and penalties shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform or sue for the same in his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland, wherein no protection or wager of law shall be allowed: provided always, That the goods so recovered shall not be delivered out of the custom-house warehouse, until the same shall be marked or sealed with a proper mark or stamp, to be provided by the commissioners of the customs for that purpose: and they are hereby directed and authorized to provide the same, and to cause the said goods to be stamped therewith accordingly; any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

After 1 May 1719, painted silks, callicoes, &c. unmarked, forfeited,

XVI. And whereas in and by an act made in the third and fourth years of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America, it was amongst other things declared and enacted, That every person or persons who should import or cause to be imported tar or pitch into this kingdom, directly from any of his Majesty's plantations in America, within the time therein mentioned, he or they so importing the same should have and enjoy a reward or premium of four pounds for every ton containing eight (a) barrels, and each barrel gauging (a) Eighty in thirty one gallons and one half of good and merchantable tar; and the like reward or premium for every ton of good and merchantable pitch, each ton containing twenty gross hundreds (nett pitch) to be brought in eight barrels; and by another act made in the twelfth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, intituled, An act for continuing an act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of her present Majesty, intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America; and for the encouraging the importation of naval stores from that part of Great Britain called Scotland to that part of Great Britain called England, the first-mentioned act, and every part thereof, is continued from the time of the expiration of the same for and during the term of eleven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament: and it is thereby enacted, That the like rewards or premiums shall be allowed on the importation of good and merchantable tar and pitch from North-Britain into any part of South-Britain, in such manner as is therein mentioned: and whereas complaints have been made by the commissioners or principal officers of his Majesty's navy, that tar brought from the said plantations is frequently mixed with dross or water, and that dirt or dross is often found in the pitch, whereby the same are unfit for the service of his Majesty's navy: be it therefore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and nineteen no certificate shall be made out in order to allow the premium or reward for any such pitch, until the same be freed from dirt or dross, or for any such tar that is not fitting to be used for making cordage, and that shall not be freed from dross and water, and unless such pitch and tar be clean, good, merchantable and well-conditioned.

After 29 Sept. 1719, no certificate to be made out for pitch or tar till freed from dross, &c.

XVII. And whereas by the said last-mentioned acts the person or persons importing such pitch and tar are entitled to the said premium or reward, upon a certificate from the officers of the customs where such pitch and tar is imported: and whereas the said officers have not sufficient authority by the said acts to examine the said pitch and tar so strictly as they ought to do, to enable them in judgment to certify whether the same is good and merchantable: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the officers of the customs, before they make any such certificate, to examine the said pitch by opening the heads of the barrels wherein it is imported, sawing of the staves in the middle and breaking the barrel, or so many of them as they find sufficient to make a proof, or by such other means as they shall think proper, to find out and discover whether the said pitch is good and merchantable, not mixed with dirt or dross; and also it shall and may be lawful to and for the said officers to examine and search the said tar, to find out and discover whether the same is clean, good, merchantable, well-conditioned and clear of dross or water, and fit for making cordage.

Officers of the customs, before they make such certificate, to examine the pitch and tar. For the continuance of this and the following section, see 2 Geo. 2. c. 35. sect. 10.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no fee, gratuity or reward shall be demanded, taken or received by any officers of the customs for the examining, viewing or delivering such pitch, tar or other naval stores, with respect to the premium or reward allowed by the acts aforesmentioned, or for the making or signing a certificate in order to the receiving such premium or reward, under the penalty of the loss of his office; and such officer shall be also incapable of serving his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds to such person or persons as will inform and sue for the same, by action of debt or of the case, bill, suit or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no esoin, protection, wager of law or more than one imparlance shall be granted or allowed.

XIX. And whereas an act made in the twenty-second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent the planting of tobacco in England, and regulating the plantation-trade, was by several subsequent acts continued, and by an act made in the eleventh year of the reign of King William the Third, was to have continuance for the space of seven years from the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, which act has been by experience found beneficial to the trade of this kingdom and the dominions and plantations thereto belonging: but some doubt hath arisen, whether the same hath had continuance by the acts for continuing the acts of tonnage and poundage: for obviating which doubt, be it hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act of the twenty second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and every clause therein contained, hath and shall have continuance for and during such time as the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, is continued and no longer.

XX. And whereas the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South-Seas and other parts of America and for encouraging the fishery did provide and ship on board their annual ship, The Royal George, John Davison, commander, for the Spanish West-Indies, a valuable cargo of goods pursuant to the assiento treaty and the late convention between their Britannick and Catholick Majesties; which ship could not proceed on her intended voyage by reason of the King of Spain's suspending her departure and not granting the necessary dispatches: and whereas the said governor and company (in order to make the said cargo assortable) were obliged to import and buy several goods from foreign parts, the customs and duties payable thereon at importation being paid; which foreign goods were entered and shipped out at the custom-house on board their said ship in time, by which they are entitled to a drawback payable out of his Majesty's customs, on the exportation of the said goods; but the said ship being hindered from proceeding on her intended voyage as aforesaid, and it being absolutely necessary, for the preservation of the said ship and cargo, that all the goods now on board should be reloaded: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South-Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, to reland or cause to be re-landed, in the presence of the proper officer or officers of the customs, the said foreign goods so shipped as aforesaid; and such goods so relanded are to be put into a proper warehouse or warehouses (to be provided by and at the charge of the said company) and there kept under the King's and the company's locks, the company or their servants or agents having free access to the said warehouse or warehouses at all reasonable times; and the said officers are hereby directed to give their attendance at such times, when required; and for securing to the said governor and company the benefit of the drawback on the said foreign goods, notwithstanding their relanding the same, the proper officers of his Majesty's customs are hereby directed and empowered (on the said governor and company's reshipping and exporting the said foreign goods on the same or any other ship or ships) to make out a debenture or debentures for allowing and paying to the said governor and company the same drawback they would have been entitled unto, in case their said ship, The Royal George, had proceeded on her said intended voyage and the said foreign goods had not been relanded; any law, custom or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the tenth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, it was enacted, That no person or persons whatsoever, from and after the four and twentieth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, should directly or indirectly export, transport, ship off, carry or convey, or cause or procure to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed out of or from the said kingdom of Ireland into any foreign realm, states or dominions, or into any parts or places whatsoever, other than the parts within the kingdom of England or the dominion of Wales, any the wool, wool-fells, shortlings, mortlings, wool-flocks, worsted, bay or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-ferges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixt with wool or wool-flocks, or should directly or indirectly load or cause to be laden upon any horse, cart or other carriage, or load or lay on board or cause to be laden or laid on board in any ship or vessel in any place or part within or belonging to the said kingdom of Ireland, any such wool or other the matters aforesaid, to the intent or purpose to export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same, or cause the same to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, or out of any port or place belonging to the same, or with intent or purpose that any person or persons whatsoever should so export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same out of the said kingdom of Ireland into any ports or places (except as aforesaid) upon pain of

An act for making more effectual the several acts past for repairing and amending the highways of this kingdom.

WHEREAS divers acts of parliament have been made for the better repairing and amending the highways within this kingdom, and for the preventing carriers and waggons from carrying excessive burdens, which have hitherto proved wholly ineffectual, and the great roads have from time to time become more ruinous, (notwithstanding the expence travellers are put to at the several turnpikes) to the great decay of the trade and commerce of this realm: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nineteen no waggon travelling for hire shall go or be drawn with more than six horses, either at length, or in pairs or sideways; and that from and after the said four and twentieth day of June no cart travelling for-hire shall go or be drawn with more than three horses, under the pains, pen-penal-

penalties and forfeitures herein after-mentioned, (that is to say) That if any travelling waggon for hire shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, go or be drawn with more than six horses, that the owner or driver of such waggon for hire shall forfeit and lose all the horses above six in a waggon, with all geers, bridles, halters and accoutrements, to the sole use and benefit of any person or persons who shall seize or distrain the same; and if any cart travelling or carrying for hire shall, at any time from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, go, travel or be drawn with more than three horses, that the owner or driver of such cart so travelling for hire shall forfeit and lose all the horses above three, with all geers, bridles, halters and accoutrements, to the sole use and benefit of any person or persons who shall seize or distrain the same.

II. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted and declared, That any of the penalties hereby incurred, such person or persons shall deliver the horse or horses, or other things so seized or distrained, into the custody of the constable or some other parish-officer of the same, next or adjacent town or parish where such distress or seizure is made, (who are hereby required to receive into their custody and safely to keep the same) till the person or persons who made such distress or seizure, shall make proof upon oath before some justice of the peace of the offence committed; and the said justice or justices, before whom such proof is made, are hereby required to issue their precept to such constable or parish-officer, immediately to deliver the horse or horses, or other things so forfeited, to the party or parties who seized or distrained the same, to and for their sole use and benefit, paying such reasonable charge for keeping and securing such other things, as the said justice or justices shall allow and direct.

III. And whereas one other great decay of the publick highways or roads of the kingdom is greatly occasioned by the very narrow streaks or tire of late used for binding the wheels of travelling waggons for hire, and setting on the same with rose-headed nails: for preventing of which, be it enacted, That from and after the nine and twentieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no such travelling waggon for hire, having the wheels bound with streaks or tire of a less breadth than two inches and a half, when worn, or being set or fastned on with rose-headed nails, shall go or be drawn with more than three horses, every such owner or driver of any such waggon, being so bound with tire or streaks of a less breadth than two inches and a half, when worn, or if of a greater breadth, such tire or streak shall be fastned on with rose-headed nails, shall forfeit and lose all such horses above the number of three, with all geers, bridles, halters and accoutrements, to be seized, distrained and applied, in the same manner, and to and for the same uses, as the other forfeitures and penalties in this act are applied to and disposed of.

After Sept. 19, 1719. no such waggon having the wheels bound with tire of less breadth, when worn, than two inches and half, or set on with rose-headed nails, shall go with more than three horses, on forfeiture as above.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or actions shall, at any time or times hereafter, be prosecuted or brought against any person or persons whatsoever, for any matter or thing which he, she or they shall do, or cause to be done, by virtue or in the execution of this act, that in such case the defendant or defendants in every such action or actions, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence on any trial or trials to be hereafter had in such action or actions; and that if the plaintiff or plain- tiffs in any such action or actions shall discontinue such action or actions, or become nonsuit, or that judgment shall be given against him, her or them in such action or actions, that then the defendant or defendants in every such action or actions shall re- cover his, her or their full costs of suit; any law, custom or usage, or any thing in this act contained to the contrary not- withstanding.

CAP XIII.

An act for the amendment of writs of error; and for the further preventing the arresting or reversing of judgments after verdict.

WHEREAS great delay of justice hath of late years been occasioned by defective writs of error, which as the law now stands are not amendable: for remedy thereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all writs of error, wherein there shall be any variance from the original record, or other defect, may and shall be amended and made agreeable to such record, by the respective courts where such writ or writs of error shall be made returnable; and that where any verdict hath been or shall be given in any action, suit, bill, plaint or demand, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in any other court of record within England or Wales, the judgment thereupon shall not be staid or reversed for any defect or fault, either in form or substance, in any bill, writ original or judicial, or for any variance in such writs from bill, writ, &c. the declaration or other proceedings.

Writs of error varying from the record may be amended. And after verdict no judgment shall be stayed or reversed for any defect in any bill, writ, &c.

CAP. XV.

An act for making more effectual an act of the third and fourth years of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for the more effectual discovery and punishment of deer-stealers.

WHEREAS divers idle and disorderly persons, who have been duly convicted for unlawfully coursing, hunting, killing or taking away deer, upon the statute made in the third and fourth years of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, for the more effectual discovery and punishment of deer-stealers, have procured writs of Certiorari to remove such convictions into superior courts at Westminster, purely to avoid the penalties of the said statute; whereby the party or parties convicted are only obliged to give security to the person or persons prosecuting, for the payment of their costs and damages; and their being no provision made for securing the forfeitures incurred for the offence, or the imprisonment of the offenders, although such conviction should be confirmed by the said courts, the said offenders have opportunity to conceal their effects and withdraw their persons from punishment; and the justice intended by the said act hath been evaded, and loose and wicked persons greatly encouraged to follow such evil practices: for the prevention whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no Certiorari shall be allowed to remove any conviction made, or other proceedings of, for or concerning any matter or thing in the said statute, unless the party or parties convicted shall, before the allowance of such Certiorari, and at the same time that security is given for the payment of the costs and damages to the prosecutor or prosecutors, become also bound to the justice or justices of the peace, before whom such conviction was made, with such sufficient sureties as such justice or justices shall approve of, in the penalty of sixty pounds for each offence, with condition to prosecute such writ of Certiorari with effect, and to pay such justice or justices the forfeitures due by such conviction, to be distributed as the said statute directs, or to render the person or persons convicted to such justice or justices within one month next after such conviction shall be confirmed, or a procedendo granted; and that in default thereof, it shall be lawful for the said justice or justices, and all other persons whatsoever, to proceed to the due execution of such conviction, in such manner as if no Certiorari had been awarded.

No Certiorari shall be allowed to remove any conviction against the recited act, unless the party convicted give security to the justice to prosecute such writ with effect, &c.

In default the justice may proceed to execute such conviction.

After confirmation of a conviction, the justice may proceed as if a procedendo had been granted.

Persons sued may plead the general issue, &c.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after the confirmation of any conviction or convictions upon the said statute by any of the said superior courts, and delivering the rule to the said justice or justices, whereby such conviction or convictions hath or have been so confirmed, it shall and may be lawful for, and full power and authority is hereby given to such justice or justices to proceed against the party or parties convicted, in the same manner as if a procedendo had been granted.

III. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid; That if any person or persons shall be sued or prosecuted for any matter or thing, which he or they shall do in pursuance of this act, or of the said statute made in the third and fourth years of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, it shall and may be lawful to and for the person or persons so sued or prosecuted to plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence; and if a verdict shall pass for the defendant, or the plaintiff shall become nonsuit, or suffer a discontinuance, or if upon a demurrer judgment shall be given against the plaintiff, the defendant shall have and recover his treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same as any other defendant hath in any other case by law.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons convicted, or who shall hereafter be convicted by virtue of the said statute shall, before he or they shall be discharged out of custody, become bound to such person or persons against whom such offence was or shall be com-committed, in the sum of fifty pounds, with condition for his to offend in or their future good behaviour, and that he or they shall not like manner. offend in like manner; and upon his or their failure or refusal. On refusal, to enter into such bond, that he or they shall be committed to be committed the county-gaol where such offence was or shall be done, until till such bond such bond shall be given; and that if such person or persons given. If convicted shall at any time after his or their becoming bound, as aforesaid, after, the bond be convicted for any matter or thing in the said statute, that to be forfeited, then the said bond shall be deemed to be forfeited, and the penalty be recovered, with full costs of suit, in any of the courts &c. at Westminster, which said penalties shall be distributed in the same manner as the forfeitures are by the said statute to be distributed, and the party or parties so convicted shall be likewise liable to the penalties and forfeitures in the said statute.

V. And whereas divers keepers of forests, chases and parks, in breach of the trust reposed in them, have been in confederacy with deer-stealers, whereby they have been greatly encouraged: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any keeper or keepers, or other officer of any forest, chase, purlieu, paddock, wood, park or place where deer are usually kept, shall be convicted upon the said statute for killing or taking away any red or fallow deer, or being aiding or assisting therein, without the consent of the owner or persons chiefly intrusted with the custody of such forest, chase, purlieu, paddock, wood, park or place where such deer shall be killed or taken away, That then such keeper or keepers, or other officer, being so convicted, shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds for each deer so killed or taken away, to be levied by way of distress upon his or their goods and chattels, to be distributed as the forfeitures in the said statute are to be distributed; and for want of such distress, that then he or they shall suffer imprisonment for three years without bail or mainprize, and be set in the pillory for two hours on some market-day in the next adjoining town to the place where the offence was committed, by the chief officer or officers of such market-town, or by his or their under-officer or under-officers.

Keeper or other officer of any forest, &c. convicted of killing any deer without the owner's consent, shall forfeit 50 l. for each deer; to be levied by distress; and for want thereof to be imprisoned three years and set in the pillory.

VI. And whereas by the said statute of the third and fourth years of King William and Queen Mary such persons are only to be punished with three months imprisonment, who do in the night-time pull down or destroy the pales or walls of any park, forest or other ground where deer are kept, which hath been found ineffectual to prevent mischiefs of that nature: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time pull down or destroy, or cause to be pulled down or destroyed, the pale or pales or walls of any park, forest, chase, purlieu, paddock, wood or other ground inclosed, where any red or fallow deer shall be then kept, without the consent of the owner or the person chiefly intrusted with the custody thereof, that such person or persons so offending, and being convicted thereof by confession or by the oath of one or more credible witnesses or witnesses; before one or more justice or justices of the peace of the same county wherein the offence shall be committed, shall be subject

CAP. XVIII.

An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and better securing the duties on salt.

WHEREAS it is found by experience, that the allowances given by the several acts of parliament relating to the duties on salt upon the exportation of fish do much exceed the duty of salt used in curing the same, which is so far from being an encouragement to a fair trade, that it is rather an inducement to the curers and exporters of fish to commit several frauds, by curing the said fish in so deficient a manner, that it will but just serve the examination upon shipping it off, and not keep good to foreign markets, to the great disparagement of the British fishery, as well as diminution of his Majesty's said duties: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the present allowances given by the laws relating to the duties upon salt upon the exportation of fish shall not be paid for any fish that shall be exported from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; but that the curers of fish shall from thenceforth be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt-works or salt-pits, any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law, for the curing of fish for exportation, as they shall think proper for curing fish for foreign markets, without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof, such foreign salt being landed, or such British salt being taken from the said salt-pits or salt-works and weighed in the presence of an officer for the duties on salt; and such foreign or British salt being lodged in a warehouse under the lock and key of the said officer, as well as the proprietor of the said salt: which foreign or British salt so lodged as aforesaid shall remain in the custody of the said officer jointly with the said proprietor of the said salt, during all the several intervals of the respective fishing seasons; the proprietor or proprietors, or his or their agent or agents, entering at the next office for the duty on salt the respective Every bushel of salt taken out of the cellars, and not accounted for, forfeits 20s.

Such salt sold, given away, used or bought, otherwise than for curing fish, forfeits 20s. the bushel.

II. And to the end that no part of the salt delivered into the sole custody of the proprietor or proprietors thereof, or of his or their agent or agents, or by them to any other persons, for the curing of fish for exportation only, during the said several fishing seasons, may be sold, given away or otherwise delivered or used, directly or indirectly, but for the purpose aforesaid; and to obviate the frauds which the publick revenue would otherwise be exposed to by the present relaxation of the former laws and the indulgence intended hereby to the fair trader: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every bushel of salt so taken out of the cellars or salt-works, which shall not be accounted for in the manner above-mentioned, by the oaths of the persons and proper certificates, or by certificate from the justices of the peace at the quarter-sessions, that proof was there made that such salt was put on board any boat or vessel for curing of fish at sea, and was there taken by enemies or otherwise lost or perished at sea, or shall not be returned into or found remaining at the end of every fishing season in the cellars or warehouses as aforesaid, the proprietor or proprietors thereof, his or their agent or agents who took out the same, or the person or persons to whom the same or any part thereof was delivered for curing of fish as aforesaid, shall respectively, according to each of their respective quantities with which they stand accountable, forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings; and every such person selling, giving away, using or delivering any such salt, or consenting or being any ways privy to the selling, giving away, using or delivering such salt, directly or indirectly, otherwise than for the purposes aforesaid, shall forfeit, pay and undergo the penalties and punishments herein after-mentioned; that is to say, every proprietor of such salt, or his agent, for every bushel of such salt so sold, given away, used or delivered, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings; one third part thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the remainder thereof to such person that shall inform or sue for the same; and every other person buying, taking or using any such salt, otherwise than for the purposes aforesaid and in the manner aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings for every bushel of salt so bought, delivered or used, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; one third part thereof for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the remainder thereof to such person or persons that shall inform or sue for the same: which said sums or penalties nalties shall be levied in such manner as other penalties herein after-mentioned are to be levied; or in default of payment of such sums, within fourteen days after conviction of such crime, and where no sufficient effects can be found to answer the same, the person or persons so offending shall be sent to the house of correction, there to be whipp'd, and kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding three months.

III. And for preventing the imbezilling of salt lodged under the lock and key of the officer and proprietors during the intervals of the respective fishing seasons; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every bushel of such salt so lodged, which shall either be carried away or shall be found wanting at the re-delivering thereof into the sole custody of the proprietors, reasonable allowances for the waste of such salt being first made, the said proprietor or proprietors shall forfeit twenty shillings.

Salt wanting at re-delivering forfeits 20s. the bushel.

IV. And for preventing any frauds, imbezillments or misapplication of any foreign salt after it is imported or landed, and before it is cellared and stored up under the joint custody of the proprietor and the officer for the salt-duties for curing of fish for exportation as aforesaid, and of any British salt after its being weighed and taken away from the salt-works or salt-pits of Great Britain, and before it is stored and locked up by the proprietor and the officer for the salt-duties for curing of fish for exportation, as before-mentioned; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any person or persons who, from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall take away, imbezil or misapply any foreign salt after the importation or landing thereof, and before it is cellared and stored up for the curing of fish as above-mentioned, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings for every bushel of foreign salt so taken away, imbezilled or misapplied, reckoning such foreign salt at eighty and four pounds weight to the bushel, and so in proportion for a greater or less quantity; and any person or persons who, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall take away, imbezil or misapply any British salt after it is weighed at and carried from any salt-work or salt-pit in Great Britain, and before it is brought unto and locked up in any cellar or storehouse by the proprietor and the officer for the salt-duties, for the curing of fish, as directed by this act, every such person or persons shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings for every bushel of British salt so taken away, imbezilled or misapplied, reckoning such British salt at fifty and six pounds weight to the bushel, and so in proportion for a greater or less quantity.

Foreign salt imbezilled after importation and before cellaring, forfeits 20s. the bushel, at 84lb. to the bushel.

British salt imbezilled forfeits 10s. the bushel, at 56lb. to the bushel.

V. And whereas considerable quantities of foreign and British salt, as also some quantities of salt which has already been laid on fish, and returned unconsumed, designed for the curing of fish, the duties whereof are paid or secured to be paid, are in the hands of several persons, dealers in fish, which quantities of salt ought to be returned under the lock and key of the officers of the duties on salt in England and the officers of the customs in Scotland, and the duties thereof repaid, or the security given vacated and discharged: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such foreign and British salt, as also such quantities of salt which have already been laid on fish and returned unconsumed, remaining in the proper custody of any person or persons, the duties whereof have been paid or secured in England on or before the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, and in Scotland on or before the first day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, shall be again put under the lock and key of the salt-officers in England and of the custom-house officers in Scotland respectively, on or before the first day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, by delivering to them keys of all the cellars wherein such salt is lodged and cellared, and thereupon weighing the same in the presence of the said officers with all convenient diligence and without delay; and upon a debenture to be prepared by the collector of his Majesty's customs at the port within the precinct whereof such salt is lodged or cellared as aforesaid, and verified by the proper officer as to the quantity of salt actually cellared, the security given for the duties of the said salt shall be vacated and discharged, or the duties repaid by the said collector, if in Scotland, or by the officers of the duties on salt, if in England, out of the monies in their hands arising from the said duties, so as it appears by the salt or custom-house books, that the salt was imported or delivered on or before the first day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighteen in Scotland, or on or before the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and (a) eighteen in England; and that the duties whereof were paid or secured to be paid; and that the proprietor of the salt, or his agent, make oath, that this is the same salt that was so imported or delivered; and in case there is not money in their hands sufficient to discharge the said debentures, then and in that case, upon a certificate thereof to be given gratis, the said debentures for salt cellared in England shall be paid by the commissioners for the duties on salt; and the said debentures for salt cellared in Scotland shall be paid by the commissioners of the customs or excise in Scotland, at the option of the merchant, in the same manner as debentures for fish exported are now by law made payable.

VI. And for the better encouragement of the fishing trade of Great Britain, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all such fish hereafter mentioned as shall be exported from any port or place in Great Britain into parts beyond the seas, by any person or persons whatsoever, the rates or sums of money hereafter expressed, that is to say, for every cask or vessel of pilchards or scads, containing fifty gallons, seven shillings; for every hundred of codfish, ling or hake, (except dried codfish, ling or hake, commonly called haberdines) which shall contain in length fourteen inches, or upwards, from the bone in the fin to the third joint in the tail of every such fish, five shillings; for every barrel of wet codfish, ling or hake, containing thirty two gallons, two shillings; for every hundred weight of dried

codfish, ling or hake, commonly called haberdines, three shillings; for every barrel of salmon, containing forty two gallons, four shillings and six pence; for every barrel of white herrings, containing thirty two gallons, two shillings and eight pence; for every barrel of full red herrings, containing thirty two gallons, one shilling and nine pence; for every barrel of clean shotten red herrings, containing thirty two gallons, one shilling; for every last of dried red sprats, one shilling; and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity of all and every the said kinds of fish, shall be paid by the officer appointed to collect the duties on salt in the same port from whence any such fish shall be exported, within thirty days after demand thereof, on a debenture to be prepared by the collector of the customs in the port where such fish shall be entred out for exportation, and verified by the person executing the office of searcher in such port, as to the quantity of fish actually shipped; and that the oath of the exporter or agent be first taken before the principal officers of the said port before the debenture be allowed (who are hereby required and empowered to give the said oath) That the fish in such debenture mentioned were British taken, and really exported to or for parts beyond the seas, and not relanded, or intended to be relanded in Great Britain, for which debenture no fee or reward shall be taken; and in case the officer hereby directed to pay such debenture shall not have sufficient money in his hands to pay the same, then upon certificate thereof by him made (which certificate he is hereby required to give the party gratis, and without delay) the principal commissioners for managing his Majesty's revenue of excise upon salt for the time being, shall be chargeable with the said payment, to be made in course out of the first money in their hands arising out of the said duties upon salt; and the said debentures for fish exported from Scotland, shall be paid by the commissioners of the customs or excise in Scotland at the option of the merchant, in the same manner as debentures for fish exported are now by law made payable; and any officer neglecting or refusing to pay the said money, or to give such certificate as is here directed, shall forfeit double the sum so to be paid, to the party grieved, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed; and that it shall and may be lawful for the officers for the said duties on salt, upon the exportation of any codfish, ling or hake, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to cut off part of the tail of every such codfish, ling or hake, to the intent it may be known that such codfish, ling or hake hath been exported, and allowances obtained on exportation thereof, in case the same shall be relanded or re-imported; and also that it shall be lawful, upon the exportation of any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to mark any cask, barrel, or other vessel, wherein any such pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall shall be exported, to the intent it may be known that such pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, have been exported, and allowance obtained on exportation of the same, in case the same be reloaded or re-imported; and that in case any codfish, ling or hake, or any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall (after the same shall be exported) be fraudulently reloaded in Great Britain, or re-imported all the said fish so reloaded or re-imported, shall be forfeited and lost, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; and that no allowance shall be paid out of the said duties on salt for or on account of the exportation of any fish that shall not be well cured, or shall be unmerchantable.

VII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the officers for the said duties on salt, at all times when fish are curing, bulking or packing, and at all other times, in the day (or in the night in the presence of a constable, or other lawful officer of the peace) to enter and come into the cellars and warehouses of all curers of fish, to view and inspect them, during the time of their curing fish; and to guage the salt when they shall think it necessary for the discovering of any frauds; and to mark the casks wherein the fish are put up for exportation, and to see them exported; and if any person or persons shall obstruct or hinder any of the said officers in the performance of their duties aforesaid, then and in every such case, the person offending therein shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds.

VIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any fish entitled by law to any premium or allowance upon exportation thereof, shall be laden for exportation, and duly entred and past by the proper officer, at any time after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and the said fish shall be lost or spoiled before the ship's proceeding on her voyage, as aforesaid, then the proper officer of the port or ports where the said fish so lost or spoiled was or shall be entred, shall be obliged, upon due proof thereof made upon oath before any of the chief officers of such port, who have hereby power to administer the same, by the proprietor or proprietors of the said fish, or his or their agents, to make out debentures for the premium or bounty of the said fish, as if the said fish had been actually exported to parts beyond the seas; provided the said fish was sunk in the sea or port where the said ship was lost, or destroyed in the sight of the proper officer where any of the said fish shall come ashore, and that no use be made of the said fish by the proprietor or proprietors, or his or their agents; and that the said officer is hereby required to cause such fish to be burnt, or otherwise destroyed; any thing in this or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. And whereas the ship Severn Galley of Bristol being in the river of Bristol in or about the month of February one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, and the ship George Galley of London being in Leostaff road in or about the month of October one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and the ship James of Leith being in the port of Causton in the isles of Orkneys in or about the month of December one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, the said ships were, by stress of weather, or other accidents, severally cast away and lost in or very near the respective ports where the same were loaden, and at the times of their being respectively lost, the said ships were severally loaden with fish, and other goods, for exportation into parts beyond the seas; which several loadings of fish, or part thereof, were lost and utterly spoiled, and rendred unfit for any market: and whereas some doubt hath arisen about the making out the debentures for the drawbacks or bounties for the fish that was so spoiled, as aforesaid: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the proper officers, at the several ports where the said several ships were respectively loaden, do upon due proof by the oaths of the respective proprietors of the said fish, or their respective agents, That such fish was really lost, or have been destroyed in the presence of one or more of the said officers, after the same had been loaden and entred out for exportation, without intention of being relanded in Great Britain (which oath the principal officer at such port is hereby impowered to administer) make out debentures for the drawbacks and bounties for the said fish so lost or destroyed, as aforesaid, in the same manner as is directed to be done by the several acts of parliament now in force for fish really exported into parts beyond the seas; any act or acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any red herrings or sprats shall, during the time of drying or curing, be burnt or consumed by fire, by which means such red herrings or sprats shall be rendred unfit for use, in such case the number or quantity of red herrings or sprats so burnt, consumed, or rendred unfit for use, shall be computed by the proprietor of the said herrings or sprats, in conjunction with the salt-officer of the said port or place, according to the best of their skill and judgment; which computation so made, and added to the account to be given in of the quantity of herrings or sprats exported or shipped for exportation, shall be accepted and taken at the salt-office in the same manner as if all the said herrings had been really exported.

XI. And whereas by an act made in the third year of the reign of his present majesty King George, intituled, An act for continuing the duties on malt, mum, cyder and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and seventeen; and to authorize allowances to be made to certain receivers: and to obviate a doubt concerning goods imported from the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Sark and Alderney; and to ascertain the duties upon sheep-skins and lamb-skins; and to prevent frauds in the duties upon starch; and for making forth duplicates of exchequer-bills, lottery-tickets and orders, lost and burnt, or destroyed; and for enlarging the time for adjusting claims in several lotteries; and for preventing frauds in the duties on low wines and and spirits carried coastwise, it is enacted, That the inhabitants of the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Sark and Alderney, shall and may, with and under such certificates and bolls as are therein mentioned, import into any lawful port of Great Britain, any goods, wares or merchandizes of the growth, produce and manufacture of the said islands, or any of them, without paying any customs, subsidies or duties for or in respect thereof, except such excise or other duties as is now or shall hereafter, for the time being, be due and payable for the like goods of the growth, produce and manufacture of Great Britain: and whereas it is found by experience, that the indulgence and bounty given by the said act, has been an occasion of tempting many evil-disposed persons to bring in great quantities of French salt from Guernsey, under a pretence that the same was of the produce of that island, by certificates, which are since discovered to be forged, to the great prejudice of the revenue, and the diminution of the trade of the makers of salt in Great Britain: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, all salt imported from any of the said islands shall be liable to the same duties upon the importation thereof as any other foreign salt whatsoever.

After May 1, 1719. Salt imported from

shall be liable

duties as other

May 1719.

XII. And whereas the laws and acts of parliament in Scotland, reserved in force by the eighth article of union, do, among other things enact, That the herring-barrel shall contain eight gallons two pints, Scots measure, which amounts only to nine and twenty gallons, three pints, one gill and an half, English wine-measure; in consequence whereof all the herring barrels made in Scotland since the union, as well as before, have been made according to the aforesaid standard, and great numbers of such barrels remain now in hand: and whereas doubts have arisen in Scotland about the payment of the present allowances upon white herrings exported, unless they are put up and packed in barrels, containing precisely thirty-two gallons, English wine-measure; and also about the payment of proportionable allowances for half-barrels, howsoever convenient for stowage the said half-barrels are; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the present allowance of ten shillings five pence per barrel of white herrings shall be paid for all herrings exported from Scotland in barrels of the Scots guage before-mentioned, and proportionally for half-barrels; provided the said herrings have been or shall be exported on or before the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen.

The proportion of the Scots barrel to the English.

XIII. And forasmuch as great inconvenience would arise to the owners of the said herring barrels remaining now in hand, should the use thereof be disallowed, or no premium be granted upon herrings therein exported: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the premiums granted by this act upon white herrings shall and may be paid upon herrings exported in the aforesaid barrels, in such proportion as the guage of the said barrels bear to thirty two gallons English wine-measure, provided the said barrels be filled with herrings on or before the first day of December one thousand seven hundred and twenty.

XIV. And whereas divers merchants have exported several quantities

ties of salmon in barrels or boxes that were neither agreeable to the Scotch or English laws, and the officers of the customs having gauged the said barrels or boxes, have given debentures for the allowance or drawback in proportion to forty two gallons, English wine-measure, wherein no circumstances of fraud do appear: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said debentures shall and may be paid and satisfied in such manner as they ought to have been, if such exportation had been made and carried on according to the rules and directions of the law.

Salmon exported in unsizeable barrels.

XV. And for preventing the like mistakes and irregularities for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the contents of the herring and salmon barrel shall be the same throughout the whole united kingdom of Great Britain; that is to say, the herring-barrel shall contain thirty two gallons, and the salmon-barrel forty-two gallons; and that all exportation of salmon or herrings in barrels of a different size or content, the empty herring-barrels now in hand excepted, shall be adjudged and taken to be an unlawful exportation, and shall not entitle the exporter to any premium in respect of the same.

The contents of the herring and salmon barrel.

XVI. Provided nevertheless, forasmuch as it may be convenient for the merchants, for the better stowage in the ships in which such exportation of herring or salmon is made, to pack up some part thereof in half-barrels: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to export herring or salmon in half-barrels, according to the proportion of the barrels above-mentioned respectively, but in no other barrels or casks of any other size or content whatsoever; and they shall, by virtue of this act, be entitled to a proportionable premium or drawback for every such half-barrel, videlicet, half what they would be entitled to in case the exportation had been made in whole barrels.

Herrings and salmon may be exported in half-barrels.

XVII. And whereas by the said laws relating to the duties on salt it is provided, That no person whatsoever shall make use of any brine for the pickling or curing of any fish or flesh, or for preserving of any provisions, before the same is boiled into salt: for the better preventing frauds therein, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person who shall carry or convey or cause any brine to be carried or conveyed from the pits (other than such person or persons who are known proprietors of pans for boiling the same into white salt) shall forfeit and lose the sum of forty shillings for every gallon of brine so carried and conveyed, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity.

Brine carried from the pits for curing flesh or fish to forfeit 40s. per gallon.

XVIII. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the second and third years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better securing and regulating the duties upon salt, it is provided, That in case any ship or vessel should come into any port of England, Wales or Berwick upon Tweed, from Ireland or any other foreign part, having on board any quantity of salt, which was taken in only for the necessary provisions of the ship for such voyage, or for curing of fish, it should be lawful for the master of such

Foreign salt imported, taken in for necessary provision for the voyage, or for curing of fish, not entred in ten days, forfeited and double the value.

Such ship or vessel to land the salt, so as an entry should be made thereof within ten days after his first coming into such port, and the duties paid down or secured for the same before the same or any part thereof should be landed or taken out of any ship or vessel; nevertheless for want of sufficient penalties to enforce obedience thereto, several masters of vessels, who since the making the said act have imported such salt, have refused or neglected to enter and pay the duties for the salt by them so imported as aforesaid, within the time limited by the said act: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any master of any ship or vessel, who shall, after the twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, import or bring into any port or place of Great Britain, from Ireland or any other foreign part, any quantity of salt which was taken in only for the necessary provisions of the ship for such voyage, or for curing of fish as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to enter and pay or secure the duty for the same, within ten days after his first coming into any such port or place, and before the same or any part thereof shall be landed or taken out of any such ship or vessel, all the salt so imported shall be forfeited and lost, and the master or other person, commander of the ship or vessel wherein any such salt shall be imported, or the owner or importer of such salt, shall likewise forfeit double the value thereof.

No owner of salt-works to act as justice of peace in matters relating to salt-duties.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no proprietor or owner of salt-works, or who shall have any interest in, or any rent, profit or benefit reserved upon, issuing out of or any ways arising by any salt-pits, salt-works, store-houses or other places made use of by any maker, refiner, importer or dealer in salt, shall act as a justice of the peace in any matter or thing relating to the duties on salt, or any offence committed against the laws relating to the same.

Master of ship carrying salt from Scotland to England, or coastwise, shall before landing give a particular of the salt to the salt-officer on oath, &c.

XX. And be it further enacted, That all and every master and commander of any ship or vessel whatsoever, that from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen shall transport or carry any foreign salt from Scotland or any of the islands thereunto belonging into England, or from any one place or port to any other port or place within the kingdom of Great Britain, shall, before he or they land or deliver such salt on shore (by him so transported or carried) deliver to the officers for collecting the duties on salt in the said port or place appointed to receive the same, a true particular of the quantity so transported and carried as aforesaid, signed by the officers for collecting the said duties on salt, and by the officers of the customs for the port or place from whence the said ship or vessel came; and then the master or his mate, or the boatswain of such ship or vessel shall make oath before the commissioners for collecting the said duties on salt or their officers, some or one of them (who are hereby impowered to administer the same without fee or reward) that to his knowledge there hath not been laid on board or taken into the said ship or vessel any salt since he or they came from such port as aforesaid.

foresaid; and in case such ship or vessel be to deliver one part of her salt at one port and another part at another port or ports, that then the officers for collecting the said duties, and officers of the customs where such salt shall be delivered, shall certify on the backside of the cocquet, Transire or other warrant, or else by certificate only under the hands and seals of the officers, how much and what quantity of the salt mentioned in the cocquet, Transire or other warrant, from the port from whence such ship or vessel came, hath been there landed and delivered, upon the penalty of forfeiting double the value of the salt that shall be otherwise delivered, and ten shillings per bushel.

XXI. And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the officer and officers of the said duties on salt, at every unlading port or creek of such ship or vessel, to go on board the same before the delivery thereof, and to demand a sight of such cocquet so to be given as aforesaid, and to weigh the salt upon unlading the same; and if the salt on the weighing the same shall be found to be more in weight than what is contained in the said cocquet, that then the surplussage that shall exceed the quantity contained in the said cocquet, shall be forfeited; the one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person that shall inform or sue for the same; and if the master of such ship or vessel shall refuse to shew unto such officer the said cocquet, upon due request made, to the end he may see whether the salt so unlading be the same quantity with that contained in the cocquet, That then and in such case it shall be lawful for the said officer to seize the said salt and detain the same, until the said cocquet be produced: provided always, That if the said cocquet, having been duly taken out, be not shewn to such officer in four days after the seizure thereof, That then and in such case the salt so seized shall be forfeited.

Salt-officers may demand a sight of the cocquet, and weigh the salt.

Master refusing, officer may seize the salt till cocquet produced, &c.

XXII. And whereas the importers of foreign salt do, after they come into port, and before they enter and land the same, or proceed further on their voyage to some other port, frequently run salt in boats and other small vessels in the night-time; and if the officers discover the same, the persons on board such boats or other vessels not only refuse to suffer the officers to come on board to see if they have any salt in their vessels, but frequently beat and abuse them: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, it shall and may be lawful to and for the officers of the customs, or the officers of the duties on salt, and every of them, to go on board any boat, lighter or other vessel lying in any port or place or riding upon the sea-coasts, and to search the same, and to see if there be any salt on board, and to seize such salt, in case the same be found in any other vessel than that wherein such salt was imported or brought into the said port or place, unless the same had been duly entered or the duties paid or secured; and all such salt shall be forfeited and lost, or the value thereof, to be recovered of the master or owner of such boat or vessel, who shall shall likewise be liable to all other penalties and forfeitures, as if the same had been landed without entring or payment of the duty; and every person or persons who shall obstruct or hinder any officer or officers in going on board any such boat or vessel and searching the same, shall for every such offence forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds.

Ann. c. 14.

XXIII. And whereas by an act made in the second year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better securing and regulating the duties on salt, reciting, That great sums of money were paid out of the duties upon salt on account of debentures for salt shipped to be exported to foreign parts, which salt was afterwards very often fraudulently reloaded on the coasts of England and Wales: it is enacted, That no salt whatsoever, being of the produce or manufacture of England, Wales, Berwick upon Tweed, Scotland or Ireland, nor any other salt coming from Ireland, Scotland or the Isle of Man shall, after the first day of June one thousand seven hundred and four, be imported or brought into any port or place within England, Wales or Berwick upon Tweed, nor taken out of any ship or vessel, nor put on shore within any of the said ports or places, upon pain that all the salt so imported or brought in, taken out of any ship or vessel, or landed or put on shore contrary to the true intent and meaning thereof, shall be forfeited and lost; and that the ship or vessel in which any such salt shall be so imported or brought in, or out of which any such salt shall be taken or put on shore, together with all her tackle and apparel, shall also be forfeited and lost; and every person that shall take any such salt out of any such ship or vessel, or carry the same on shore, or convey the same from the shore when landed, or be aiding or assisting therein, shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds for every such offence or suffer six months imprisonment: and whereas some doubts have arisen, whether English salt, which is not actually exported to parts beyond the seas, but only put on board boats, barges, ships or other vessels, in order to be exported, be within the intent and meaning of the said act, although the revenue in such case is liable to as great frauds: and whereas great frauds are frequently committed in reloading fish after the same are exported or shipped to be exported, for want of a sufficient provision: for preventing thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no salt or rock-salt whatsoever, nor any herrings, pilchards, scads, codfish, ling, hake, salmon, or dried red sprats whatsoever shall, after the same be put on board any boat, barge, ship or vessel whatsoever, in any river, port or place in Great Britain, in order to be exported to parts beyond the seas, from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be taken out of such boat, barge, ship or vessel, otherwise than to put such fish into the ships in which the same are to be exported, nor put on shore within any of the said ports or places, except in the presence of some officer of the salt-duties, under the same penalties and forfeitures as in and by the said last recited act is directed and appointed.

No salt or fish, after being put on board, to be taken out or put on shore, but in the presence of a salt officer.

XXIV. And whereas the importers of foreign salt do frequently

run the same on shore without entry or payment of duty; which evil ^{14. Foreign salt put on shore before entry, forfeits 100l.} ^{2 & 3 Ann. c.} practice might in a great measure be prevented, if more suitable penalties were provided for discouraging the same: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any foreign salt shall be landed or put on shore before due entry be made thereof with the collector or officer appointed for the said duties on salt in the port or place where the same shall be imported, or before the duty thereon be fully satisfied and paid, or without a warrant for the landing thereof, every person who shall land or put the same on shore, or convey the same from the shore when landed, or be aiding or assisting therein, shall, over and above the penalties already given by law for such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of one hundred pounds.

XXV. And whereas in the laws relating to the salt-duties it is provided, That salt shipped to be carried coastwise from one port to another shall not be landed till the master hath produced a certificate of the quantity of salt put on board at the port from whence he came, and hath made oath, that there hath not been any salt taken in since; but there is no provision made to regulate boats and barges that take in salt to be carried down any river, in order to be put on board any ship as aforesaid: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the reshipping any salt, British or foreign, or any rock-salt, from any boat, barge, trow, lighter or other vessel into any other ship or vessel, and before any dispatches be granted for the salt so reshipped, the master, mate, chief bargeman or chief boatman, that comes along with the salt that is to be shipped on board another vessel, shall make oath before the officer of the salt-duties (who is hereby impowered to administer the same) that all the salt or rock-salt that he took in or loaded at the place of loading (mentioning the quantity) is truly reshipped on board the vessel that he shall reship it on, and that there was no salt or rock-salt added to it or taken from it at such place of loading, or since he came from it, to the best of his knowledge and belief, under the penalty of forfeiting double the value of the salt that shall be otherwise reshipped, and likewise ten shillings per bushel. ^{On reshipping of salt, master, &c. to be sworn, &c. 5 & 6 W. & M. c. 7. sect. 9. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 44. sect. 12. 1 Ann. stat. 1. c. 21.} ^{Penalty.}

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all penalties and forfeitures given by this act, or any other law relating to the duties upon salt (except where it is otherwise directed by this act) shall be distributed in manner following (that is to say) one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer and officers who shall seize, sue or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered and levied, in such manner and form, and with such power of mitigation, as any fine, penalty or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, levied and mitigated by any law of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster; and all and every officer and officers for the said duties on salt, are hereby authorized and impowered to seize all salt and other things which by this or any other act or law relating to the duties on salt are declared to be forfeited. ^{Distribution of forfeitures.}

XXVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed, in pursuance of this or any other statute relating to the duties upon salt, or the General issue. powers thereby given, he or they shall or may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence for his defence; and if upon trial a verdict pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs become nonsuit, discontinue, or forbear prosecuting the said actions, then such defendant or defendants shall have double costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, for which costs he shall have remedy, as in other cases where costs are by law given to defendants.

XIII. Pro-

XIII. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if all the said lottery-annuities for the said term of twenty three years and three quarters of a year, and all the said arrearages, computed to amount to one hundred sixty eight thousand seven hundred forty eight pounds and five shillings as aforesaid, shall not, on or before the said twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be subscribed as aforesaid, to be converted into stock at the respective rates aforesaid, pursuant to the purport and true meaning of this act, then the said corporation shall be obliged, by virtue of this act, to advance and pay into the said receipt of exchequer so much of the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, for the purpose last-mentioned, as shall bear proportion to the lottery-annuities and arrearages so to be subscribed at the respective rates aforesaid, and no more; (that is to say) as the sum of one million seven hundred twenty one thousand two hundred and fifty pounds, being the computed value of all the said lottery-annuities and arrearages, is to the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, so the value of the said lottery-annuities and arrearages which shall be actually subscribed, being computed at the rates aforesaid, shall be to the sum which the said corporation shall advance, for and towards paying off the said debts and incumbrances; and that such of the said lottery-annuities and arrearages, as shall not be subscribed to be converted into stock as aforesaid on or before the said twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be paid and payable out of the produce of the said duties, at such times and in such manner and course of payment, as the same ought to have been paid, if this act had not been made.

If all the annuities, &c. be not subscribed by 20 June 1719, Company to advance proportionally to the annuities subscribed.

Annuities not subscribed to be paid out of the produce of the duties.

XIV. Provided also, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That out of the first monies of the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, or of or for the said proportional part thereof, which shall be payable by the said company into the exchequer, pursuant to this act, for paying off debts and incumbrances as aforesaid, the full sum of thirty seven thousand five hundred pounds, or so much thereof as shall bear proportion to the value of the lottery-annuities and arrearages which shall be actually subscribed as aforesaid, at the rates before-mentioned, shall and may be deducted, defalked and recouped to and for the sole use and benefit of the said corporation, and for the sole benefit and advantage of all the members thereof (as well the present members as those to be incorporated into the same company by virtue of this act).

Out of the first money to be paid into the exchequer 37,500 l. or a proportional part, to be deducted for the use of the company.

XV. And whereas by the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign for redeeming the then fund of the said corporation, it is enacted, That if at any time or times the produce of the duties and revenues therein mentioned should be so low or deficient, as that the money arising thereby at the exchequer should not extend or be sufficient, as aforesaid, it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the rules herein after prescribed shall be duly observed in the application thereof; that is to say,

1. That no person shall have or receive any part of the same, who was a minor, under the age of sixteen years, at the time when the regiment, troop or company in which he served was reduced.

2. That no person shall have or receive any part of the same, except such persons who did actual service in some regiment, troop or company.

5. That no person shall have or receive any part of the same, who hath resigned his commission, and has had no commission since.

6. That no part of the same shall be allowed to any person by virtue of any warrant or appointment, except to such persons who would have been otherwise entitled to the same as reduced officers.

7. And that no part of the same shall be allowed to any of the officers of the five regiments of dragoons, and eight regiments of foot, lately disbanded in Ireland, except to such as were lately taken off the establishment of half-pay in Great Britain.

Treasury to apply out of the appropriated sums so much as shall be necessary for the expence of augmentation of forces by sea or land.

XLV. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, to issue and apply, or cause to be issued and applied, such part of the monies by this act appropriated for the publick uses and services before mentioned, as shall be necessary to be issued and applied for or towards the increase of expence arisen or to arise from such augmentation, as his Majesty in his great wisdom hath made, or shall think fit to make, of his forces by sea or land, to disapprove the designs of his enemies both at home and abroad; any thing in this or any other act or acts of parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, to issue and apply, or cause to be issued and applied, all or any part of the monies which shall be advanced by the said corporation into the receipt of the exchequer (for paying such debts and incumbrances, as aforesaid) to or for any the publick uses or services for which provision is made, or intended to be made by this act, or by the foregoing clauses of appropriation therein contained, so as the said commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, do take effectual care, and they are hereby enjoined and required to take effectual care, that such sum or sums (part of the said land-tax, or duties on malt, mum, cyder and perry, or part of the loans authorized to be made severally thereupon) as shall be equal to the sum or sums of the said advance-money so applied to the said publick uses or services, be carefully reserved and kept apart, to be applied for or towards discharging the said debts and incumbrances, according to such act or acts of parliament as shall hereafter be made or passed in that behalf; any thing in this or any other act or acts of parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLVII. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the fourth year of his Majesty's reign, for continuing the duties on malt, mum, cyder and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, several supplies which had been granted to his Majesty, as is therein mentioned, were appropriated to several uses and purposes therein expressed; amongst which any sum or sums, not exceeding the sum of ninety four thousand pounds, upon account of half-pay for the year one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, were intended to be paid to the reduced officers of his Majesty's land-forces and marines, subject nevertheless to such rules to be observed in the application of the said half-pay, as in and by the same act were prescribed in that behalf, and the deficiencies of the said supplies are made good, or enacted to be made good by grants in this session of parliament: now it is hereby provided, enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said sum of ninety-four thousand pounds as is or shall be more than sufficient to satisfy the said reduced officers, according to the said rules by the said former act prescribed to be observed in the application thereof, or any part of such overplus, shall and may be disposed to such officers who were maimed, or lost their limbs in the late wars, or to such others as, by reason of their long service, or otherwise, his Majesty shall judge to be proper objects of charity, who are not strictly qualified within the rules by the said recited act prescribed to receive the same, or to the widows or children of such officers whom his Majesty shall judge to be proper objects of charity, according to such warrant or warrants under his Majesty's royal sign manual as shall be signed in that behalf; any thing in this or the said former act to the contrary notwithstanding.

are to be left in the hands of the commissioners for the stamp-duties; which provision was intended for encouraging the exportation of cards and dice into foreign parts, but hath been found to be a great discouragement thereof, in regard such bonds do or may lie out against the parties bound therein, although the conditions thereof are or shall have been performed; and in regard some of the obligors in such bonds have been prosecuted thereupon several years after the dates thereof, and are or may be liable to the penalties although no fraud or relanding be proved against them, for that the proof is on their part, and the persons usually bound in such bonds as sureties for the makers or sellers of such cards and dice exported, are those who actually export the same, and upon account of such suretyship cannot be legal witnesses for the principals in such bonds, and it is impracticable to bring living witnesses, or such sufficient proof as the law at present requires, from the East and West Indies, and other foreign parts to which cards and dice are commonly exported, to prove the landings and consumptions thereof in such foreign parts: and whereas great quantities of cards and dice exported are often consumed in long voyages at sea, and there is no provision in the said act for prosecuting such bonds in any limited time, or for any discharge thereof, and it is reasonable to give relief in the premises: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as to such of the said bonds as have been entred into at any time or times before the sixth day of April one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and are now remaining in the hands of the commissioners for the stamp-duties, or any of his Majesty's officers, in case there shall be no prosecution for some breach or non-performance of the respective conditions thereof, before the sixth day of April one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, or if upon such prosecution, proof be not made of some fraud in breach or non-performance of such conditions, and judgment thereupon obtained for his Majesty, before the sixth day of April one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, then such of the said bonds so already entred into, shall (for want of such proof or judgment) be void; and that all prosecutions now depending upon any of the said bonds, which have not been commenced within two years after the date thereof, and where proof hath not been made, or shall not be made, before the sixth day of April one thousand seven hundred and twenty, of some fraud in breach or non performance of the conditions, shall cease and determine; and as to such bonds as shall be entred into after the said sixth day of April one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, in case there shall be no proof of some fraud in breach or non performance of the respective conditions, or if proof thereof be not made within two years after the dates of the bonds, or if upon such prosecution as is last mentioned, judgment be not obtained for his Majesty upon such proof, as aforesaid, within the space of one year after the same prosecution commenced, then every such bond which shall be entred into, as aforesaid (in default of such prosecution to be commenced, and judgment to be obtained, as aforesaid, within the times before limited) shall also

also be void; and all bonds made void by this act shall be delivered up by the respective officers, having the same in their keeping, to be cancelled, without fee or reward.

CAP. XX.

An act for settling certain yearly funds payable out of the revenue of Scotland, to satisfy publick debts in Scotland, and other uses mentioned in the treaty of union; and to discharge the equivalents claimed on behalf of Scotland in the terms of the same treaty; and for obviating all future disputes, charges and expences concerning those equivalents.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, Whereas in and by the sixth article of the treaty for the union of the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, (which treaty was ratified by acts of parliament passed in either kingdom, and particularly by an act made in England in the fifth year of the reign of her late majesty ⁵ Ann. c. 2. Queen Anne, of blessed memory) it was provided that the customs and duties on import and export, settled in England when the union commenced, should from and after the union, take place throughout the whole united kingdom, excepting and reserving, as in the said article is particularly expressed; and in and by the seventh article of the said treaty it was provided, That all parts of the united kingdom should for ever, from and after the union, be liable to the same excises (excepting only that such beer or ale as are therein described, should not after the union be liable, upon account of the then present excise upon exciseable liquors in England, to any higher imposition than two shillings sterling upon thirty four gallons English barrel, being twelve gallons of the then present Scots measure;) and it was by the article last mentioned provided, That the excise then settled in England upon all other liquors should, when the union commenced, take place throughout the whole united kingdom: and in and by the fourteenth article of the said treaty of union, it was provided, That Scotland should not be charged with any duties laid on by the parliament of England before the said union (except such as were consented to in the said treaty) in regard it was agreed, That all necessary provision should be made by the then parliament of Scotland for the publick charge and service of that kingdom, for the year one thousand seven hundred and seven; providing nevertheless, That if the parliament of England should think fit to lay any further impositions, by way of customs, or such excises with which, by virtue of the said treaty, Scotland was to be charged equal with England, in such case Scotland should be liable to the same customs and excises, and have an equivalent to be settled by the parliament of Great Britain: and whereas by the terms of the said treaty the subjects of Scotland, for preserving an equality of trade throughout the united kingdom, would be liable to several customs and excises then payable in England, which would be applicable towards payments of the debts of England, contracted before the union: it was by the fifteenth article of the said treaty agreed, That Scotland should have an equivalent for what the subjects subjects thereof should be so charged towards payment of the said debts of England in all particulars whatsoever, in manner therein expressed, (viz.) That before the union of the said kingdoms, the sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, should be granted to her said Majesty by the parliament of England for the uses after mentioned, being the equivalent to be answered to Scotland for such parts of the said customs and excises upon all exciseable liquors with which that kingdom was to be charged upon the union, as would be applicable to the payment of the said debts of England, according to the proportions therein specified: and in regard that after the union, Scotland becoming liable to the same customs and duties payable on import and export, and to the same excises on all exciseable liquors as in England, as well upon that account, as upon the account of increase of trade and people, the said revenues would much improve beyond the annual values thereof set down in the said article, whereof no present estimate could then be made; yet nevertheless for the reasons aforesaid, it was thereby declared, That there ought to be a proportionable equivalent answered to Scotland: and it was agreed, That after the union there should be an account kept of the said duties arising in Scotland, to the end that it might appear what ought to be answered to Scotland as an equivalent for such proportion of the said increase as should be applicable to the payment of the debts of England: and for the further and more effectual answering the several ends after mentioned, it was agreed, That from and after the union, the whole increase of the revenues of customs and duties on import and export, and excises upon exciseable liquors in Scotland, over and above the annual produce of the said respective duties as therein stated, should go and be applied for the term of seven years to the uses after mentioned; and that upon the said account there should be answered to Scotland annually, from the end of seven years after the union, an equivalent in proportion to such part of the said increase as should be applicable to the debts of England, and generally that an equivalent should be answered to Scotland for such parts of the English debts as Scotland might thereafter become liable to pay by reason of the union, other than such for which appropriations had been made by parliament in England, of the customs or other duties on export or import, and excises on all exciseable liquors, in respect of which debts the equivalents were therein before provided; and as to the uses to which the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which were to be answered or allowed in Scotland, as aforesaid, were to be applied, it was by the said treaty agreed, That in the first place, out of the aforesaid sum, what consideration should be found necessary to be had for any losses which private persons might sustain by reducing the coin of Scotland to the standard and value of the coin of England, should be made good; in the next place, that the capital stock or fund of the then African and Indian company of Scotland advanced, together with the interest for the said capital stock, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, from the respective times of the payment thereof, should be paid; upon payment of which capital stock and interest, it was agreed the said company should be dissolved and cease; and as to the overplus of the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings (after payment of what consideration should be had for losses in repairing the coin, and paying the said capital stock and interest) and also the whole increase of the said revenues of customs, duties and excises, above the then present value, which should arise in Scotland, during the said term of seven years, together with the equivalent which should become due upon the improvement thereof in Scotland, after the said term, and also as to all other sums which according to the agreements aforesaid might become payable to Scotland, by way of equivalent for what that kingdom should thereafter become liable towards payment of the debts of England, it was by the said article agreed, That the same should be applied in manner following, viz. That all the publick debts of the kingdom of Scotland, as should be adjusted by the then present parliament, should be paid, and that two thousand pounds per annum, for the space of seven years, should be applied towards encouraging and promoting the manufecture of coarse wool within those shires which produced the wool, and afterwards the same should be wholly employed towards encouraging and promoting the fisheries and such other manufatures and improvements in Scotland, as might most conduce to the general good of the united kingdom; and it was agreed, That her Majesty should be impowered to appoint commissioners, who should be accountable to the parliament of Great Britain, for disposing the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which should arise to Scotland, upon the agreements aforesaid, to the purposes before-mentioned, who should keep their office within the limits of Scotland, with such powers, and be subject to such directions for keeping accounts and performing other matters and things, as in the said fifteenth article were prescribed. And whereas for preventing all mistakes or abuses which might hinder the ready application of the aforesaid money to the proprietors, and others concerned in the stock of the African and Indian company of Scotland, conform to the said article, there was an act made in the last session of the last parliament of Scotland, intituled, Act concerning the payment of the sums out of the equivalent to the African company, wherein it was enacted, That the directors of the said African and Indian company of Scotland should make up accounts of the sums advanced by the proprietors of the said company, and debts due to (a) the said company, on the first day of May then next, as therein was prescribed; and in like manner by another act of the said parliament of Scotland, intituled, Act concerning the publick debts, the payments to be made on account of the publick debts of Scotland, were adjusted; as in and by the said treaty of union, and several acts before recited or mentioned (amongst other things therein contained) relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear. And whereas the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, was paid for and on the part of England to the commissioners of the equivalent in Scotland, pursuant to the aforesaid articles, and considerable sums were by them issued out according to the same, and the above recited acts of parliament in Scotland, but by experience it was found that some further direction was yet necessary for the better application of what remained of the said sum unapplied, and all other sums which were or might become due by virtue of the agreements aforesaid, and for the more effectual attaining the ends mentioned in the said fifteenth article of the treaty and acts above recited; and therefore an act was made and passed in the parliament of Great Britain in the sixth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the further directing the payment of the equivalent money, containing powers and directions, as by the same, relation being thereunto also had, may more fully appear. And whereas by an act of parliament of Great Britain, made in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, (amongst other things) for obviating doubts concerning certain payments in Scotland, it was enacted, That the fees, salaries, and other charges allowed, or to be allowed by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, for keeping up the courts of session and justiciary, and exchequer-court of Scotland, were and might be chargeable upon any part of the revenues of customs and excise of Scotland, preferable to all other payments whatsoever, (the charges of management excepted) but so as not any way to prevent any application of the excrescence out of the said customs and excise appointed by any former law, as by the same act (relation being thereunto had) may also more fully appear. And whereas an act of parliament of Great Britain was made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to discharge and acquit the commissioners of equivalent for the sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, by them duly issued out of the sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, which they received, reciting, That the commissioners for disposing the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which should arise to Scotland upon the agreements in the said treaty of union, or the major part of them, pursuant to several commissions from her Majesty, had well and duly issued and paid the sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, as directed by the laws in that behalf, in manner therein set down, (videlicet) towards the loss which private persons sustained by reducing the English money then in Scotland to the current rate in England, the sum of three thousand and seventeen pounds eighteen shillings and nine pence; for recoining the Scots and foreign money, and reducing it to the standard of the coin of England, the sum of forty nine thousand eight hundred eighty eight pounds fourteen shillings and eleven pence one sixth part of a penny; towards payment of the stock, interest, and debts of the Indian and African company, the sum of two hundred twenty nine thousand six hundred and eleven pounds four shillings and eight pence; towards the charges of the commissioners secretaries and accountants of the two treaties of union, the sum of thirty thousand four hundred ninety eight pounds twelve shillings and two pence; towards payment of the first class of the civil list, the sum of twenty seven thousand five hundred and fifty three pounds seventeen shillings and nine pence one third of a penny; towards payment of the second class of the civil list, the sum of four thousand thousand six hundred fifty five pounds and six shillings; towards payment of the first class of the military list, the sum of fourteen thousand one hundred eighty eight pounds and eight pence; towards payment of the second class of the military list, the sum of fourteen thousand four hundred fifty eight pounds two shillings and eight pence and five sixths of a penny; for the fees and salaries of the servants of the commission till the fourteenth of March and thirtieth of April then last past, the sum of five thousand four hundred and thirteen pounds eleven shillings and four pence; for the necessary charges of the commission, and for defending of law suits where the titles of parties were not clear (those charges preceding the six and twentieth day of March then last past) the sum of two thousand two hundred twenty four pounds six shillings and ten pence one sixth of a penny: and it was thereby declared, That the said commissioners of the equivalent should be acquitted of the several sums above set down, amounting in the whole to the said sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny; providing nevertheless, That nothing therein contained should free them from applying the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred seventy five pounds fourteen shillings and one penny halfpenny, being the ballance of the said three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings then remaining in their hands, together with what other sums were or might become due and payable to them, to such uses, and for such purposes, as the former acts therein mentioned did appoint and direct: and it appearing, That the other publick debts of Scotland then unsatisfied, which were adjusted and certified; pursuant to the directions of the several acts therein recited, did then amount to the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence five sixths of a penny, including the interest of such parts thereof as bore interest from the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and eight to the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; it was thereby enacted, That it might and should be lawful for the commissioners of equivalent for the time being, or any three or more of them, and they were thereby directed and required forthwith to call for and receive all the certificates and other warrants, and receive and cancel all the debentures for which the debt aforesaid, amounting to the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence five sixths of a penny, was constituted and established, and issue out new debentures devisable and transferrable, as the former debentures were, for the said sum, to the several persons proportionally and respectively entitled thereunto, which new debentures are thereby enacted to bear interest from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum; and that such interest shall be paid out of the first and readiest of the monies which either were or should become due to Scotland by way of equivalent, according to the agreements in the treaty of union above recited, and the principal according to the order and preferences mentioned in the fifteenth article of the said treaty, and seequivalent, and of the fees and salaries of their servants, and the necessary charges of the office for the said two years; providing nevertheless, That the commissioners of the equivalent of Scotland for the time being, should secure and retain in their hands the sum of fourteen thousand pounds sterling, appointed by the said fifteenth article of the union, for the encouragement of the manufacture of coarse wool, in such shires where the same was or should be produced, to be applied for the benefit of the said manufacture, and the wool-masters, and to no other use or purpose whatsoever, as by the two acts last before recited may also more fully appear; which several sums for payment of interest, salaries and charges, were issued to the said commissioners of equivalent accordingly. And whereas by reason of many doubts arising in the construction of the said fifteenth article of the said treaty, and other laws relating to the excrecence of the said equivalent, and to the growing equivalent due and becoming due to Scotland, and by reason of the many difficulties which attend separating and distinguishing between debts incurred before the union, and debts incurred for service of the united kingdom (both which have without distinction been provided for since the union) the commissioners for taking and stating the debts due and growing due to Scotland, by way of equivalent, have not been able to adjust the accounts thereof for the time past, and are like to meet with insuperable difficulties therein for the future, during so long time as the same is to continue in the terms of the said treaty, although the making or endeavouring to make such accounts is attended with an excessive charge to the publick, and may occasion great vexations and discontents in the united kingdom: for obviating whereof, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, as we think it just and reasonable, so we also judge it to be most conducive to the publick quiet and tranquillity, That in lieu and full discharge of all equivalents whatsoever, that might hereafter be demanded from England, or the united kingdom, upon the foot of the said treaty, such certain annuities or yearly funds and other provisions may be settled and established for the satisfaction of those interested or concerned in the monies which were expected to arise from the said equivalents, as are hereafter in this act expressed; and do therefore humbly pray your Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That yearly and every year, reckoning the first year to begin from the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the full sum of ten thousand pounds of lawful money of Great Britain shall be one yearly fund, and the full sum of two thousand pounds of like money shall be another yearly fund, for the several purposes in this act expressed concerning the same yearly funds respectively; and that the said yearly funds shall continue and be payable for ever, subject nevertheless to redemption by parliament, according to the respective provisos herein after contained in that behalf; and that the said several annuities or yearly funds,

And to the end it may be known who are the proprietors of the said capital sums amounting to two hundred forty eight thousand five hundred and fifty pounds and nine pence halfpenny; it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid; That the judges of his Majesty's court of exchequer in Scotland shall, by publick publication at the market-cross at Edinburgh, or by any other form of publick publication as the said judges shall

Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That at any time, upon payment by the parliament of Great Britain of the said capital sum of two hundred forty eight thousand five hundred and fifty pounds and nine pence halfpenny, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same or any part thereof, and of all arrears of the said annuity or yearly fund of ten thousand pounds then due, computing the same quarterly, till the end of the then next preceding quarter of a year, and from thenceforth by the day, until the day of such payment made (if any such arrears be) then and not till then, and from thenceforth the said annuity or fund of ten thousand pounds per annum shall cease and determine; this present act, or any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The judges of the exchequer in Scotland to call the commissioners of equivalent to account for the balance, &c.

XIII. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the judges of the court of exchequer in Scotland shall forthwith call the said commissioners of the equivalent in Scotland to an account for the said balance of sixteen thousand five hundred seventy five pounds fourteen shillings and one penny halfpenny, and for the said sums of fifteen thousand eight hundred twenty two pounds eight shillings and seven pence three farthings, and thirty one thousand five hundred sixty five pounds two shillings and five pence halfpenny, by them received as aforesaid; and after deduction of all their due payments and just allowances, to cause the balance of such account to be paid over to such persons as his Majesty, by any warrant or warrants under his royal sign manual, counter-signed by the commissioners of the treasury or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, shall from time to time appoint

XIV. And as to, for and concerning the said annuity or fund of two thousand pounds per annum by this act settled until the redemption thereof by parliament; it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the same shall be wholly applied towards the encouraging and promoting the fisheries and such other manufactures and improvements in Scotland, as may most conduce to the general good of the united kingdom, according to the tenor and true meaning of the said fifteenth article of the said treaty of union, and to none other use, intent or purpose whatsoever.

The fund of 2000l. per ann. to be applied towards promoting the fisheries, &c. in Scotland.

XV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said annuities or funds of ten thousand pounds and two thousand pounds per annum, and the several shares and interests of the creditors, proprietors or members that are or shall be entitled thereto, shall be deemed and taken to be personal or moveable estates, and upon deaths shall go to executors or administrators, and not be descendable to heirs; and such shares or interests in the capital stock of the said corporation, or in the hands of their cashier for the time being, or in the hands of any trustees appointed or to be appointed to receive the same as aforesaid, shall not be liable to any arrestment or attachment that shall be laid thereupon; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

The said funds to be personal estates, and not liable to any arrestment.

XVI. And it is hereby also enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That no person whatsoever shall incur any incapacity, disability, penalty or forfeiture whatsoever, only for putting this act in execution, or for accepting or exercising any office or trust whatsoever, in pursuance of this act or of any charter, letters patents or warrant to be granted by his Majesty in pursuance thereof; any former law or statute or provision to the contrary notwithstanding.

None shall incur any incapacity, &c. for putting this act in execution, &c.

XVII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That at any time, upon payment by the parliament of Great Britain of the full sum of forty thousand pounds sterling, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same or any part thereof, and all arrears (if any such be) of the said annuity or yearly sum of two thousand pounds then due, computing the same quarterly, to the end of the then next preceding quarter of a year, and from thenceforth by the day, until the day of such payment made, then and not till then, and from thenceforth the said annuity or yearly fund of two thousand pounds shall cease and determine; this present act, or any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The yearly sum of 600 l. shall be paid to the said corporation towards the charges of management, &c.

XXI. And forasmuch, as the intended corporation cannot receive and distribute the annuity of ten thousand pounds per annum, and defray the other necessary charges of management without lessening their interest, which if wholly born by the members thereof, would prove a great discouragement to them: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That over and above the said annuity or fund of ten thousand pounds hereby settled to be paid to the said corporation, there shall be paid and payable to the said corporation to be erected by virtue of this act, and their successors, until the said annual sum herein before settled shall be redeemed as aforesaid, or to such person or persons as shall be authorized under the common seal of the said corporation to receive the same, for the use of the said corporation, the further annual sum of six hundred pounds for and towards the charge of management, and other necessary charges in receiving and distributing of the said annuity of ten thousand pounds payable to the said corporation, and the several members thereof as aforesaid; which annual sum of six hundred pounds is hereby charged and chargeable upon, and made to be paid and payable by and out of the same funds, and at such time and times, and in such manner, and by the same ways, means and methods, as is and are herein and hereby prescribed, settled or appointed for payment of the said annuity of ten thousand pounds per annum.

VII. Provided, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That any thing in this act contained or to be done in execution thereof, shall not extend or be construed to extend to diminish or lessen the duties of prizage and butlerage of wines due upon the importation of the same, but that the said duties shall be collected, taken and received in the same manner as if this present act had never been made.

CAP. XIV.

An Act for prohibiting the importation of raw silk and mobair yarn of the product or manufacture of Asia, from any ports or places in the Streights or Levant seas, except such ports and places as are within the dominions of the Grand Seignior.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and encreasing of shipping and navigation, it is amongst other things enacted, That no goods or commodities which are of foreign growth, production and manufacture, which by the said act are to be brought into England, Ireland, Wales, the islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in English or other shipping, navigated in such manner as therein is mentioned, shall be shipped or brought from any other place or places, country or countries, but only from those of the said growth, production or manufacture, or from those parts where the said goods and commodities could only or were or usually had been first shipped for transportation, and from none other places or countries: and whereas in the said act there is a proviso in the words following; (viz.) Provided always, That this act, or any thing therein contained, extend not, or be meant to restrain and prohibit the importation of any the commodities of the Streights or Levant seas, loaden in English built shipping, and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are English, from the usual ports or places for lading of them heretofore within the said Streights or Levant seas, though the said commodities be not of the very growth of the said places: and whereas at the time of passing the said recited act, the subjects of France exported very little woollen manufacture into Turkey, and were then supplied with great quantities of woollen goods from England for their own use, and likewise with raw silks, and other goods of Turkey, which were the returns of English woollen manufactures; for all which the importation into France was then free for the subjects of England: and whereas the woollen manufacture in France has since that time been greatly increased, and very large quantities of such goods are now annually imported from thence to Turkey, in return whereof they bring from thence raw silk and other com-commodities to Marseilles, and other parts in France, great quantities whereof are carried into Italy, and from thence imported into Great Britain in English shipping, greatly to the discouragement of the woollen manufactures of Great Britain, and the advancement thereof in France; and without some speedy care therein, the British trade to Turkey will be daily lessened, and is in danger of being entirely lost: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty, the said last recited clause or proviso, as to the importation of raw silk and mohair yarn, of the product or manufacture of Asia, shall be, and is hereby repealed, excepting only as to the ports and places in the said Straights or Levant seas which are within the dominions of the Grand Seignior.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, it shall and may be lawful to and for any of his Majesty's subjects, to import any quantity or quantities of fir-timber, fir-planks, masts, and deal-boards, being of the growth of Germany, into this kingdom, from any port or place in Germany, in British built ships only, so as the owner or owners are his Majesty's British subjects, and where of the master, and three fourths of the mariners at least are British subjects, paying the like rates and duties to his Majesty for the same, as are now payable for fir-timber, fir-planks, masts, and deal-boards imported from Norway. His Majesty's subjects may import fir-timber, &c. from Germany, paying the like duties as that imported from Norway.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to discharge or repeal the said clause in the said act of parliament, so far as the same prohibits importation of the said commodities from the Netherlands: but as to such importation thereof from the Netherlands, or any port or place therein, the before mentioned act, and all the penalties and forfeitures therein contained, shall be in full force and effect, as fully and entirely as if this act had never been made; any thing in this present act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding. CAP. XVII.

An act for appointing commissioners to examine, state and determine the debts due to the army; and to examine and state the demands of several foreign princes and states for subsidies during the late war. EXP.

CAP. XVIII.

An act for better securing certain powers and privileges intended to be granted by his Majesty by two charters for assurance of ships and merchandizes at sea, and for lending money upon bottomry; and for restraining several extravagant and unwarrantable practices therein mentioned.

MOST gracious Sovereign, whereas it hath for many ages past been esteemed good policy, by all proper ways and means, to secure and encourage the trade of this realm, whereby the wealth and strength of the same, and particularly the shipping, navigation and public revenues thereof, have been increased; and it hath been, time out of mind, a custom or usage amongst merchants, as well of this realm as of foreign nations, when they make any adventures at sea (especially into remote or dangerous parts) to give a premium or consideration to particular persons, to have from such particular persons assurance of or upon ships, goods or merchandizes adventured, or some of them, at such rates or prices as the parties assurers and the parties assured can agree, which kind of contract or dealing is commonly called a policy of assurance, and several laws and statutes now in force have been made concerning the same assurances; notwithstanding which it is found by experience, that many particular persons, after they have received large premiums or consideration-mones for or towards the insuring ships, goods and merchandizes at sea, have become bankrupts or otherwise failed in answering or complying with their policies of assurance, whereby they were particularly engaged to make good or contribute towards the losses which merchants or traders have sustained, to the ruin or impoverishment of many merchants and traders, and to the discouragement of adventurers at sea, and to the great diminution of the trade, wealth, strength and publick revenues of this kingdom: and whereas it is conceived, That if two several and distinct corporations, with a competent joint stock to each of them belonging, and under proper conditions, restrictions and regulations, were erected and established for assurance of ships, ships, goods or merchandizes at sea, or going to sea (exclusive of all or any other corporations or bodies politick already created, or hereafter to be created, and likewise exclusive of such societies or partnerships as now are or may hereafter be entered into for that purpose) several merchants or traders, who adventure their estates, or part of their estates, in such ships, goods or merchandizes at sea, or going to sea (especially in remote or hazardous voyages) would think it much safer for them to depend on the policies or assurances of either of these two corporations so to be erected and established, than on the policies or assurances of private or particular persons; and that such merchants or adventurers as shall hereafter be minded to agree for assurance of their ships, goods or merchandizes with private or particular persons, may still be at liberty so to do according to their own option or choice: and whereas it has also been a custom or usage in this as well as in other nations, for merchants or traders, who adventure their ships and merchandizes at sea, to borrow money to be repaid upon the return or arrival of such ships, which kind of borrowing is commonly called, taking up money on bottomry; in which cases the lenders run a risque or hazard, more or less, of losing their principal, and are therefore allowed to contract for such interest or consideration-money for the use or forbearance of the principal, as can be agreed upon between the borrowers and the lenders: and it is considered, That it may be a great advantage and encouragement to trade and navigation, if such merchants and traders might have it in their power, at their own election, either to have recourse to one of the corporations to be erected and established in pursuance of this act, or to private or particular persons, for borrowing money upon bottomry as aforesaid, at such rate or rates as shall be agreed upon between such borrowers and lenders respectively: and whereas the sole right and prerogative of granting charters of incorporation (not being such as are repugnant to any law or statute of this realm) doth belong to your Majesty; and it is considered, That if your Majesty shall be graciously pleased to grant two such distinct charters as aforesaid, the members of each corporation so to be erected and established (for and in consideration of the advantages which may accrue to them respectively thereby, and for having reasonable powers and privileges secured to them in pursuance of this act) may be willing to pay to your Majesty's use such sums of money, at such times and by such proportions, as are herein after mentioned: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, by one charter or indenture under the great seal of Great Britain, to declare and grant, that such and so many persons (who shall be named therein, and of whose abilities and fitness his Majesty shall thereby declare himself to be well satisfied) and all and every such other person and persons as hereafter from time to time shall be duly admitted as members into their corporation, shall be one distinct and separate body politick and corporate for the assurance of ships, goods and merchandizes

a governor, sub-governor, deputy-governor, or director of either of the corporations intended to be erected and established in pursuance of this act shall, during the time he shall be such governor, sub-governor, deputy-governor, or director, be incapable of being chosen a governor, sub-governor, deputy-governor, or director of the other corporation intended to be erected and established in pursuance of this act; and if any governor, sub-governor, deputy-governor, or director, or member of either of the corporations intended to be erected and established in pursuance of this act, having any share in the capital stock of that corporation, shall in his or her own name, or in the name or names of any other person or persons in trust for such governor, sub-governor, deputy-governor, director or member, purchase any share in the capital stock of the other corporation intended to be erected and established in pursuance of this act, that then and in every such case, the share so purchased shall be forfeited; the one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will inform or sue for the same, and to be recovered in the manner before-mentioned.

XV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon three years publick notice to be printed in the London Gazette, and affixed upon the Royal Exchange in London, by authority of parliament, at any time within or during the term of thirty one years, to be reckoned from the date or respective dates of the two charters or indentures intended to pass under the great seal of Great Britain, as aforesaid, and upon payment by parliament to the said respective corporations of the said respective sums of three hundred thousand pounds, and three hundred thousand pounds, which shall have been advanced to his Majesty's use, as aforesaid, without any interest or consideration for the forbearance thereof, then and not till then the said respective corporations, and all the powers, privileges, benefits and advantages to be granted to them respectively, in pursuance of this act, shall cease, determine and become void; any thing contained in this act, or to be contained in the said charters or indentures, or either of them, to the contrary notwithstanding; and that any vote or resolution of the house of commons signified by the speaker in writing, to be inserted in the said London Gazette, and affixed on the Royal Exchange in London, as aforesaid, shall be deemed and adjudged to be sufficient notice within the words and meaning of this act.

XVI. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That if at any time after the expiration of the said term of thirty one years, his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall judge the farther continuance of the said two corporations to be hurtful or inconvenient to the publick, then and from thenceforth it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, by any letters patents under the great seal of Great Britain, to revoke and make void the same corporations, and all the XVII. Nevertheless it is intended and hereby declared and enacted, That in case the said corporations shall be redeemed upon such notice and payment, within the said term of thirty one years, or be revoked by such letters patents, as aforesaid, after the said term of thirty one years, the same corporations, or any corporation or corporations, with like powers, privileges, benefits and advantages, shall not be grantable again to any persons or corporations whatsoever, but shall remain suppressed for ever, as having been found inconvenient and prejudicial to the publick.

No other like corporations grantable.

XVIII. And whereas it is notorious, that several undertakings or projects of different kinds have, at some time or times since the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, been publicly contrived and practised, or attempted to be practised, within the city of London and other parts of this kingdom, as also in Ireland, and other his Majesty's dominions, which manifestly tend to the common grievance, prejudice and inconvenience of great numbers of your Majesty's subjects in their trade or commerce, and other their affairs; and the persons who contrive or attempt such dangerous and mischievous undertakings or projects, under false pretences of publick good, do presume, according to their own devices and schemes, to open books for publick subscriptions, and draw in many unwary persons to subscribe therein towards raising great sums of money, whereupon the subscribers or claimants under them do pay small proportions thereof, and such proportions in the whole do amount to very large sums; which dangerous and mischievous undertakings or projects do relate to several fisheries, and other affairs, wherein the trade, commerce, and welfare of your Majesty's subjects, or great numbers of them, are concerned or interested: and whereas in many cases the said undertakers or subscribers have, since the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, presumed to act as if they were corporate bodies, and have pretended to make their shares in stocks transferrable or assignable, without any legal authority, either by act of parliament, or by any charter from the crown for so doing; and in some cases the undertakers or subscribers, since the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, have acted or pretended to act under some charter or charters formerly granted by the crown for some particular or special purposes therein expressed, but have used or endeavoured to use the same charters for raising joint stocks, and for making transfers or assignments, or pretended transfers or assignments for their own private lucre, which were never intended or designed by the same charters respectively; and in some cases the undertakers or subscribers, since the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand and seven hundred and eighteen, have acted under some obsolete charter or charters, although the same became void or voidable by nonuser or abuser, or for want of making lawful elections, which were necessary for the continuance thereof; and many other unwarrantable practices (too many to enumerate) have been, and daily are and may hereafter be contrived, set on foot, or proceeded upon, to the ruin and destruction of many of your Majesty's good subjects, if a timely remedy be not provided: and whereas it is become absolutely necessary, that all publick undertakings and attempts, tending to the common grievance, prejudice and inconvenience of your Majesty's subjects in general, or great numbers of them, in their trade, commerce, or other lawful affairs, be effectually suppressed and restrained for the future, by suitable and adequate punishments for that purpose to be ascertained and established: now for suppressing such mischievous and dangerous undertakings and attempts, and preventing the like for the future, may it please your most excellent Majesty, at the humble suit of the said lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by authority of this present parliament, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, all and every the undertakings and attempts described, as aforesaid, and all other publick undertakings and attempts, tending to the common grievance, prejudice and inconvenience of his Majesty's subjects, or great numbers of them, in their trade, commerce, or other lawful affairs, and all publick subscriptions, receipts, payments, assignments, transfers, pretended assignments and transfers, and all other matters and things whatsoever, for furthering, countenancing or proceeding in any such undertaking or attempt, and more particularly the acting or presuming to act as a corporate body or bodies, the raising or pretending to raise transferrable stock or stocks, the transferring or pretending to transfer or assign any share or shares in such stock or stocks, without legal authority, either by act of parliament, or by any charter from the crown, to warrant such acting as a body corporate, or to raise such transferrable stock or stocks, or to transfer shares therein, and all acting or pretending to act under any charter, formerly granted from the crown, for particular or special purposes therein expressed, by persons who do or shall use or endeavour to use the same charters, for raising a capital stock, or for making transfers or assignments, or pretended transfers or assignments of such stock, not intended or designed by such charter to be raised or transferred, and all acting or pretending to act under any obsolete charter become void or voidable by nonuser or abuser, or for want of making lawful elections, which were necessary to continue the corporation thereby intended, shall (as to all or any such acts, matters and things, as shall be acted, done, attempted, endeavoured or proceeded upon, after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty) for ever be deemed

After 24 June 1720. all undertakings tending to the prejudice of trade, and all subscriptions, &c. thereto, or presuming to act as corporate bodies without legal authority, and all acting under obsolete charters, &c.

to be illegal and void, and shall not be practised or in any wise put in execution. shall be deemed illegal and void.

XIX And be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, all such unlawful undertakings and attempts, so tending to the common grievance, prejudice and inconvenience of his Majesty's subjects, or a great number of them, in their trade, commerce, or other lawful affairs, and the making or taking of any subscriptions for that purpose, the receiving or paying of any money upon such subscriptions, the making or accepting of any assignment or transfer, or pretended assignment or transfer, of any share or shares upon any such subscription, and all and every other matter and thing whatsoever, for furthering, countenancing, or proceeding in any such unlawful undertaking or attempt, and more particularly the presuming or pretending to act as a corporate body, or to raise a transferrable stock or stocks, or to make transfers or assignments of any share or shares therein, without such legal authority, as aforesaid, and all acting or pretending to act under any charter formerly granted from the crown for any particular or special purposes therein expressed, by persons making or endeavouring to make use of such charter for any such other purpose not thereby intended, and all acting or pretending to act under any such obsolete charter as is before described, and every of them (as to all or any such acts, matters or things as shall be so acted, done, attempted, endeavoured or proceeded upon, after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty) shall be deemed to be a publick nuisance and nuisances, and the same, and all causes, matters and things relating thereto, and every of them, shall for ever hereafter be examined, heard, tried and determined as common nuisances are to be examined, heard, tried, and determined by or according to the laws of this realm; and all offenders therein, being thereof lawfully convicted upon information or indictment, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in Edinburgh, or in Dublin, shall be liable to such fines, penalties, and punishments, whereunto persons convicted for common and publick nuisances are, by any of the laws and statutes of this realm, subject and liable; and moreover shall incur and sustain any further pains, penalties and forfeitures, as were ordained and provided by the statute of provision and præmunire made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second. and shall incur a præmunire. 16 R. 2. c. 5.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any merchant or trader, at any time after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall suffer any particular damage in his, her or their trade, commerce, or other lawful affairs, by occasion or means of any undertaking or attempt, matter or thing, by this act declared to be unlawful, as aforesaid, and will sue to be relieved therein, then and in every such case, such merchant or trader shall and may have his and their remedy for the same by an action or actions to be grounded upon this statute, against the persons, societies or partnerships, or any of them, who contrary to this act shall be engaged or interested in any such unlawful undertaking or attempt; and every such action and actions shall be heard and determined in any of his Majesty's courts of record aforesaid, wherein no effoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be granted or allowed; and in every such action the plaintiff shall or may recover treble damages with full costs of suit.

Penalty on brokers buying or selling any shares in such undertakings.

XXI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any broker or person acting as a broker for himself, or in behalf of any others, at any time or times after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall bargain, sell, buy or purchase, or contract or agree for the bargaining, selling, buying or purchasing of any share or interest in any of the undertakings by this act declared to be unlawful, or in any stock or pretended stock of such undertakers, that then and in every such case, every such broker or person acting as such, shall not only be disabled and rendered incapable to be or act as a broker for the future, but shall also forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered, to wit, one moiety thereof to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the use of any person or persons who will inform or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's said courts of record, as aforesaid, with full costs of suit.

WHEREAS several persons in carrying or managing their respective trades, manufactures or dealings do frequently contrive and commit great frauds, deceits and abuses, which daily increase, and apparently tend not only to the diminution of his Majesty's revenues and publick incomes, but also to the discouragement of all fair traders, manufacturers and dealers, and the discredit of goods of the growth, product and manufacture of Great Britain in foreign parts, and particularly many persons in several parts of this kingdom of Great Britain, who make malt in order to export the same to parts beyond the seas (to the intent that they may obtain greater drawbacks and allowances upon the exportation thereof than were intended by law to be granted for the same) do in the making of such malt increase the quantity thereof in bulk and measure much beyond what the same malt was when gauged and charged with the duties chargeable thereon by the officers for the said duties on malt, when such malt was in the cistern or uting vat, or upon the couch, by watering or wetting the said malt, whilst the same is working upon the floor; and by those and other undue practices causing the said malt not only to run out and grow at that end of the grain from which the root proceeds, but also to sprout, run out and grow at the other end of the grain from which the blade proceeds, which last mentioned sprouting, running out and growing at the end from which the blade proceeds, is commonly called and known by the name of acrespiring, and is not only a great prejudice to the malt so made, but increases the same much in bulk and measure, to the great disparagement of the trade of British malt in parts beyond the seas, and lessening of his Majesty's revenues: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty no malster or maker of malt for sale or exportation shall cause or permit any barley, or other corn or grain by him, her or them making into malt, to be steeped, wetted or watered upon the couch or floor, or in any other place but in his, her and their respective cisterns or uting vats, duly entred for that purpose at the office of excise of the division or place where such malt shall be wetted, on pain of forfeiting for every bushel of malt which shall be found to have been steeped, wetted or watered contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, the sum of two shillings and six pence.

When brandy, &c. is seized, no claim made thereof in 20 days, how to proceed to judgment and condemnation.

XXI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters as aforesaid, (except before excepted) shall be seized as forfeited, and no person or persons, within twenty days next after such seizure, shall appear to the officer or officers who made such seizure to claim the same, then and in such case, if such seizure or seizures shall happen to be made within the immediate limits of the chief excise-office in London, it shall and may be lawful for the officer or officers who shall make such seizure or seizures, from and after the expiration of the said twenty days next after such respective seizure or seizures, to cause notice in writing, to be signed by his Majesty's solicitor for the revenue of excise for the time being, to be affixed at the Royal Exchange, signifying the day and the time of the day that the commissioners of the excise for the time being, or the major part of them, will proceed to hear the matter of such seizure or seizures, and to the condemnation of the brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so seized as aforesaid, and of the casks and other vessels containing the same; and if such seizure or seizures of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters as aforesaid (except before excepted) shall happen to be made, as aforesaid, out of the immediate limits of the said chief excise-office in London, it shall and may be lawful for the officers who shall make such seizure or seizures, from and after the expiration of twenty days next after such respective seizure or seizures, to cause publick notice to be given by proclamation at the next market-town to the place or places where such respective seizure or seizures shall be made as aforesaid, upon the next market-day after the expiration of the said twenty days, of the day and place when and where the justices of the peace will proceed to hear the matter of such seizure or seizures, and to the condemnation of such brandies, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so seized as aforesaid; in which said cases it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners of excise and justices of the peace respectively, within their respective jurisdictions, to proceed to examine into the cause of such seizure or seizures, and to give judgment for the condemnation of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters so seized, as upon due examination shall appear to be forfeited, and of the casks and other vessels containing the same; which judgments shall be good, valid and effectual in the law, and final to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as if the respective owner or owners of the same brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or other strong waters, or the respective person or persons in whose custody the same was at the respective time or times of the seizure or seizures thereof, had had been respectively summoned to attend the said commissioners of excise and justices of the peace respectively, in the manner herein before prescribed, and shall not be liable to any appeal, or to be removed by Certiorari; any thing in this present act contained, or any law, statute or provision to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

No Certiorari.

XXII. And whereas makers of sweets for sale, when they have occasion to send or deliver sweets to vintners and other their customers, do from time to time draw and take the same from their stock-casks of sweets, containing greater quantities than the quantities so sent or delivered, and having so done, do immediately make quantities of new sweets equal and answerable to such quantities so sent or delivered, and do then put in or mix such new sweets to and with the remaining part and parts of such their stock and stocks of old sweets; all which being frequently done and performed without the least privity or knowledge of the officers of excise, who should make charges of the duties for and in respect of such new sweets so made as aforesaid, they the said officers of excise, for want of discovery and due notice thereof, neither do or can make such charges, whereby his Majesty is very much defrauded of and in his duties upon sweets: for remedy whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if from

XXVII. And whereas for the better preservation of hops, it is thought convenient for the owners or planters thereof to be at liberty to put the same into casks instead of bags: be it therefore provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, it shall and may be lawful to and for such owners or planters of hops, if they shall think fit, to put the said hops into casks, such owner or owners, planter or planters first giving the like notice of the time that he, she or they intend to weigh, and put the said hops into casks, as he, she or they are by law required to give of the bagging of hops respectively; and in case any owner or owners, planter or planters, shall put any hops into casks without such notice, then he, she or they shall be liable to the like penalties, as such owner or owners, planter or planters would have been liable unto, in case such hops so put into casks, had been bagged without such notice.

XXXI. And whereas by the said act of the last session of parliament, a remedy was provided amongst other things to prevent the running of brandy from ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under, which lie hovering on the coast within the limits of the ports of this kingdom, and the exportation of wool: and whereas such ships or vessels, to elude the intent of that law, do lie at anchor, or hover on the coasts as near to the said limits as may be, whereby the masters of such ships or vessels have better opportunities of making their signals to the exporters of wool, and the runners of uncustomed and prohibited goods, to draw down to the sea-side (as they frequently do in great numbers of armed men) and of running the goods on shore, and carrying off the wool and coin of this kingdom in their boats, which make more frequent trips to and from the shore than they could do, if such ships or vessels were obliged to lie at a greater distance from the shore: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tons or under, being in part or fully laden with brandy, shall be found at anchor or hovering within two leagues from the shore, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commander of any of his Majesty's ships of war, frigots or armed sloops, appointed for the guard of the coasts, or to and for the commander of any yatch, smack, sloop, or other boat or vessel in the service of his Majesty's customs, or to and for any officer of his Majesty's customs, to compel the master or other person having the charge of such ship or vessel, to come into port; and it is hereby declared, That such master or other person, as aforesaid, as likewise such ship or vessel, and the brandy wherewith such ship or vessel is laden, in part or in the whole, shall be subject to the same rules, regulations, penalties and forfeitures, as such cargoes, ships and vessels, and the masters or others taking charge thereof, which hover within the limits of any port of this kingdom, are by the said act subject unto; any thing therein, or in any other act to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XXXII. And forasmuch as such illegal importations and exportations cannot be carried on by such ships or vessels, if the masters or commanders thereof do take due care to prevent the same: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if the master, purser, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall suffer any brandy, or other uncustomed or prohibited goods, to be put out of the said ship or vessel into any hoy, lighter, boat or bottom, to be laid on land, or shall suffer any wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, or tobacco-pipe-clay, to be laden or taken in from the shore, to be put on board such ship or vessel, to be carried to parts beyond the seas, he or they so offending, being convicted thereof, shall, besides the penalties and forfeitures to which they will be liable by any law now in being, suffer six months imprisonment without bail or main-prize.

XXXIII. And for the preventing disputes that may arise concerning the admeasurement of ships laden with brandy and other spirits, as aforesaid, or ships hovering on the coast: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the following rule shall be observed therein, that is to say, Take the length of the keel within board, (so much as she treads on the ground) and the breadth within board by the midship-beam, from plank to plank, and half the breadth for the depth, then multiply the length by the breadth, and that product by the depth, and divide the whole by ninety four, the quotient will give the true contents of the tonnage, according to which rule, the tonnage of all such ships and vessels shall be measured and ascertained; any law, custom or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXXIV. And whereas the punishment already inflicted by law on such who shall forcibly hinder officers of the customs in the due performance

mance of their duty, has proved insufficient: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if any officer or officers of the customs be forcibly hindred, wounded, or beaten in the due execution of their office, by any persons armed with club, or any manner of weapon, tumultuously assembled in the day or night, to the number of eight or more persons, all and every person or persons so forcibly hindring, wounding or beating the said officer or officers, or such as shall act in their aid or assistance, being convicted thereof, shall, by order of the court, before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, be transported to some of his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, for such term as the court shall think fit, not exceeding seven years, in the same manner as by an act made in the fourth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, or other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons and unlawful exporters of wool, and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates, the offenders therein mentioned are to be transported to the said colonies and plantations.

Officers in execution of their office, to be transported.

4 Geo. I. C. 11.

XXXV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland, before the expiration of the said term, contrary to the intent and meaning hereof, he or they so returning, shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against them as persons attainted of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Returning into Great Britain or Ireland, felony.

XXXVI. Provided nevertheless, That if any such offender shall within two months after such his offence, and before his conviction, discover two or more of his accomplices therein to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively, so as they, or two of them at least, be convicted of such offence, the offender so discovering shall have and receive the sum of forty pounds for every offender so discovered and convicted, as a reward for such his discovery, and shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his offence.

Offender, before conviction, discovering two of his accomplices within two months, to have 40 l. for each, and acquitted.

XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if any other person or persons shall, within three months after such offence shall have been committed, discover to the said commissioners respectively any person or persons who shall have been guilty of such offence, so as such offender or offenders be convicted thereof, such discoverer or discoverers shall have and receive the like reward of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, over and above any other reward and recompence which he or they may be entitled unto on account of the goods so carried or conveyed away, which shall be recovered by means of such his or their discovery, or on account of the penalty which shall be recovered for the running the said goods.

Other persons discovering in three months to have 40 l. over and above any other reward.

XXXVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs in England and Scotland, To be paid by the cashier of the customs, land, shall cause the several rewards of forty pounds for the discovery of the offenders before-mentioned, to be paid by the respective receiver general or cashier of the customs for the time being, out of any publick money in his hands under the management of the said commissioners, upon producing to them a certificate or certificates under the hand of the judge or justice of the court before whom the cause shall be tried, certifying the conviction of the offender or offenders; and the money so paid by any receiver general, as aforesaid, shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts, as so much paid to his Majesty, and he is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXIX. *And whereas prohibited and customable goods found by officers of his Majesty's customs in the custody of persons in boats on the water, or coming directly from the water-side, to wit, the customable goods on suspicion they were unshipped without payment of duty, and the prohibited goods for being imported contrary to law, and such goods being also found in other places, upon information that they were clandestinely run, are in like manner kept until the persons in whose custody the same are found, or the owners of such goods, shall apply to the commissioners of the customs, or to the collector of the port where such goods are kept respectively, that the said goods may be discharged in case there be no just cause to detain the same; nevertheless the owners of the goods, instead of making such application, do sue the officers for more than the value thereof, to their great charge and discouragement in the execution of their duty: and whereas there is good reason to believe, that many ill-disposed persons do put themselves purposely in the way of officers with such goods in their custody, and that others, by the directions of the owners, do falsely or deceitfully inform the officers that the goods were run, to the intent such officers should seize the same, in order to sue the officers, and thereby the owners get excessive prices for their goods, and the officers are deterred from making seizures, whereby the clandestine running of goods is greatly encouraged: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if prohibited or customable goods shall be found by any officer or officers of the customs in the custody of any person or persons, being in a bark, hoy, lighter, barge, boat or wherry on the water, or coming directly from the water-side, without the presence of an officer, or if such goods shall, upon the information of one or more credible person or persons, be found in any house, shop, cellar, ware-house, room, or other place, on a search there made in such manner as in and by an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the late king Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, is mentioned and directed, it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or officers to stop and put the said goods in his Majesty's ware-house in the port next to the place where such stop shall be made, there to remain until the claimer or claimers thereof shall make proof by oath, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioners* soners for managing his Majesty's customs, if such stop shall be made within the ports of London or Edinburgh respectively, that the duties of the customable goods have been paid, or secured to be paid, or that the same had been bought in a lawful way of trade, and that he, she or they so claiming the said goods, do verily believe the duties thereof to have been paid, or secured to be paid, or that the said goods had been compounded for, or condemned in his Majesty's court of exchequer at Westminster or Edinburgh, or been otherwise delivered by writ of that court respectively, and that the prohibited goods had been compounded for, or condemned, or otherwise delivered, as aforesaid, in which case such goods shall and may be delivered without delay or charge: and if such goods shall be stopped in any other of the ports within this kingdom, the claimer or claimers thereof shall and may make the like proof to the like purpose, as aforesaid, and deliver the same to the collector, or in his absence, to one of the other principal officers of the customs in the port where such stop shall be made, which proof shall, without loss of time, be transmitted to the said commissioners respectively, for their directions touching the immediate delivery of such goods, without charge to the claimer or claimers, or for the seizing and prosecuting of the same, as the said commissioners shall see cause.

XL. Provided, such proof be made within ten days after Proof to be in the goods shall have been so stopped, in failure whereof the 10 days after same shall and may be seized, and prosecuted in such manner stopping- as by the several and respective laws now in force against the importation of prohibited or uncustomed goods, is provided, the forfeiture of such goods after condemnation, shall be to and for such uses, and according to such proportions or shares, as are therein and thereby respectively mentioned and distributed.

XLI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, Proof to lie on That if upon such prosecution where no application hath been the claimer. made to the commissioners or officers aforesaid, and not otherwise, the property of the goods shall be claimed by any person or persons, and if any question, dispute or doubt shall arise, whether the duties thereof were paid or secured, or that the said goods had been compounded for, or condemned, or otherwise delivered by writ out of the court of exchequer, or bought in a lawful way of trade, the proof shall be incumbent on such claimer or claimers, and not on the seizer or prosecutor; and if If verdict pass thereupon a verdict shall pass for such claimer or claimers, or if for the claimer, the officer or officers shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue the same, or if upon demurrer or otherwise, he shall have reasonable costs of judgment shall be given against the officer or officers, then and in any of the said cases, the claimer or claimers shall, over and above the recovery of his, her or their goods, or the value thereof, have reasonable costs of suit, for which he, she or they shall have the like remedy as where costs by law are awarded, which said costs of suit shall be reckoned and esteemed as a full satisfaction faction for the said claimer or claimers damages occasioned by the detention and seizure of the said goods.

If the claimer make proof of his goods, or that they have received any damage, the goods to be delivered, and he may sue, &c.

XLII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where the claimer or claimers of such goods so stoppt, as aforesaid, shall make proof either by oath before any justice of the peace, or other person impowered to administer the same, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioners for managing his Majesty's customs respectively, or officers of the customs, as aforesaid, in manner before directed and appointed, so as to induce the respective commissioners to order the delivery of the goods so stoppt; and if the owner or owners, claimer or claimers of such goods, shall receive any damage by means of such stop; then and in such case the owner or owners, claimer or claimers of the said goods, shall and may receive such goods by virtue of such order, without any charge or delay; and it shall and may nevertheless be lawful to and for such owner or owners, claimer or claimers, to bring his, her or their action or actions against the officer or officers, who shall stop his, her or their goods, for such reasonable damages, which he, she or they shall or may have sustained by means of the said goods being so stoppt or detained, as aforesaid; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Officers may prosecute notwithstanding the directions of the commissioners.

XLIII. Provided always, and be it declared to be the true intent and meaning hereof, That if the officer or officers who shall stop such goods, or any other officer or officers of the customs, shall be desirous to seize and prosecute the same, notwithstanding any directions of the commissioners of the customs for the delivery of the said goods respectively, it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or officers to seize and prosecute the same in such manner as by the several and respective laws of the customs now in force such goods may be seized and prosecuted, in every of which cases the officer or officers so prosecuting shall be liable, and he or they are hereby declared liable to be sued by the owner or owners of the said goods for the recovery of the same, or the value thereof, with full costs of suit; or if the said commissioners shall not order the delivery of the said goods so stoppt, then and in such case, the owner and owners, claimer or claimers of such goods, shall and may nevertheless sue for the recovery of such goods, together with costs and damages, according to the usual course of law, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, as he or they might have done before the passing of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

So may the owners.

Offences relating to the customs, where, and how to be tried.

XLIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several offences in this act mentioned, relating to the customs, or other duties upon importation or exportation, or to uncustomed or prohibited goods (except as in this act is otherwise provided) shall and may be heard, tried and determined by bill, plaint or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland

Scotland respectively, wherein no escoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

XLV. And whereas by an act passed in the third year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices and pictures, and upon hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen, and upon muslins; and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities, and also upon callico, China ware and drugs, it is enacted, That any person or persons may import into this kingdom, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace and tea, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, and so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs of the quantity and quality of the said spices and tea so intended to be imported, and the place to which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the time being for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid: and whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, 8 Ann. c. 7. intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise, and upon several imported commodities, and for other purposes therein mentioned, it is enacted, That nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves and mace, may be imported into Great Britain, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, the importer thereof first giving notice to the said commissioners of the quantity and quality of the said spices, and the place into which he intends to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the importing thereof, which importation is to be continued during the continuance of the said respective acts, which are still in force: and whereas many ill-disposed persons having taken out licences for great quantities of the said spices and tea, do import the same at several times in small parcels, with intent secretly to land the same as opportunity shall offer; but if the said spices or tea are found by the officers of the customs on board the ship, the importers to prevent the seizures thereof, do produce their licences, and pretend that those spices or tea are part of the quantities mentioned in the said licences, whereby there is good reason to suspect that great frauds are frequently committed, to the lessening of his Majesty's revenue, and prejudice to the fair merchant: be it therefore enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in every licence to be granted from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, in pursuance of the said acts, and during their continuance, for the importing of nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace and tea, shall be expressed the quantity and quality of the said spices and tea, and the place or port into which the same are intended to be imported; and that if any greater quantity of the said spices or tea shall be imported, than what is expressed in the said licence, the same so imported shall be deemed to be imported without a licence; and such licence shall and may be granted without any fee or reward by the commissioners or chief managers of the customs for the time being, or any three or more of them, or by the customer or collector and contröller of the port into which the said spices and tea are to be imported, so as that all nutmegs, cloves, mace and cinnamon, to be imported into this kingdom by virtue of such licence, from any place or places beyond the seas, other than directly from the East-Indies, be not in any other package than in casks or bales; which casks or bales shall contain the quantity hereafter mentioned, that is to say, each cask of nutmegs, cloves or mace to weigh neat three hundred pounds weight, or upwards, each bale of cinnamon to weigh neat seventy pounds weight, or upwards.

XLVI. And be it further enacted, That the licence so taken out for spice and tea as aforesaid shall be delivered to the merchant demanding the same; which licence shall be produced and delivered up by the master, purser or other person taking charge of the ship wherein such spice or tea shall be imported, with the name of the ship and master, together with the marks and numbers of each cask, bale or parcel, and the quantity and quality of such spice or tea indorsed on the back thereof, to the collector and comptroller of the port into which the same shall be imported, at the time of his or their entring the ship; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Spices in bags or small parcels, &c. forfeited.

XLVII. And whereas fish spices are frequently imported in bags and other small parcels packed in hogsheds, casks, bales or other package, in order to run the same clandestinely: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the spices above-mentioned shall be found on board any ship or vessel in bags or other small parcels packed in hogsheds, casks or bales, the same shall be forfeited; one moiety whereof to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who will inform or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

8 Ann. c. 13.

XLVIII. And whereas by an act of parliament of the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne made (amongst other things) for better preventing frauds in drawbacks, it was enacted, That no debenture should be paid or allowed for any tobacco exported from any port of Great Britain to the kingdom of Ireland, until a certificate should be produced under the hands and seals of the collector, comptroller and surveyor of the customs of any port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such goods should be landed, testifying the landing thereof (the danger of the seas or enemies excepted): and whereas it frequently happens, that tobacco imported into this kingdom, and afterwards shipped again for Ireland, doth in the carriage thither waste and decrease in weight, but as the law now stands no more drawback can be allowed, than for the quantity of tobacco particularly specified in the said certificates returned from Ireland: now for the encouragement of all fair traders that shall send tobacco for Ireland, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from time to time, upon producing such certificates as aforesaid under the hands and seals of the collector, comptroller and surveyor veyor of the customs of any port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such tobacco shall be landed, testifying the landing thereof in that kingdom, at any time or times after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, in case there shall appear to be any difference in weight between the quantity specified in such certificate, and the quantity entred and shipped for exportation thither, so that the quantity landed in Ireland shall be less than the quantity so entred and shipped for that kingdom, in all and every such case and cases an allowance shall be made to the merchant exporter on the duties to be drawn back of all such tobacco so shipped and exported to Ireland, in consideration of the waste which may happen (if any be) in the voyage between Great Britain and Ireland, so as such allowance do not in any case exceed two per centum; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

An allowance of 2 per cent. to be made for tobacco ex-

XLIX. And whereas it is found by experience, That great quantities of tobacco are clandestinely run into Ireland after the entering and exporting the same from Great Britain for other foreign parts, and the exporters have entitiled themselves to debentures for the drawbacks in this kingdom, in prejudice of his Majesty's revenues and to the discouragement of fair traders: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any tobacco so entred out and exported shall afterwards be landed in Ireland, the same and double the drawback thereof shall be forfeited, and every debenture for the drawback thereof shall become void, as if the said tobacco were relanded in any part of Great Britain; which forfeitures shall and may be prosecuted and recovered in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Dublin respectively, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland; in which prosecution no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeiture or forfeitures to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same as aforesaid.

L. And whereas the exporters of tobacco for any foreign parts are now only obliged to swear, that the tobacco shipped and certified is not landed, or intended to be relanded in any part of Great Britain: it is hereby enacted, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty Ireland shall be added and included in the oath before-mentioned (except for such tobacco as shall be regularly shipped for Ireland) without which the officers of the customs shall not suffer the debenture to pass; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

LI. And whereas by an act made in the ninth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for establishing a general post-office for all her Majesty's dominions, and for settling a weekly sum out of the revenues thereof, for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's occasions; the postmaster general is authorized to demand, have, receive and take, for single letters or pieces of paper, to and from the general post-office in London, to and from any parts or places of Great Britain, the

LIV. And whereas by a statute made in the fifth year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, for granting to their Majesties several duties upon vellum, parchment and paper ; and by another statute made in the ninth year of his said late majesty King William the Third, for granting to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, further duties on stamp vellum, parchment and paper, it was (inter alia) enacted, enacted, That from and after the time and times therein respectively expressed every officer or clerk belonging to the court of King's bench, common pleas or exchequer, who should sign any writ before judgment to arrest any person or persons thereupon, should, at the signing thereof, set down upon such writ or process the day and year of his signing the same, under the forfeiture of ten pounds for every such offence or neglect: therefore for the better preventing the frauds aforesaid, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every warrant to be made out or to issue upon any such writ or writs, shall have the same day and year plainly and distinctly set down thereon, as shall be so set down on the writ itself, under the forfeiture of ten pounds for every such neglect or omission, to be paid by the person who shall write, fill up or deliver out such warrant; both which penalties to be sued for, recovered and divided in such manner as the other penalties in the said recited act of the ninth of King William are directed to be sued for, recovered and divided.

LV. And whereas a practice hath of late prevailed for persons to cut out and tear off the mark or stamp upon the spotted or painted side of playing cards after such cards have been sold, used or played with, and by passing on and affixing the same stamps and marks on other cards, do frequently make one mark or stamp serve for two or three several packs of cards: and whereas the seal and stamp upon the outside papers inclosing each pack of cards are frequently made use of again after they have been sold and disposed of, to inclose other packs of playing cards, by which fraudulent and unjust practices his Majesty's revenue is daily lessened and diminished: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, at any time after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall fraudulently cut, tear or get off any mark or stamp in respect whereof or whereby any duties are payable, or are denoted to be paid or payable to his Majesty on playing cards, or shall file, square or new spot any dice which have been sold or played with, or shall fraudulently inclose any parcel or pack of playing cards in any outside paper so sealed and stamped as aforesaid, the same having been once made use of for the purpose aforesaid, or in case any person or persons shall hereafter sell or expose to sale any playing cards, the same not being, at the time of such selling or exposing to sale, actually stamped on the spotted or painted side, and also inclosed in paper and thread, sealed and stamped, as by the act of the tenth year of her said late majesty Queen Anne, which charges the said duties, is directed; then, so often, and in every such case, every person so offending in any of the particulars before-mentioned shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of ten pounds, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be admitted, nor more than one imparlance; one moiety whereof to the King's most excellent majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety to the informer;

Every warrant to be made out on a writ, shall have the day and year set down thereon, on forfeiture of 10 l.

Persons tearing off the mark on playing cards, or filing, squaring or new spotting any dice which have been sold, &c. forfeit 10 l.

LVI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for licensing and regulating hackney-coaches and chairs, and for charging certain new duties on stamp vellum, parchment and paper; it was (inter alia) provided, That for every piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, on which should be engrossed or written any licence for selling of ale or beer, or other exciseable liquors, by retail, a duty of one shilling should be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, during the term of thirty two years: and whereas a practice has obtained to take the usual recognizances from persons for whom ale-licences are intended for selling ale and other exciseable liquors, and to take a list of their names, and the fees for such licences, but to omit to make out or write the same, to avoid the payment of the stamp-duties given thereon, and to omit the writing or other matters charged with stamp-duties since the making of the act of parliament of the first year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for preventing frauds in her Majesty's duties on stamp vellum, parchment and paper; and at other times by rasures and interlineations of such ale-licences, policies of insurance, and several other matters and things chargeable with the payment of the stamp-duty, to make one stamp serve for several purposes: now for the prevention of the said frauds and omissions and other like frauds and omissions, in relation to any of his Majesty's duties under the management of the commissioners for managing his Majesty's stamp-duties, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all mayors, town-clerks and other persons whom it may concern, who shall take any such recognizances, shall be obliged to make or cause to be made out ale-licences duly stamped before such recognizances be taken, under the penalty of ten pounds for every such offence; and that all pains, penalties and provisions given and laid on by this act, and the said act of the first year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, for the punishment or prevention of such frauds and omissions as are herein and therein mentioned and intended, relating to the duties then in being, shall extend and be construed to extend to the like frauds and omissions relating to any of his Majesty's other stamp-duties imposed or laid on at any time since the making of the said last mentioned act of the first year of her said late Majesty's reign, and to be sued for, recovered and divided in such manner as is directed by the said last mentioned act.

LVII. And whereas by a statute made in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for licensing and regulating hackney-coaches and chairs, and for charging certain new duties on stamp vellum, parchment and paper, and on cards and dice, it was (inter alia) enacted, That the makers of cards and dice; during the term therein mentioned, should once in every twenty eight days make true entries upon oath with the commissioners of the stamp-duties, or their officers, of all the cards and dice by them respectively made; and should once in every six weeks clear all the duties owing for the same, under the penalties therein mentioned: and whereas the respective card-makers do often make up cards, the duties on which amount to fifty pounds and upwards per week, and each card-maker may make up treble that quantity, if he shall think fit, whereby they have an opportunity of being greatly in arrear to his Majesty, and the said duties are thereby often in danger of being lost, in regard the same act hath made no provision whatever for securing the said duties, until the said six weeks shall expire, be the danger ever so apparent: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty every card-maker shall be obliged, at the respective times of entring every parcel or quantity of playing cards as aforesaid, to enter into bond to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, with sufficient surety or sureties, in a penal sum of treble the duties on such cards, with condition thereunder-written for the true payment of his Majesty's duties on such cards within the space of six weeks next after the date of every such bond; any thing contained in any law to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Card-makers at entring their cards to give bond in a penal sum of treble the duties to pay within six weeks.

LVIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, That if any card-maker shall, upon entry of every quantity of playing cards, pay down all the duty payable for the same, the commissioners for the stamp-duties for the time being shall, upon payment of the said duty, allow and pay to such card-maker such and the like allowance as is to be allowed and paid to any person or persons for present payment of the stamp-duties, by an act of the first year of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for preventing frauds in her Majesty's duties upon stamped vellum, parchment and paper.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the commissioners for the time being for managing the stamp-duties shall be informed, or have cause to suspect, that any person or persons do make or cause to be made any playing cards or dice, in any house or place whatsoever in Great Britain, without sending or giving notice thereof in writing to the said commissioners at their head office, and affidavit being made thereof by the person or persons so informing or giving notice, before one or more justice or justices of the peace for the county or place where such cards or dice shall be making or made, declaring the grounds of his or their knowledge or suspicion, that then and in such case it shall and may be lawful for any officer or officers employed by or acting under the said commissioners in the management of the duties on playing cards and dice, in the day-time, and in the presence of a constable or other lawful officer of the peace (who is hereby required to be aiding and assisting therein) by warrant from such justice or justices of the peace before whom such affidavit shall be made, to be directed to such officer or officers as aforesaid (which warrant the said justice or justices of the peace are hereby authorized and required to grant) to break open the door, or any part of such house or place where any such cards or dice are so, as aforesaid,

LXI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the seventh year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several rates or duties upon houses, for making good the deficiencies of the clipped monies, several duties upon houses were granted for the term therein mentioned; and by an act made in the eighth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, several new duties upon houses having twenty windows, or more, were granted for the term therein mentioned; which several duties by subsequent acts have been severally continued and made perpetual, subject nevertheless to such redemption as in the same acts, or some of them, is expressed: and whereas by the said acts relating to the said duties on houses, or some of them, it is enacted, That at the end of every year the collectors for the next preceding year shall cause copies to be made of the respective assessments given to them, and at the bottom thereof shall write or cause to be written the names of two or more of the most substantial inhabitants, whom they in their judgments shall think fit, to be appointed collectors of those duties within the said cities, boroughs, towns, divisions or places respectively, for the ensuing year; and the justices of the peace, as commissioners, or any two or more of them, after perusing and examining such assessments, and allowing the same, are to appoint two persons named as aforesaid to be collectors for the year year ensuing; but it is found by experience, That in some places the collectors do name insolvent persons to succeed them, who run away and leave a debt on the parish or place, which being answerable for the collectors, is often vexed with process, without having any power, as the law now stands, to raise the arrears so incurred by a re-assessment: for remedy whereof be it further enacted by the authority Justices of peace may appoint collectors of the duties on houses.

aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, the said justices of the peace, who are commissioners for the said duties, or any three or more of them, shall and may, within their respective limits, appoint two such persons as they shall think able and responsible, to be collectors within the said parishes and places, or any of them, of the said duties on houses, from time to time (whether their names be or be not presented by the preceding collectors, as aforesaid;) and in case there be or shall be any arrear of the said duty on houses, by reason of the failure of any such collector or collectors as aforesaid, for which any parish or place shall be answerable, it shall and may be lawful to and for any three or more justices of the peace, being commissioners for the said duties on houses, to cause such arrear to be re-assessed within the same parish or place respectively, on all such houses as are liable to payment of the said duties on houses; and to cause the same to be raised, and (for default of payment) to be levied by such ways and means as the duties on houses are to be raised and levied in such parishes or places respectively, and to cause the money so raised or levied, to be paid to the receiver general of the said duties, or into the exchequer, for the respective uses and purposes whereunto such arrears (if they had been duly paid by the said collectors) are appropriated and appointed by the several acts of parliament in that behalf; any law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. If any arrear by reason of collectors failure, justices may make a re-assessment.

LXII. And whereas divers ships and vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under, laden with tobacco, brandy, spirits and other customable or prohibited goods, pretending to be bound for foreign parts, do frequently lie hovering on the coast of Ireland, with intention to run the same privately on shore, as opportunity offers, to the great diminution of his Majesty's revenue and ruin of fair traders; and ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under do frequently lie hovering on that coast to take in wool, not lawfully licensed to be brought to England, and other staple commodities of Ireland, prohibited to be exported: for the better preventing whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tons or under, laden with customable or prohibited goods, shall be found at anchor or hovering on the coast of Ireland within two leagues of the shore, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs of that kingdom, to go on board every such ship or vessel, and to take an account of the lading, and to demand and take security from the master or other person Ships of fifty tons hovering on the coasts of Ireland within two leagues of the shore, officers may enter such ships to take account of the lading, and take security of the ma-person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel in that voyage, by his own bond by him to be entred into unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such sum or sums of money as shall be treble the value of such goods then on board, with condition that such ship or vessel (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel doth permit) shall and will proceed regularly on such voyage, and shall (a) land such goods (except wool lawfully licensed, as aforesaid) in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel, shall upon such demand refuse to enter into such bond, or having entred into such bond, shall not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel shall permit) unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector (or other principal officer in his absence) of such port where such ship or vessel shall be, not exceeding twenty days, then, and in either of the said cases, all the goods so on board such ship or vessel, shall and may, by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector, or other principal officer, as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured; and in case the said goods are customable, the customs and other duties shall be paid for the same; and as concerning wool, or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which may be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unloading, as aforesaid, the same are hereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs shall and may prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel, in case she shall be liable to condemnation.

LXIII. Provided always, That after such goods are so taken out of such ship or vessel, and brought on shore, and secured by such officer or officers, such bonds so to be given as aforesaid, shall be void, and delivered up without any fee or reward for taking or delivering up the same; and such bond not being otherwise discharged, shall, on a proper certificate returned under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British or Irish merchants upon the place, that such goods were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons, that such goods were taken by enemies, or perished in the seas, (the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the commissioners of the customs in Ireland) shall be vacated and discharged.

LXIV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners or sub-commissioners of excise respectively, in their respective limits and districts in Ireland, or the major part of them, are hereby authorized and required to hear and determine all offences against any clause or article contained in this or any other act of parliament now in force in Ireland, made for preventing the unlawful exportation of wool, wool-fells, felles, shortlings, mortlings, wool-flocks, worsted, bay or wool-len yarn, cloth, serge, kerseys, bays, sayes, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures, made or mixed with wool or wool-flocks, and manufactured in Ireland; which commissioners or sub-commissioners shall and may proceed in a summary way, and give judgment or sentence, and levy the fines, penalties and forfeitures thereupon, in such or the like manner as they are enabled to proceed, give judgment, and levy the fines, penalties and forfeitures, in cases of excise in Ireland, by any act or acts of parliament now in force in that kingdom.

LXV. And be it further enacted, That no person or persons shall be admitted to claim property in any seizure that shall be made upon any clause or clauses in any act of parliament for preventing the unlawful exportation of wool from Ireland, till he or they shall first have given sufficient security to the said commissioners or sub-commissioners of the district where such seizure shall be made to answer the penalties attending the forfeiture thereof, if such seizure shall be adjudged to be good in law. None may claim property in any seizure in Ireland till they have given security, &c.

LXVI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested or prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, or any of the clauses therein contained, such person and persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence for his, her or their defence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall discontinue his or their action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him or them upon demurrer, or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have full costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs. C A P. XXIII.

An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons.

All the powers given by 4 Geo. I. c. 11. to any court by whom any felons convicted may be transported, may be executed by any subsequent court, held for the same county, &c. though at another place.

WHEREAS the laws in being have not yet proved effectual to the suppressing of robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and to the transportation of felons, and some of the said laws wanting to be amended and enforced: be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all the powers and authorities which are in and by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons, and unlawful exporters of wool; and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates, given to any court before whom any felons and offenders tried for and convicted of any offences for which they may be sent or transported to any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, shall and may be observed and executed by any other subsequent court with like authority, held for the same county, riding, division or liberty, where such felons or offenders were or shall be tried and convicted, notwithstanding such other subsequent court shall happen to be held at or in any other town or place than that wherein such trials or convictions were or shall be.

Such court may appoint two justices of the county, &c. to contract with any persons for the transportation of such felons; and may order the like security, and cause the felons to be delivered to the persons contracting: The contracts to be certified to the next court.

II. Provided always, and it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the court before whom such felons or offenders (who may, by virtue of the said recited act, or by this present act, be transported, as aforesaid) were or shall be convicted, or any other court held with the like authority for the same county, riding, division, liberty or place, wherein they were or shall be so convicted, as aforesaid, may nominate and appoint, if they shall think fit, two or more justices of the peace of and for the said county, riding, division, liberty or place, where such offenders were or shall be convicted, who shall have power and authority to contract with any person or persons for the performance of the transportation of such felons and offenders, who by order of such court or courts are to be sent to any of the colonies and plantations aforesaid; and to order such and the like sufficient security (as the said recited act directs to be taken by order of court) and also to cause such felons, pursuant to such contracts, to be delivered by the respective gaolers in whose custody they are, shall or may be, to the person or persons contracting for them, or to his or their assigns; which said contracts and security shall, from time to time, be certified by the justices, who shall make and take the same, to the next court held with the like authority for the said county, riding, division, liberty or place, where such felons were or shall shall be convicted, to be filed and kept amongst the records of such court.

III. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all charges in and about making the contracts, taking securities, and conveying of felons, in order to be transported, by virtue of this or the said recited act, shall be born by each county, riding, division, liberty or place, for which the court was held that ordered such felon or felons, offender or offenders to be transported; and their respective treasurer or treasurers shall, by order of the justices of the peace in their respective general quarter-sessions, pay all such charges and expences to such person or persons as shall be employed for the purposes aforesaid.

IV. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all securities for transportation hereafter to be taken, pursuant to this or the said former act, shall be by bond in the name of the respective clerks of the peace of the county, riding, division or place, as aforesaid, which said clerks of the peace, and their successors shall, from time to time, prosecute such bonds in their own names, to which purpose they shall be deemed and taken to be a body corporate, and be paid all such costs, charges and expences, as they or any of them shall sustain or expend in any such suit, as the said justices of the peace shall at their general quarter-sessions of the peace direct, for the penalty of such bond, or otherwise howsoever by reason thereof, out of the publick stock, and by the respective treasurer or treasurers, as aforesaid; and that all monies recovered on any such security or bond entred into, as aforesaid, shall be to and for the use of the respective county, riding, division and place, and be paid to such respective treasurer or treasurers, as aforesaid, to be part of the publick stock of such county, riding, division, liberty or place, as aforesaid.

V. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the person or persons so contracting, as aforesaid, and to whom any such felons or offenders shall be delivered in order to be transported, as aforesaid, or any person or persons directed by the said justices (impowered to contract as aforesaid) or their assigns, may, in such manner as they shall think fit, carry and secure the said felons and offenders in and through any county and counties of Great Britain whatsoever, toward the sea-port from whence they are to be transported, as aforesaid; and that if any person or persons shall rescue such felons or offenders, or any of them, he, she and they so rescuing, or aiding or assisting such felons or offenders, or any of them, in making their escape from such person or persons as shall have them in their custody, as aforesaid, shall be deemed and adjudged guilty of felony, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy.

IX. And whereas the practice of taking money to help persons to their stolen goods, and sharing it with the felons, is still continued in defiance of the laws, and to the encouragement of felons: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That whoever shall discover, apprehend and prosecute to conviction of felony without benefit of clergy, any person or persons for the said offence of taking money or other reward, directly or indirectly, to help any person or persons to their stolen goods (such offender not having apprehended the felon who stole the same, and brought him or her to trial for the same, and given evidence against him or her as required by law) shall be entitled to a reward of forty pounds for every such offender so convicted, as aforesaid, and shall have the like certificate, and like payments made without fee or reward, as any person or persons may be entitled unto for the apprehending, prosecuting and convicting of highwaymen by any law or laws for that purpose.

hundred and twenty pounds in the last mentioned sum not exceeding nine millions so to be ingrafted, each proprietor to have one hundred pounds stock in the said East India company; and that the remaining twenty pounds per centum, part of the last mentioned sum not exceeding nine millions (which, if the whole be ingrafted, will make one million and an half) be disposed and distributed in the manner therein mentioned; and that a certain sum be annually allowed to the said East India company towards their charges of management. And whereas the said governor and company of the bank of England, in and by a proposition agreed to in a general court of that corporation holden on or about the twenty ninth day of December one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and since presented to us your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, have declared their willingness to admit, that nine millions of the capital of the South Sea company, together with an annuity of five pounds per centum per annum issuing from the exchequer, payable weekly, and free from all incumbrances, be ingrafted into the capital stock of the bank of England, and be added into their present capital stock of five millions five hundred fifty nine thousand ninety five pounds fourteen shillings and eight pence; and that every proprietor of the same sums so to be ingrafted be entitled to a share in the capital of the bank of England, at the rate of one hundred and twenty pounds per centum, that is to say, for every one hundred and twenty pounds in the same sum so to be ingrafted, each proprietor to have one hundred pounds stock in the bank; the remaining twenty pounds per centum, part of the same sum not exceeding nine millions (which, if the whole be ingrafted, would make one million and an half) to be reserved for the common benefit and advantage of the proprietors of the whole capital so increased; and that a certain sum be annually allowed to the said governor and company of the bank of England towards their charges of management. And whereas the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, in and by a proposition agreed to in a general court of that corporation holden on or about the third day of January one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and since presented to us your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, have declared their willingness to admit, that a sum not exceeding nine millions of the capital of the said South Sea company, together with an annuity of five pounds per centum per annum issuing from the exchequer, payable weekly, and free from all incumbrances, be ingrafted into the stock of the said East India company, and added to their present capital stock of three millions two hundred thousand pounds; and that every proprietor of the same sum so to be ingrafted be entitled to a share in the capital stock of the said East India company, at the rate of one hundred and twenty pounds per centum, that is to say, for every one hundred and twenty pounds in the same sums so to be ingrafted, each proprietor to have one hundred pounds stock in the East India company; the remaining twenty pounds per centum, part of the same sum not exceeding nine millions (which, if the whole be ingrafted, would make one million and an half) to be disposed and distributed in manner following, that is to say, six hundred and forty thousand pounds thereof, being after the rate of twenty pounds per centum, upon the said sum of three millions two hundred thousand pounds, to the then proprietors of the same capital of three millions two hundred thousand pounds: and the remainder of the said twenty pounds per centum to and for the common benefit and advantage of all the proprietors of the whole capital of the said East India company so increased, which remainder (if the whole nine millions be ingrafted) will amount to eight hundred and sixty thousand pounds; and that a certain sum be annually allowed to the said East India company towards their charges of management. And whereas it is judged, that an ingraftment of part of the capital of the South Sea company into the capitals of the bank of England and the East India company, pursuant to the said several proposals of the said respective companies, will contribute very much to the restoring and establishing publick credit: we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty, That it may enacted, &c. EXP.

provided, declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said corporation of the South-Sea company shall pay, and be obliged, by force and virtue of this act (as well before as af-this act, to the said governor and company of the bank of *Eng-company, and their stock and funds (except such part thereof as shall be assigned to the said governor and company of the bank of England and East-India company, or either of them, pursuant to this act) are and shall be subject and liable to the payment of the said several sums at or before the said respective days and times by this act appointed for the payment thereof, without any deduction, defalcation or abatement whatsoever; any thing in the said former act contained to the contrary notwithstanding, XXXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case default shall be made by the said South-Sea company in the payment of all or any part or parcel, parts or par-years and an half's purchase and one year's purchase, or any of them, at the respective days or times by this act limited for the

XXXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies to be paid into the exchequer, as aforesaid, by the said South-Sea company, or to be stopt, as aforesaid, of or for the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds, four shillings and eleven pence, and the said several sums to be computed after the said respective rates of four years and an half's purchase and one year's purchase, or for interest of the same, or any part thereof, and every of them, and every part thereof, as fast as the same shall be paid into the same receipt, pursuant to this act, shall be applied in manner following, (that is to say) That out of the first monies arising of or for the said several sums so to be paid or stopt, every or any of them, such publick debts and incumbrances, carrying interest or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, or more, incurred before the twenty fifth day of December one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, founded upon any former act or acts of parliament in that behalf (not being part of the capital stock or fund of the said South-Sea company, or by them to be assigned or transferred, as aforesaid) as were redeemable on the said twenty fifth of December one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, or might be redeemed at any time or times, on or before the twenty fifth of December one thousand seven hundred twenty two, shall be redeemed and paid off in the first place; and that after the same shall be redeemed and paid off, or money sufficient shall be reserved in the exchequer for redeeming and paying off the same, according to the true meaning of this act, then all the rest, residue and remainder of the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and of the said sums to be computed after the said several rates of four years and an half's purchase and one year's purchase, and of the monies payable for interest, as aforesaid, and of every of them, and of every part thereof, as the same residues and remainders, from time to time, shall grow due from the said South-Sea company, and as the same shall or ought to be paid into the said receipt of exchequer, shall from time to time be applied (so far as the same from time to time will extend) towards paying off and discharging so much and such parts of the capital stock which shall then belong to the said South-Sea company, and to the said governor and company of the bank of England, and to the said East-India company, and every or any of them respectively, as by the tenor and true meaning of this and the said former act were to carry annuities payable at the exchequer after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, till the twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, and afterwards at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, till redemption by parliament, and towards paying off and redeeming so much of the same annuities which shall then be payable at the exchequer in respect of the capital stock which shall be so paid off and discharged; which application of the monies last mentioned shall be made in proportion to the respective quantities of capital stock, which in pursuance of this or the said former acts shall then appear to belong to the said South-Sea company, and to the said bank of England, and to the said East-India company, and every of them respectively, and not otherwise; and the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, and the high treasurer for the time being, are hereby directed and authorized to cause all the monies arising of or for the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and the said sums to be paid after the said rates of four years and an half's purchase, and one year's purchase, and of or for such interest, as aforesaid, and every of them, and every part thereof, to be applied in the manner and form by this present act prescribed touching or concerning the same, and not otherwise.

On every such payment a proportional part of the annuities shall cease.

6 Geo. 1. c. 4.
Recital of the acts about exchequer bills of the sixth of King George.

XXXVIII. And whereas by virtue of the aforesaid act of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, certain bills, commonly called exchequer-bills, then standing out, which were therein estimated to amount to eight hundred ninety six thousand six hundred sixty two pounds and ten shillings, or thereabouts, in principal money, were appointed to be called or brought in, and to be changed for new bills, to be made forth in the method which was thereby prescribed, and in pursuance of the same act several new bills have been made forth for several sums of money, money, whereof the principal hath not exceeded the said sum of eight hundred ninety six thousand six hundred sixty two pounds and ten shillings, adding thereunto the interest that was due upon the old bills, as by the said act was directed; and by the same act the said South-Sea company, and their successors, or their court of directors on their behalf, were enjoined, during the term of seven years, reckoned from the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and twenty, to furnish ready money for exchanging and circulating the new exchequer-bills which should be made forth by virtue of that act; and in case any other act should be made for making forth any further sum or sums in exchequer-bills to be current at any time or times within or during the said term of seven years, as is therein mentioned, then the said South-Sea company, and their successors, were by the said first mentioned act (in part before recited) enjoined and required (during so much of the said term of seven years as the bills to be made forth by such other act should have a joint currency with the bills to be made forth by the said first mentioned act) to furnish a proportional part or parts of such ready money as should be sufficient for exchanging and circulating all the bills so current, which proportional parts were to be ascertained and determined as by the same act is prescribed. And whereas by virtue of another act of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making forth new exchequer-bills, not exceeding one million, at a certain interest, and for lending the same to the South-Sea company at an higher interest, upon security of repaying the same and such high interest into the exchequer, for uses to which the fund for lessening the publick debts, called the sinking fund, is applicable, and for circulating and exchanging upon demand, the said bills at or near the exchequer, several other new exchequer-bills, amounting to one million in principal monies, were made forth for the purpose in that act mentioned; and by the same last mentioned act the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, are enjoined and required (so long as the exchequer-bills, made forth by virtue of that act, should have a joint currency, or be current at the same times with the bills to be made forth by virtue of the said first mentioned act) to furnish out of the monies of the fund or security herein after mentioned, or out of loans to be made thereupon, a proportional part of the ready money which should be sufficient for exchanging and circulating all the bills which should be jointly current; which proportional part so to be furnished on behalf of the publick, was thereby prescribed to be so much as, together with a proportional part, which, from time to time, should or ought to be furnished by the said South-Sea company, should be sufficient to support the currency of all the said bills; and by the act last mentioned, the sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred seventy three pounds four shillings and ten pence halfpenny, then remaining in the exchequer, and in the same act particularly specified, and the monies which (from and after the application of a certain sum of five hundred and twenty thousand pounds therein also particularly specified) should arise of or for the surplusses, excesses and overplusses, commonly called the sinking fund, therein also mentioned, are declared and enacted to be a fund or security for furnishing such proportions of ready money as are last before mentioned for or towards exchanging and circulating all the said exchequer-bills, during their joint currency. And whereas in and by the act last in part before recited, the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury were empowered to issue or cause to be issued by way of loan or advance the said bills not exceeding one million to the South-Sea company, the same corporation giving security upon their annuity or yearly fund for repayment of the principal sum so lent, with interest, within such time as by that act was limited; and the commissioners of the treasury, and high treasurer for the time being, are by that act directed and required to take especial care that upon repayment of the principal monies so to be lent, the same, with the interest or increase accruing thereupon, should be received and applied in the first place to the paying off and discharging the said exchequer-bills for one million; and that the surplus thereof, after paying off and discharging the same bills, should be placed at the receipt of exchequer, to and for the same uses to which the monies of the surplusses, excesses and overplusses, commonly called the sinking fund, are applicable; and that the said South-Sea company shall make just account of the principal so borrowed, and the interest and increase thereof, and of the repayment of the same principal, with the said interest or increase thereof, into the exchequer in manner, as aforesaid; and in default of paying the said monies, with the said interest or increase thereof, then the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, were thereby authorized and required to cause the monies so lent to be stoppt out of the monies which weekly or otherwise should be payable to the South-Sea company at the exchequer, for or upon their annuities or yearly fund, together with so much more as the interest of the said monies so unpaid shall amount unto, and to cause the principal and interest so stoppt, to be applied and placed in the exchequer, as aforesaid; as by the said several acts (herein before in part recited) relation being thereunto severally had, doth more fully appear. And whereas the said sum of five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, since the making of the act last before in part recited, is completely satisfied, or sufficient money is reserved in the exchequer for that purpose, and pursuant to the same act, the said exchequer-bills amounting to one million, were on the seventh day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty (as by a certificate signed by the auditor of the receipt of the exchequer doth appear) issued by way of loan or advance to the said South-Sea company, upon a security under their common seal by an instrument or writing, bearing date the fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, for repayment of the same in good and lawful money of Great Britain into the exchequer at Westminster at the end of one year, to be reckoned from the time of issuing the said bills, with interest after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, as by the same instrument or writing, relation being thereunto had, may also appear: now to the end that all the exchequer-bills for the said sum of one million, and the interest thereof, may effectually be discharged out of the monies to be repaid by the same company, with the interest thereof as aforesaid, at or before before the time herein after limited in that behalf, whereby the joint currency may cease, and the publick may be eased of the burthen and charge of contributing thereunto; and to the end the said excesses, surplusses and overplus monies, called the sinking fund, and other the publick monies aforesaid, after their being freed from the incumbrance of the exchequer-bills last mentioned, may be at liberty to be applied towards lessening or reducing the publick debts and incumbrances, according to the true intent and meaning of this present act; it is hereby provided, enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said corporation, called the South-Sea company, or their successors, at their own costs and charges, on or before the seventh day of June which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred twenty two (although any assignment or assignments before that time shall or shall not have been made to the said other companies, or either of them, in pursuance of this act, as aforesaid) shall well and truly repay or cause to be repaid into the said receipt of exchequer the said sum of one million, together with interest then due for the same; and that upon such repayment the monies so repaid, with the interest or increase accruing thereupon, shall be applied in the first place to the paying off and discharging the said exchequer-bills amounting to one million, with such interest as shall be due thereupon; and that the surplus thereof, after paying off and discharging the bills last mentioned, shall be placed and applied to the same uses to which the monies of the said sinking fund are to be applied; and that an account of the monies so borrowed and repaid, and of the interest thereof, shall be made, as by the said former act was prescribed; and in default of repaying the said sum of one million, with the interest or increase thereof, according to this act, then the annuity and annuities which shall be then payable at the receipt of the exchequer to the said South-Sea company (except so much thereof as in the mean time shall or may have been assigned or transferred to the said other companies, or either of them, as aforesaid) shall and may be stopt by the commissioners of the treasury, or any three of them, or by the high treasurer for the time being, or by the officers of the exchequer for the time being; and the said exchequer-bills amounting to one million shall and may be called in and cancelled by and with the monies so stopt, in the manner prescribed by the said former act in that behalf.

South-Sea company shall repay into the exchequer by 7 June 1722. 1000,000 l. with interest, to be applied to paying off the exchequer bills, &c.

In default their annuities may be stopt.

XXXIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after discharging the said exchequer-bills amounting to one million, with all the interest which shall be due thereupon, and after paying off such publick debts and incumbrances carrying interest or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, or any higher interest or annuity founded upon any former act or acts of parliament in that behalf, as may be redeemed before the said feast of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, or reserving money sufficient in the exchequer for those purposes; then all the monies of the said sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred seventy three pounds four shillings and ten pence halfpenny, and of the said surplusses, excesses and overplus monies, commonly called the sinking fund, which then shall or ought to remain in the receipt of the exchequer, and all the said overplus (if any be) of the said interest-monies, which shall be paid by the said South-Sea company for the said million lent as aforesaid, shall immediately, or as soon as the monies then resting of the said sinking fund can be computed, shall be applied (so far as the same will extend) towards paying off and discharging so much and such parts of the capital stock, which shall then belong to the said South-Sea company, and to the said governor and company of the bank of England, and to the said East-India company, and to every or any of them respectively, as by the tenor and true meaning of this and the said former act in that behalf are to carry annuities payable at the exchequer, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, till the twentieth of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty-seven, and afterwards at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, till redemption by parliament, and towards paying off and redeeming so much of the same annuities which shall then be payable at the exchequer, in respect of the capital stock which shall be so paid off and discharged; which application of the monies last mentioned shall be made in proportion to the respective quantities of capital stock, which in pursuance of this and the said former acts shall then appear to belong to the said South-Sea company, and to the said bank of England, and to the said East-India company, and every of them respectively, and not otherwise.

Then all the sinking fund, &c. shall be applied towards paying off part of the capital stock of the three companies, &c.

All the monies of the sinking fund before 24 June 1720, shall be applied by even sums of 100,000 l. for discharging part of the capital stock of the said companies,

XL. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies of the said surplusses, excesses and overplus monies, commonly called the sinking fund, which after the application of so much thereof as is in and by this act before directed to be applied or reserved as aforesaid, shall arise and be brought into the exchequer, at any time or times before the said feast of the nativity of Saint John the Baptist which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, shall and may be applied, at the end of every year, so far as the same will from time to time extend, by even sums of one hundred thousand pounds at a time, for or towards paying off and discharging part of the said capital stocks of the said South-Sea company, and of the bank of England, and of the said East-India company respectively, in proportion to the respective quantities of the said stock which shall then belong to those corporations respectively; and upon every payment to be made in pursuance of this act to the said South-Sea company, and to the governor and company of the bank of England, and to the said East-India company, and every or any of them respectively, of any part of their said capital stock, a proportional part of their annuities or yearly funds, payable at the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum, for so much of the said capital stock as shall be so paid

C A P. XXI.

An act for the further preventing his Majesty's subjects from trading to the East-Indies under foreign commissions; and for encouraging and further securing the lawful trade thereto; and for further regulating the pilots of Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet.

WHEREAS it is of importance to the welfare of this kingdom, That the trade to and from the East-Indies, as the same is now regulated, be carried on in such manner, as that the British nation may have and enjoy the full fruits and advantages thereof:
 and whereas by virtue of several acts of parliament and letters patents the whole trade to and from the East-Indies and other places beyond the Cape of good Hope, in the said acts and letters patents mentioned, is now solely vested in the united company of merchants of England trading to the East-Indies; notwithstanding which, and notwithstanding the prohibitions, injunctions and penalties contained in such acts and letters patents for securing the said trade to the said company, several evil-minded persons, subjects of his Majesty, preferring their own private gain to the good of their country, have not only clandestinely, and without any authority from the said company, trafficked and traded to and from the East-Indies, but have also, by colour or upon pretence of commissions obtained from foreign governments, openly and publicly, in defiance of the said laws, and in contempt of his Majesty's authority, fitted out, manned and loaded great and defensible ships, and have sent out the same or sailed therewith to the East-Indies and parts aforesaid, and have prevailed upon several British seamen, and other subjects of his Majesty, to serve on board the said ships and to engage in the same undertaking, to the diminution of his Majesty's revenue and of the naval force and commerce of this kingdom: now to the intent that such wicked, mischievous and destructive practices may be prevented for the future, and that the trade aforesaid may be more effectually guarded and successfully carried on: be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if at any time from and after the four and twentieth day of June which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, any of his Majesty's subjects shall sail, go or repair to, or shall trade, traffick or adventure in, to or from the East-Indies or parts aforesaid, contrary to the laws now in being, or contrary to the tenor of this act, in every such case it shall and may be lawful, either for his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, or for the said united company, at any time within the space of six years, to file or exhibit, in any one of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, one or more information or informations against such offender or offenders for the offence by him or them committed; and if the party or parties, defendant or defendants, to such information or informations, who, if con-

mations shall, by due course of law, appear or be found to be guilty thereof, in the court where such information or informations shall be so filed or exhibited, shall forthwith proceed to give judgment against the defendant and defendants, by such fine and imprisonment, or either of them, as the said court shall think fit; and shall also award the prosecutor or prosecutors his and their full costs of suit; but in case the said defendant or defendants shall be, upon any information exhibited by the said company, acquitted or found Not guilty, in such case the said company shall pay such defendant or defendants his or their full costs.

After 24 June 1721, all contracts for loans by way of bottomry on any foreigners ships bound for the East-Indies, and for loading such ships, and all copartnerships, and agreements for wages, declared void.

II. And it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all contracts and agreements whatsoever, at any time from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, made or entered into by any of his Majesty's subjects, or any person or persons in trust for them, for or upon the loan of any monies by way of bottomry on any ship or ships in the service of foreigners, and bound or designed to trade in the East-Indies or parts aforesaid; and all contracts and agreements whatsoever made by any of his Majesty's subjects, or any person or persons in trust for them, for the loading or supplying any such ship or ships with a cargo or lading of any sort of goods, merchandize, treasure or effects, or with any provisions, stores or necessaries, and all copartnerships or agreements in the nature of copartnerships, made or entered into, relating to any such voyage or the profits thereof, and all agreements for the wages of any person or persons serving on board such ship or ships to be employed in such voyage, shall be and are hereby declared to be void.

Any of his Majesty's subjects repairing to the East-Indies contrary to the laws, shall be deemed a trader, and all goods in his custody shall be forfeited.

III. And it is hereby further enacted and declared, That every person and persons, subject and subjects, of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who shall at any time or times from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one sail, go or repair to the said East-Indies or places aforesaid, contrary to the laws now in being, shall be deemed and accounted to be a trader, and to have traded and trafficked there; and all the goods and merchandizes that shall be there bartered or trafficked for, or be purchased by any such offender or offenders, or shall be found in his custody, or in the custody of any other person or persons by his, or their order or procurement, shall be forfeited, together with double the value thereof.

All goods shipped for the East-Indies, or taken out of ships coming from thence (except goods of the company, or licensed by them) forfeit-

IV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the goods, merchandize, treasure and effects that shall at any time or times from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one be shipped or put on board any ship or ships, vessel or vessels, bound to the East-Indies or parts aforesaid (other than and except the goods, merchandize, treasure and effects of the said company, or such as are licensed by them, or the naval stores, provisions and necessaries for such ship or ships performing their voyage) and all and every the goods, merchandize, treasure and effects (except as before is excepted) that shall, from and after the time aforesaid, be taken out of any such ship or vessel in her voyage homeward from the East-Indies or parts aforesaid to England, before her arrival there, the same and every of them shall be forfeited, together with double the value thereof; and the master or commander, and other officers of such ship or ships, vessel or vessels, for the time being, knowingly permitting or suffering any such goods, merchandize, treasure or effects to be shipped or put on board any such ship or ships so bound to the East-Indies, or to be taken out of any such ship or ships bound from the East-Indies or parts aforesaid to England, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of one thousand pounds, and moreover shall not be entitled to have, demand or receive any wages whatsoever; nor shall the said company be obliged or compelled or compellable to pay any wages to, or to the use or upon the account of any such master, commander or officer, for or in respect of the voyage so made or to be made by such master, commander or officer, but shall have an allowance or deduction in respect thereof out of the monies payable by them on account of the ship to which such master or officers belong.

Masters of such ships to forfeit 1000 l. lose their wages, &c.

V. But forasmuch as it happens many times, that the above-mentioned illegal trade is carried on and managed so artfully and covertly, that the said united company cannot come to the knowledge and proof of the same, and at most cannot ascertain the quantities, qualities and values of the goods, merchandize, treasure and effects so traded for, nor therefore obtain any satisfaction or compensation for the damages by them sustained, to their great loss and detriment, and to the great and apparent lessening of his Majesty's revenue: therefore it is provided and further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, at the relation of the said company, or by his own authority, to exhibit a bill or bills of complaint in his Majesty's court of exchequer against any person or persons trading, dealing, trafficking or adventuring, at any time from and after the said twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, in, to or from the East-Indies, or places aforesaid, contrary to law, or against any person or persons concerned as agent, factor or copartner with such illegal traders, for discovery of such their trading, dealing, trafficking and adventuring, and for recovery of such duties and damage as are herein after mentioned, waiving or disclaiming in every such bill all the penalties and forfeitures incurred by such person or persons for the matters in such bill contained; and that such person or persons shall answer the said bill or bills, and not plead or demur to the discovery thereby sought, and pay to his Majesty the customs and duties of the goods and merchandize arising, produced or purchased by the said unlawful trade, traffick or adventuring, and shall answer and pay to the said company for the same thirty pounds per centum according to the value thereof in England; and if such offender or offenders pay the said

Attorney general may exhibit a bill of complaint in the exchequer against such as trade, &c. to the East-Indies after 24 June 1721, contrary to law or against their agents, &c. for discovery of such trading, &c. and waiving the penalties, &c.

such person, shall answer, and not plead or demur to the said bills; and pay the customs, &c.

duties and customs, or the amount of the same, into his Majesty's exchequer for the use of his Majesty, and damages to the said company, he or they shall not be prosecuted upon any other branch or article in this act, or upon any other law or statute whatsoever, for the same offence; and if such bill or bills (if exhibited at the relation of the said company) be dismissed by the court where the same shall be exhibited, the said united company shall pay every such defendant and defendants his and their costs of suit; and in case there be a decree obtained against the defendant or defendants, such defendant or defendants shall pay costs to his Majesty and the relator respectively.

Costs to be paid by either side.

Forfeitures appointed by this act, or by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 44. 6 Ann. c. 3. and 5 Geo. 1. c. 21. to be recovered by bill, &c. one third to the King, one other to the company, and the remaining third to the officers of the customs that shall sue for the same.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the forfeitures and penalties herein before appointed and enacted, or which are appointed or enacted in and by one act made in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East-Indies; or in and by one other act made in the sixth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for better securing the duties of East-India goods; or in and by one other act made in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East-Indies; and for the more effectual preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither under foreign commissions, shall from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be sued for, recovered and recoverable in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by bill, plaint or information, at the suit or prosecution of his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, or of the said united company, or of any officer or officers of the customs, such officer or officers of the customs first taking such consent and directions as is or are contained in the proviso for that purpose hereafter; and that one third part of all such forfeitures and penalties shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors; one other third part thereof to the use of the said united company; and the remaining third part thereof to the use of such officer or officers of the customs as shall inform, and so as aforesaid sue for the same; in which suits or prosecutions no essoin, wager of law or protection shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

Officers not to sue without acquainting the court of directors, who, if they chuse to sue in the attorney general's name, shall pay such officers one quarter part

VII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, That before any suit or prosecution shall be commenced for the recovery of all or any the penalties or forfeitures aforesaid, by any such officer or officers of the customs, such officer or officers shall first repair and go to the court of directors of the said united company for the time being, and make known to them the offence committed, and his or their intentions to sue or prosecute for the same; and if the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution brought or commenced by bill or bills of complaint, to be filed or exhibited in the court court of exchequer, with such waiver and disclaimer of the penalties and forfeitures, as aforesaid, then and in such case such bill or bills of complaint shall be filed and exhibited, and prosecuted accordingly, in the name of the attorney general, as aforesaid, and then and thereupon there shall be yielded and paid by the said company to such officer or officers one quarter part of the monies that shall be recovered upon such suit, for the benefit of the said company; and the said united company shall moreover bear the charges of the said suit or prosecution; but if the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution commenced for the penalties or forfeitures by informations or actions of debt at law, then the said officer or officers shall accordingly sue and prosecute for the same at law; and the said information or actions shall be proceeded upon, and shall not be discontinued or determined, but by and with the consent of the said united company, or their court of directors.

of the monies recovered, and bear the charges, otherwise the officers shall prosecute, and not discontinue, &c. without consent of the company.

VIII. Provided always, That this act or any thing herein contained shall not extend, or be construed, deemed or taken to extend, to subject the governor and company of merchants of England trading into the Levant Seas, or any member thereof, to answer such bill, or subject him or them to any other the penalties and forfeitures hereby enacted, for or in respect of his or their trading into the Levant Seas; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Not to extend to the Levant company.

IX. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, no commodity of the growth, product or manufacture of the East-Indies, or other land, Jersey, the places aforesaid, shall be imported or carried into the kingdom of Ireland, the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark or Man, or into any land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place, to his Majesty, or to the crown of Great Britain belonging, or which shall hereafter belong to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Africa or America, but such only as shall be bona fide, and without fraud, loaden and shipped in Great Britain in ships navigated according to the several and respective laws now in being, as to the several places to which the said goods shall be imported or carried, under the penalty of forfeiting all such goods, or the value thereof, together with the ship or vessel in which they shall be imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition and apparel; and such ship and goods shall and may be seized, and the same, or the value thereof, shall and may be prosecuted in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in Dublin, or in any of his Majesty's courts in such land, island, colony, territory or place where the offence shall be committed, or in the royal courts of Jersey and Guernsey respectively, by bill, plaint or information, wherein no effoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall seize or sue for the same; except such offence shall be committed in any of his Majesty's plantations in Africa or America, in which case one third part of the said forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors; one other third part to the governor of such land, island, colony or place where the offence shall be committed, and the other third part to the informer or prosecutor; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding: and if any officer or officers of the customs in the said kingdom of Ireland, or in the lands, islands, colonies, plantations, territories or places aforesaid, shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation of any such commodities as is before-mentioned, contrary to the true meaning hereof; or if any such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said commodities, and shall by fraud or collusion, desist or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation; he or they so conniving, desisting or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for and recovered in manner aforesaid; one moiety of which forfeiture to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them who will inform and sue for the same; and such officer or officers shall also for the future be incapable of holding any office or employment under his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

X. And whereas by an act passed in the fourth year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for the prosecuting the war against France, the several duties charged by that act upon amber beads, amber rough, coral beads, and polished coral, and upon cowries, are to be repaid to the merchants exporting the same, if exported within three years from the importation thereof, which act is now in force: and whereas by several other acts of parliament now in force, the time for exportation of some foreign goods by British merchants is limited to the space of twelve months, and of other foreign goods to the space of eighteen months, or thereabouts, from the times of the importation thereof: and whereas the time for exportation of some foreign goods, by aliens or merchant strangers, is limited to the space of nine months, and of others to the space of fifteen months, or thereabouts, from the times of importing the same; but so much as it hath been found by experience, that the said respective times of nine months, twelve months, fifteen months, and eighteen months aforesaid, are too short, and very inconvenient to traders; and for as much also as it will be for the benefit of the trade of this kingdom, if the time given for repaying or drawing back the duties upon the exportation of all goods and merchandizes of his Majesty's plantations, and all other foreign goods and merchandizes whatsoever, be enlarged; be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective times for exportation of all goods and merchandizes of his Majesty's plantations, and all other foreign goods and merchandizes, as the same are now limited by any law or laws in being, shall from and after the said twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty

But certificates and oaths shall be made according to the laws now in being.

XI. And whereas by the several acts which granted the duties of fifteen per centum upon muslins and white calicoes imported (which acts are now in force) the importers before the landing thereof, are to give security by bond for payment of the said duties, as soon as the same shall be sold, and for exposing the said goods to sale openly and fairly by way of auction or inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof; and in case the said goods shall, within the time limited, be fairly sold, as aforesaid, and in case the importers shall pay down the said duties in ready money, within twenty days after such sale, they are to have an allowance after the rate of five pounds for every one hundred pounds of duties so paid: and whereas by several acts of parliament now in force for granting, continuing, and better securing the duties payable ad valorem upon unrated East-India goods, and for ascertaining the values according to which such duties shall be paid, the importer or importers thereof are, in like manner, to give security by bond for payment of the said duties according to the real values of the said goods, to be ascertained according to the respective acts of parliament in that behalf made (except coffee) as soon as the said goods shall be sold, and also for exposing the said goods to sale openly and fairly by way of auction, or by inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof; and for as much as the restraining the said muslins, white calicoes, and unrated East-India goods to be sold within twelve months from the importation thereof, may some times be detrimental to the revenue; and that the enlarging the said time of sale will be for the benefit of the trade of this kingdom: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for such of the said goods as are at present imported and unfold, or shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be imported, the importer or importers thereof may, at any time within the space of three years from the importation

XII *And whereas by an act passed in the third year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices and pictures, and upon hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen, and upon muslins, and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities, and also upon callico, China ware and drugs; it is enacted, That any person or persons may import into this kingdom tea, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs of the quantity and quality of the said tea so intended to be imported, and the place in which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the time being, or any three of them, for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid, which act hath been since continued, and is now in force: and whereas the method of granting those licences, by an act passed in the last session of parliament, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money, is altered and explained: and whereas under the colour of such licences great frauds are committed, to the prejudice of his Majesty's revenue; and forasmuch as it hath been found by experience, That the allowing the importation of tea, by virtue of such licences or certificates from Ostend, and other places, not being the place of its growth, tends to promote the illegal trade carried on by his Majesty's subjects to the East-Indies under foreign commissioners, and in conjunction with foreigners, and is very prejudicial to the trade and navigation of this kingdom; For the preventing thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, so much of the said act of the third year of her said late Majesty, and of the several acts continuing the same, and so much of the said act of his present Majesty which past the last sessions of parliament, and every other act which relates to or allows of the importing tea by licence or certificate, as aforesaid, shall be, and the same are hereby*

XIV. And whereas frauds are frequently committed in clandestine-ly running of goods out of ships and vessels homeward bound, as well from the East-Indies as other parts, on pretence of boats plying with pilots for such ships and vessels at a great distance from the proper stations of such pilots, by means whereof they escape the inspection of the officers of the customs, and several mischiefs and inconveniences have happened, as well to his Majesty's as to merchant ships, by the disorders and negligences of pilots residing at Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet, which are not sufficiently prevented by an act made in the third year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better regulating of pilots and conducting of ships and vessels from Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet, up the river of Thames and Medway; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the lord warden of the cinque ports for the time being, or his deputy, with the assent of the commissioners of load-manage, and of the masters and wardens of the society or fellowship of pilots of the Trinity-House of the cinque ports, or the major part of them, at an assembly commonly called a court of load-manage, to be held by the said lord warden or his deputy, during the continuance of the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, to make such rules and orders for the better government and regulation of the pilots residing at Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet, as shall be thought fit and convenient, and to order and direct a proportionable and sufficient number of the respective pilots, residing at Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet, not less than eighteen, to ply constantly at sea, at all seasonable times, to be ready to conduct such ships and vessels up the said rivers of Thames and Medway, as shall have occasion for them; and that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said lord warden of the cinque-ports for the time being, or his deputy, during the continuance of the said act, with the assent of the said commissioners, and the master and wardens of the said society or fellowship, for the time being, or the major part of them, at a court of load-manage to be held, as aforesaid, to suspend or deprive any of the said pilots for breaking such rules or orders, or omitting any thing required by the same, or for acting in any wise contrary to such rules or orders; and if any of the said pilots so suspended or deprived, during the time of such suspension or deprivation, shall take upon him or themselves to conduct any ship or vessel by or from Dover, Deal, or the isle of Thanet, to any place or places in or upon the said river of Thames or Medway, such pilot

STAT. II.

An act for making several provisions to restore the publick credit, which suffers by the frauds and mismanagements of the late directors of the South-Sea company, and others.

Preamble reciting the act of 6 Geo. 1. c. 4.

WHEREAS in and by an act of parliament of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for enabling the South-Sea company to increase their present capital stock and fund, by redeeming such publick debts and incumbrances as are therein mentioned; and for raising money to be applied for lessening several of the publick debts and incumbrances; and for calling in the present exchequer-bills remaining uncanceled; and for making forth new bills in lieu thereof, to be circulated and exchanged upon demand at or near the exchequer; it was enacted, That the said company should pay into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer the sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, by such proportions, and at such times, as were thereby appointed for the payment thereof; and such further sums to be computed after the rate of four years and an half's purchase, and such further sums to be computed after the rate of one year's purchase, as are therein mentioned, by quarterly payments, at such feast-days as were thereby limited for payment of the same; and in and by an act of parliament of the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to enable the South-Sea company to ingraft part of their capital stock and fund into the stock and fund of the bank of England, and another part thereof into the stock and fund of the East-India company; and for giving further time for payments to be made by the said South-Sea company, to the use of the publick, it is provided, declared and enacted, That the said company shall pay, and be obliged, by force and virtue of that act, to pay into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and the said several sums after the rate of four years and an half's purchase, and one year's pur-purchase; and that the same shall be payable by such proportions, and at or by such respective days or times of payment, as are therein limited and appointed, and herein after mentioned for the payment thereof, and not otherwise; that is to say, one full and equal fourth part of the respective sums so payable, shall be paid on or before the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two; one other full and equal fourth part thereof, on or before the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two; one other full and equal fourth part thereof, on or before the feast of Saint Michael the archangel, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two; and the remaining full and equal fourth part of the said respective sums so payable, on or before the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ, which shall be in the said year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two; and that the said South-Sea company, and their stock and funds, (except as therein is excepted) are and shall be subject and liable to the payment of the said several sums at or before the said respective days and times by the last mentioned act appointed for the payment thereof, without any deduction, defalcation or abatement whatsoever: and it is thereby further enacted, That in case default shall be made by the said South-Sea company in the payment of all or any part or parcel, parts or parcels, of the said several sums of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and of the said sums to be paid after the rate of four years and an half's purchase, and one year's purchase, or any of them, at the respective days or times by that act limited for the payment thereof, then the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, or the officers of the exchequer for the time being, shall, and they respectively are thereby authorized, enjoined and required, to cause the money, whereof such default in payment shall be made, with interest for the same, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, (to be computed as is therein mentioned) to be stopt out of the monies which, weekly or otherwise, shall be payable to the said company at the exchequer, for or upon their annuities or yearly funds (except as therein is excepted) and to cause the principal and interest so stopt, to be applied as is therein after directed in that behalf; as by the said several acts of parliament, relation being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear: and whereas by the many frauds, abuses, and breaches of trust, which were committed by the late sub-governor, deputy-governor, and directors of the said company, and others in confederacy with them, or some of them, the said company has suffered an immense loss and damage, and the publick credit (as well as the credit of the said company) hath been extremely reduced and disordered, contrary to the purport and true meaning of the act of parliament first above in part recited, whereby the said company is become unable to comply with all the payments required to be made by the act of parliament last in part before recited; and if their capital stock, and the annuities and yearly funds payable in respect thereof, should continue subject and liable to all the said pay-payments, and to such stoppages as are directed by the said act last mentioned, the credit of the said company would be utterly impaired, and the sufferings of the members would be extremely increased: and whereas in regard to the inability of the said company, under the bad circumstances to which the same is reduced, and to the intent that the said company may be obliged and better enabled to give some further relief (as this act directs) to the several proprietors and persons concerned in, interested in or with the said company, in order to the ascertaining and settling their respective properties and interests, and the re-establishing of the publick credit, and thereby quieting the minds of his Majesty's subjects, it is thought meet, that the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and the said several and respective sums, which were intended to be computed after the said respective rates of four years and an half's purchase, and one year's purchase, be remitted and discharged, so as from and after the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the sum of two millions sterling, part of the capital stock which shall then belong to the said company, be reduced and annihilated, and so as a proportionable part of their annuities or yearly funds, in respect of the said two millions, do from that time cease and determine for the benefit of the publick; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said sum of four millions one hundred fifty six thousand three hundred and six pounds four shillings and eleven pence, and the said several and respective sums, which were intended to be computed and paid after the said several and respective rates of four years and an half's purchase, and one year's purchase, and all actions, suits, executions, demands, stoppages, detentions, and other remedies for recovering or obtaining the same, or any part thereof, are and shall, by force and virtue of this present act, be and be deemed and adjudged to be remitted, released, and for ever discharged.

From 24 June 1722. the sum of 4,156,306 l. 4 s. 11 d. and the four and an half year's purchase, and one year's purchase, and all actions, &c. discharged.

After 24 June 1722. two millions of the South-Sea company's capital stock to be reduced and annihilated, and a proportional part of their annuities, to cease.

This clause repealed 9 Geo. 1. c. 6. sect. 1.

II. Provided always nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the full sum of two millions of pounds sterling, part of the capital stock which shall then belong to the said company, shall by force and virtue of this act, be and be deemed and adjudged to be reduced, sunk and annihilated for ever; and that a proportional part of their annuities or yearly funds, payable at the exchequer in respect of two millions, shall, by force and virtue of this act, from and after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be no longer payable, but shall from thenceforth for ever cease and determine for the benefit of the publick; any thing in the said recited acts, or either of them, or any other law, statute or provision whatsoever, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

III. And whereas several persons or corporations, who were intitled to several redeemable debts and annuities, payable at the receipt of the exchequer, or by the cashier of the bank of England, or otherwise, and who were enabled to subscribe the same into the capital stock of the said South-Sea company, did subscribe, or cause or procure to be subscribed, many of the said redeemable debts and annuities; and the proprietors of such of the said redeemable debts and annuities as were payable at the receipt of the exchequer, or at particular pay-offices at or near the exchequer, did deliver in their respective orders, tallies, tickets or other securities, for payments of such debts or annuities to persons for that purpose appointed; and the accounts of the proprietors of such of the said redeemable debts and annuities as were payable by the said cashier of the bank of England, were debited in the books of the bank; and an additional capital stock was, upon books or duplicates signed and attested by three or more of the directors or managers in that behalf appointed, created or settled by the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury for the time being, to be allowed to the said company for or in respect of the said redeemable debts and annuities; which said redeemable debts and annuities were subscribed, or pretended to be subscribed, at several high rates or prices in stock, exceeding the rate or price of four hundred per centum; and a general court of the said company, on or about the thirtieth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty, towards relieving those proprietors, did agree that the same redeemable debts and annuities, should be taken in at par, being one hundred pounds for each one hundred pounds principal money of those redeemable debts and annuities; and that the proprietors of the same should be entitled to the interest due thereon, until the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and be paid for the principal sums in the stock of the said company, at the rate of four hundred per centum, with an addition of ten per centum in stock for a dividend at Midsummer one thousand seven hundred and twenty: and whereas the said company, or their late court of directors, did exhibit, or cause to be exhibited, books for taking subscriptions of money for purchasing stock of the said company, commonly called the four money subscriptions; whereupon several persons or corporations did advance, or cause to be advanced, monies amounting to a large sum; and the general court of the said company, on or about the ninth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty, did resolve that no more money, than what had been then actually paid on the said four money subscriptions, should be demanded or insisted on, and that stock should be given for the money actually paid by the respective proprietors in the said first money subscriptions, at three hundred per centum, with the dividend of Midsummer one thousand seven hundred and twenty, of ten per centum in stock; and that stock should be given for the money actually paid by the respective proprietors in the said second money subscription, at four hundred per centum, with the like dividend; and a general court of the said company, on or about the eighteenth day of the said month of March one thousand seven hundred

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for better securing the duties on salt, it is enacted, That all curers of fish shall be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt-works or salt-pits any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law, for curing of fish for exportation, as they shall think proper, for curing fish for foreign markets, without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof; in consequence whereof all red herrings spent within this realm are or should be cured with salt that has paid the duties; but in regard the same are cured promiscuously, it is difficult to distinguish them from such as are intended to be exported, whereby his Majesty may be defrauded in his revenue without a proper remedy for preventing the same: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present excise or duties upon salt are hereby authorized and impowered to seize all such red herrings so removed or carried before entry and payment of duty, and all other things performed as aforesaid, and the said cask or vessels wherein they shall be found.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty-free for curing red herrings for exportation, his or their agent or agents, shall, in the account which after the end of every fishing season they are to deliver in writing into the salt-office, containing the quantity of fish exported or entred and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, as by the former law is directed (and under the penalties thereby prescribed) express also the quantity of red herrings entred for home consumption, on which such salt has been used or consumed.

IV. And whereas by the aforesaid act in the fifth year of his Majesty's reign, the proprietor or proprietors of salt delivered duty-free for the curing of fish for exportation are required at the end of every fishing season to deliver an account in writing into the salt-office, containing the quantity of fish exported or entred and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, together with a certificate or certificates by the proper officers of the several ports where the said fish were shipped for exportation, verifying the said account: and whereas it may happen, that such fish may never be exported, for want of an opportunity to ship them while they are good and merchantable, so that the proprietors of the salt can have no such certificate as is by the said act required: be it therefore enacted, That in such case the owner of the fish may cause them to be destroyed in the presence of an officer of the salt duties; and the officer's certificate that such fish were destroyed in his presence, shall be admitted to verify the account of the proprietor of the salt used in curing them, instead of the officer's certificate that they were shipped for exportation, required by the said act.

V. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the duties of excise on salt (which now amount to three shillings and four pence per bushel on home-made salt, and six shillings and eight pence per bushel on foreign salt) or any of them, shall cease, determine or be redeemed by parliament, then the rate or duty of one shilling and eight pence per thousand hereby imposed upon red herrings, shall cease or be lessened in proportion to the duties on salt that shall so cease, determine or be redeemed; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the first year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for raising nine hundred and ten thousand pounds for publick services by sale of annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, ties on salt, directions are given, that at the end of every fishing season, the officers for the duty on salt shall take a particular account of the quantity of foreign and British salt respectively remaining in hand, which remaining salt shall be immediately locked up in the joint custody of the said officer and proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents; and the proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, of the said salt, using the said salt as aforesaid, shall, as soon as possible, after the end of every fishing season, deliver an account in writing into the office for the duty on salt, containing the quantity of fish exported, or entred and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used and consumed, together with a certificate or certificates by the proper officer of the several ports where the said fish were shipped for exportation, which said account delivered into the said office as aforesaid, shall be affirmed by the oath of the said proprietor or proprietors, using the said salt as aforesaid, or his or their agent or agents, who have used the same; and such proprietor or proprietors, or other persons concerned, who shall for the space of six months after the end of every fishing season, neglect or refuse to deliver such account attested upon oath as aforesaid, such proprietor or proprietors, and such other person or persons as aforesaid, shall for every such offence forfeit forty pounds: and whereas some doubts have arisen touching the periods of the several fishing seasons, and that for the want of ascertaining the time when the accounts aforesaid were to be delivered to the proper officers, the merchants exporters of fish have in many places neglected to account for the salt received by them duty-free, under pretence that the fishing seasons have no end: for remedy whereof, and for the better securing of his Majesty's revenues, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such quantities of foreign or British salt, as have been delivered duty-free, into the sole custody of any person whatsoever, for the curing of fish for foreign markets, since the four and twentieth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and before the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, and which shall not be accounted for as the said act directs, on or before the five and twentieth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be accounted for as the said act directs, on or before the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, under the penalty of ten shillings per bushel, to be recovered of the proprietor or proprietors, person or persons to whom, or for whose use or account the said salt was delivered, for every bushel so delivered, to, or received by them duty-free, for the curing of fish for foreign markets.

C A P. VI.

An act for granting the people called Quakers, such forms of affirmation or declaration, as may remove the difficulties which many of them lie under.

WHEREAS for giving some ease to scrupulous consciences, an act was made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for exempting their Majesties protestant subjects, dissenting from the church of England, from the penalties of certain laws, whereby (among other things) a declaration of fidelity, in the form therein expressed, is appointed to be made and subscribed by certain persons, dissenters from the church of England, who scruple the taking of any oath: and whereas an act was made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act that the solemn affirmation and declaration of the people called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an oath in the usual form, under the provisions therein mentioned, which act being at first temporary, was afterwards farther continued by an act made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of his said late Majesty, and the same act is made perpetual by an act made in the first year of his present Majesty's reign, by which last mentioned act a form, importing the effect of the abjuration oath, is prescribed to be taken by the said people called Quakers: and whereas the inconveniencies to the said people called Quakers, and their families, and to others requiring their testimony, in many cases are not sufficiently avoided, by reason of difficulties among the said Quakers, relating to the forms of the declaration, affirmation and abjuration before mentioned, as the same are now prescribed: and whereas it is evident, that the said people called Quakers, have not abused the liberty and indulgence allowed to them by law, and they have given testimony of their fidelity and affection to his Majesty, and the settlement of the crown in the protestant line, and it is reasonable to give them farther ease and relief; may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That in all cases, where by law any Quaker is or shall be required or permitted to make and subscribe the declaration of fidelity in the form prescribed by the said first mentioned act, or to make the solemn affirmation or declaration in the form prescribed by the said act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or to take the effect of the abjuration oath in the form prescribed by the said act of the first year of his present Majesty's reign, every such Quaker shall, instead of such first mentioned declaration of fidelity, make and subscribe a declaration of fidelity in the following words, viz.

I A. B. do solemnly and sincerely promise and declare, That I will be true and faithful to King George; and do solemnly, sincerely, and truly profess, testify and declare, That I do from my heart abhor, detest and renounce, as impious and heretical, that wicked doctrine and position, That princes excommunicated or deprived by the pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, That no foreign prince, person, prelate, state or potentate, hath or ought to have, any power, jurisdiction, superiority, preeminence or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual within this realm.

And instead of the affirmation in 7 & 8 W. 3. shall make the following affirmation.

And instead of the solemn affirmation or declaration, in the form prescribed by the said act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, every such Quaker shall make the solemn declaration or affirmation following, viz.

The affirmation.

I A. B. do solemnly, sincerely, and truly declare and affirm,

And instead of the form of the abjuration by 1 Geo. 1. stat. 2. c. 6. shall take the effect thereof as follows. Effect of the abjuration oath.

And instead of the form prescribed by the said act of the first year of his present Majesty's reign, for the effect of the abjuration oath, every such Quaker shall take the effect thereof in the following words, viz.

I A. B. do solemnly, sincerely, and truly acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare, That King George is lawful and rightful King of this realm, and of all other his dominions and countries thereunto belonging; and I do solemnly and sincerely declare, That I do believe the person pretended to be the prince of Wales, during the life of the late King James, and since his decease, pretending to be, and taking upon himself the stile and title of King of England, by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland, by the name of James the Eighth, or the stile and title of King of Great Britain, hath not any right or title

And I do solemnly promise, that I will be true and faithful, and bear true allegiance to King George, and to him will be faithful against all traiterous conspiracies and attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his person, crown or dignity. And I will do my best endeavour to disclose and make known to King George, and his successors, all treasons and traiterous conspiracies, which I shall know to be made against him, or any of them. And I will be true and faithful to the succession of the crown against him the said James, and all other persons whatsoever, as the same is and stands settled by an act, intituled, An act declaring the rights and liberties of the subject, and settling the succession of the crown, to the late Queen Anne, and the heirs of her body, being protestants; and as the same, by one other act, intituled, An act for the further limitation of the crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject, is and stands settled and intailed, after the decease of the said late Queen, and for default of issue of the said late Queen, to the late princess Sophia, electress and dutchess dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being protestants. And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge, promise and declare, according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And I do make this recognition, acknowledgment, renunciation and promise, heartily, willingly and truly.

The persons required to administer the former declaration, shall administer the same in the words appointed by this act.

WHEREAS several places in foreign parts, having for some time past been, and still continuing to be visited with the plague, it may be judged necessary by his Majesty, for securing his kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, from so dreadful a calamity, to prohibit or restrain the commerce between his Majesty's subjects and those of any other country or place, which is or shall be infected with the plague: and whereas it will be requisite to enforce such prohibition or restraint by severe penalties; E X P.

CAP. X.

An act for repealing such clauses in the act passed in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign (relating to quarantine and the plague) as give power to remove persons from their habitations, or to make lines about places infected.

WHEREAS by an act passed in the seventh year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for repealing an act made in the ninth year of the reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act to oblige ships coming from places infected, more effectually to perform their quarantine; and for the better preventing the plague being brought from foreign parts into Great Britain or Ireland, or the isles of Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, Sark or Man; and to hinder the spreading of infection, it is, amongst other things enacted, That if any person infected with the plague, or obliged to perform quarantine, shall wilfully refuse or neglect to repair within convenient time, after due notice for that purpose given to him, her or them, by the proper officer, to the ship, house, lazaret, or other place, duly appointed for him, her or them, or having been placed in such ship, house, lazaret, or other place, shall escape, or attempt to escape out of the same, whilst he, she or they shall continue infected, or before quarantine fully performed respectively, it shall and may be lawful to and for the watchmen, and other persons appointed to see quarantine performed, by any kind of violence, that the case shall require, to compel every such person so refusing or neglecting as aforesaid;

An act for restoring and rebuilding the haven and piers of Bridport in the county of Dorset, and for making a sluice there. perform quarantine, &c.

WHEREAS good harbours and ports for shipping are the greatest encouragement to trade and navigation, upon which the riches and strength of this kingdom do chiefly depend: and whereas the borough or town of Bridport in the county of Dorset, was heretofore by reason of the haven or port there, a place of great trade and commerce, and as such hath been taken notice of by several charters of his Majesty's royal predecessors, and other ancient records; but by reason of a great sickness, which heretofore happened in the said borough or town, and swept away the greatest part of the wealthy inhabitants thereof, and by other accidents, the said haven became neglected and choaked with sands, and the piers thereof fell to ruin, to the great decay of the trade of the said borough; and as now there is no security for ships that happen to come, or be driven by stress of weather into the deep and dangerous bay, wherein the said haven formerly was, shipwrecks frequently happen, and the lives and estates of many of his Majesty's subjects are lost, which might be prevented, if the said haven and piers were restored and rebuilt with proper and convenient sluice or sluices to scour and cleanse the same, and the ancient trade of the said borough thereby might be revived, his Majesty's customs much augmented, and the value of lands adjacent be greatly improved: in the end therefore that the said haven or harbour, and piers, may be restored and rebuilt, and such sluice and sluices made, with proper and convenient keys, wharfs and landing-places, for loading and unloading of ships; be it enacted, &c.

The bailiffs and capital burgeses of Bridport in Com. Dorset. appointed trustees for repairing the haven and piers there, &c. And they or their assigns may, after June 24, 1721, assign a place near Bridport Mouth, where the said harbour, piers, sluices, &c. shall be made, where the materials shall be laid, &c. The major part of the bailiffs, &c. may remove rocks and stones on the sea-shore, within three miles from Bridport Mouth; may have free passage, &c. But they shall agree with the owners, &c. of the ground. If any persons refuse to agree, or through disability cannot, two justices of Dorsetshire may issue precepts to the sheriff of that county, for impanelling a jury. The sheriff to return twenty four qualified persons, to whom the parties interested may have legal challenges. The first twelve being sworn, shall assess damages to the proprietors. The justices to give judgment for the sums assessed. There shall be paid to the collectors for every weigh of salt, last of wheat, rye, &c. chaldron of coals and tun of other goods, imported and exported, 12 d. Every ship, &c. of ten tun burthen, or above, to pay 2 d. per tun. The bailiffs, &c. may convey the duties as a security for money borrowed. When the bailiffs, &c. are repaid the money laid out, the duties shall cease: and from thenceforth each weigh of salt, last of wheat, &c. chaldron of coals and tun of other goods, &c. imported or exported, shall pay only 6 d. And each ship, &c. 1 d. per tun. Saving to the lords of Symondsbury, Burton and Bothenhampton, all their rights, &c.

An act giving further encouragement for the importation of naval stores, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

12 Ann. Stat. 1.
c. 9.

WHEREAS in the third and fourth years of the reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne, a good law was made for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America, by an act which commenced the first day of January one thousand seven hundred and five, and continued from thence forward for the space of nine years; and by an act made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, the aforesaid act is continued from the time of the expiration of the same, for the further term of eleven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament; and by the act last mentioned, encouragement is given for the importation of naval stores from that part of Great Britain called Scotland, to that part of Great Britain called England, during the remainder of the time limited for granting premiums to the importers of naval stores from America, by the said acts: and whereas, in consequence of the said encouragement, it is found by experience that great quantities of good and merchantable pitch and tar (part of the naval stores mentioned in the said acts) have been imported into this kingdom from the said plantations in America, which pitch and tar have been found useful for the service of his Majesty's navy, and it is necessary to give further encouragement therein: and whereas it is probable that the owners of large tracts of land in the said plantations, and in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, lying near the sea; and upon navigable rivers, would be induced to sow the same with hemp, if farther encouragement were given for that purpose: may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the premium or reward of six pounds, given by the said acts for every ton of hemp water-rotted, bright and clean, each ton containing twenty gross hundreds and six pounds, shall be continued from the expiration of the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, for and during the term of sixteen years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and shall be paid and payable in the same manner, and under the same rules, methods and restrictions, as are prescribed in and by the said former acts or either of them, touching the same; and all such hemp, being lawfully imported into this kingdom after the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be free and clear of and from all duties, customs and impositions whatsoever, payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors; any law, custom or other matter or thing to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

barrel boards, clap boards, pipe boards, or pipe holt, white boards for shoemakers, boom and cant spars, bow staves, capravens, clap holt, ebony wood, headings for pipes, and for hogsheds and barrels, hoops for coopers, oars, pipe and hoghead staves, barrel staves, firkin staves, trunnels, speckled wood, sweet wood, small spars, oak, plank and wainscot, or some of them, have usually been imported into this kingdom from foreign countries at excessive rates or prices, especially in time of war, and foreigners have thereby found opportunities to export the coined monies of this realm; and it is well known that the said commodities, being of the growth and product of his Majesty's plantations in America, may be furnished from thence, if due encouragement was given in that behalf; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons, who, within the term of one and twenty years, to be reckoned from the four and twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall import or cause to be imported into Great Britain, directly from any of his Majesty's British plantations or colonies in America, in any ship or vessel, ships or vessels, which may lawfully trade to or from his Majesty's said plantations or colonies, and which shall be navigated according to law, any sort of wood, plank or timber whatsoever, wrought or unwrought, or any of the goods called lumber, before in this act enumerated, such wood, plank, timber and lumber, being of the growth and product of the said plantations or colonies, or some of them, (except masts, yards and bowsprights, touching which duties and premiums are ascertained by former acts in that behalf) shall and may import the same free from all customs and impositions whatsoever, granted to his Majesty, his heirs or successors.

Lignum Vita may be imported duty-free by 1 Geo. 2. stat. 2. c. 17. s. 5.

III. And to the end his Majesty's royal navy may, from time to time, have the benefit of so much of such hemp, as shall be requisite for the service thereof; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the importation of any hemp, for which any bounty or premium is by this or any former act given, the pre-emption or refusal of such hemp shall be offered and tendered to the commissioners of his Majesty's navy, or some of their agents for the time being, upon landing the same; and if within the space of twenty days after such tender, the said commissioners shall not contract or bargain for the same, it shall be lawful for the importer or importers, owner or owners of such hemp, otherwise to dispose thereof, as by law they may, for his, her or their best profit and advantage.

And whereas in and by the said act, made in the third and fourth years of her said late Majesty Queen Anne, [intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America,] a reward or premium was given for tar, brought into this kingdom directly from her Majesty's plantations in America, after the rate of four pounds for every ton of good and merchantable tar, under such rules, regulations, and provisos, as are therein mentioned; which act was continued by one other act made in the twelfth year of the same reign, [intituled, An act for continuing an act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of her present Majesty, intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America; and for encouraging the importation of naval stores from that part of Great Britain called Scotland to that part of Great Britain called England, and is still in force; and by the said last mentioned act the like reward or premium of four pounds per ton, was extended to and given for tar brought from that part of Great Britain called Scotland to that part of Great Britain called England, under the like rules, regulations, and provisos, as in the case of plantation tar: and whereas by one other act passed in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act against the clandestine running of uncustomed goods; and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, the said reward or premium is to be allowed for such tar only as should be clean, good, merchantable, and well conditioned, and fit for making cordage; and nevertheless, the tar imported from the said plantations has hitherto been found to retain an hot and thick quality, whereby it is not so fit for making cordage, as the East country tar: wherefore for remedy thereof for the future and to the end his Majesty's navy may have the benefits intended by the said acts, in being supplied with plantation tar fit for making cordage; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, no certificate be made out by any officer of his Majesty's customs, in any port of this kingdom, for any tar which shall be imported into this kingdom, from any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, nor any bill made out by the commissioners or principal officers of his Majesty's navy, whereby to entitle the importer of such tar to any reward or premium, unless the certificate of the governor, lieutenant-governor, collector of the customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, (which certificate is by the said act of the third and fourth years of the reign of her said late Majesty Queen Anne, directed to be by them made out in such terms, manner and form, and for such intents and purposes as are therein mentioned) do express, That it has appeared to them (the persons so certifying) by the oath of the owner or maker of the tar, for which such certificate shall be granted (such oath to be made before any justice of the peace within the colony or plantation where such tar shall be made, who is hereby authorized to administer the same) that the tar therein mentioned was made from green trees prepared for that purpose, after the following manner; that is to say, That when such trees were fit to bark, the bark thereof was stript eight foot, or thereabouts, up from the root of each tree, a slip of the bark of about four inches in breadth having been left on one side of each tree; and that each tree, after having been so bark'd, had stood during one year at the least, and was not before cut down for the making of tar; any thing herein, or in any former law to the contrary notwithstanding.

CAP. XV.

An act for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom; and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported; and for reducing the duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves and nutmegs imported; and for the importation of all furs of the product of the British plantations, into this kingdom only; and that the two corporations of assurance, on any suits brought on their policies shall be liable only to single damages and costs of suit.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, whereas the wealth and prosperity of this kingdom doth very much depend upon the improvement of its manufactures, and the profitable trade carried on by the exportation of the same, which trade ought, by all proper means, to be encouraged, for the more comfortable support and maintenance of great numbers of your Majesty's subjects employed in the making or working of such goods, and for the enlargement of the commerce of Great Britain: and whereas the manufacture of silk, stuffs, and of stuffs mixed with silk, which is one of the most considerable branches of the manufactures of this kingdom, has of late years, been greatly improved in this kingdom, and there is reason to believe, that the exportation of them into foreign parts would considerably increase, were it not obstructed and hindered by reason of the high duties payable upon the importation of raw and thrown silk, without any allowance being made upon the said silks, when wrought up and exported; and in regard the said raw and thrown silk, when exported unmanufactured, do draw back great part of the duties paid inwards; and it seems just and reasonable that the said silks, when made up, should also enjoy the same benefit and allowance upon the exportation of them; and for that there is a waste of the raw and thrown silk, used in the manufacture: therefore we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do humbly pray your Majesty, That it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority

II. And for the better preventing frauds in the entering any of the said goods under a wrong denomination, to the prejudice of the revenue, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any searcher, or other proper officer of the customs, after the entry of any of the said goods, and before or after the shipping thereof, to open and strictly examine any bale, truss, chest, or other package, as now by law they may do, to see if the goods are right entered; and if on such examination the same shall be found to be right entered, the officer shall at his own charge cause the same to be repacked, to the satisfaction of the exporter, which charge shall be allowed to the said officer by the commissioners of the customs, if they think it reasonable; but in case the said officer shall find the said goods, or any part thereof, to have been entered under a wrong denomination, whereby his Majesty would have been defrauded in the allowance to be paid on the exportation of such goods, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, all such goods so wrong entered shall and may be seized, and the same, as likewise the value thereof, shall be forfeited

IV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the said silk, stuffs, or other manufactures aforesaid, shipped to be exported, for which allowance is hereby made, shall be reloaded or unshipped in any port or place in Great Britain, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, without the licence of one or more of the principal officers of such port or place, first had and obtained, or unless it be in case of distress to save the said goods from perishing, which shall be forthwith made known to one of the said officers, the goods (over and above the penalty of the bond to be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use as aforesaid) and treble the value of such goods shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in the manner herein after mentioned.

VII. And for the further encouragement of the British manufactures, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty-fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the several and respective subsidies and other duties whatsoever, payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, by any law now in force, upon the exportation of any goods and merchandizes of the product or manufactures of

XI. And to the end the encouragement given to the manufactures of this kingdom, in allowing the before mentioned foreign drugs, or other goods used in dying, to be imported duty-free, according to the true meaning of this act, may in no wise tend to the benefit of manufactures made in foreign parts, as it may do, should such drugs, or other goods used in dying, be again carried out of this kingdom, without paying any duty for the same, whereby they may be sold in foreign markets so much cheaper: we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do give and grant to your Majesty, and do humbly beseech your Majesty, That it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and upon all foreign goods, commodities, or materials used in dying, which shall be imported into this kingdom free of duty by virtue of this present act, and which, from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be again exported thereout, there shall be paid and answered to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; a subsidy of poundage upon the value of twenty shillings, according to the several rates and values hereafter mentioned, the sum of six pence, and so after that rate for greater or lesser quantities; that is to say,

XXV. And whereas by an act passed in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better securing certain powers and privileges intended to be granted by his Majesty by two charters, for assurance of ships and merchandizes at sea; and for lending money on bottomry; and for restraining several extravagant and unwarrantable practices therein mentioned, his Majesty was enabled to erect two distinct corporations for assurance of ships, goods and merchandizes at sea, or going to sea, and for other purposes therein mentioned; which said corporations are by the said act obliged, from time to time, during the continuance of the same corporations respectively, to cause such a stock of ready money to be provided and reserved, as shall be sufficient to answer, from time to time, all just demands upon their policies of assurance for any losses whatsoever which shall happen, and to satisfy, pay and discharge the same demands, from time to time, according to the tenors of their respective policies of assurance, and the true meaning of the said act; and in case of refusal and neglect to pay the same, the said corporations are by the said act respectively subjected to pay double damages, besides full costs of suit; to be recovered by action, bill, suit or information in any of Majesty's courts of record at Westminster: and whereas his Majesty hath been graciously pleased (pursuant to the said act) to erect two distinct corporations for the purposes aforesaid, one by the name and title of the governor and company of the Royal Exchange assurance, and the other by the name and title of the governor and company of the London assurance; and the said corporations have accordingly provided stocks of ready money for answering the purposes of the said act, but do find themselves under discouragements and inconveniencies by being subjected to pay double damages, besides full costs of suit in actions, which they cannot avoid, there being no provision in the said act to oblige the parties assured, to make discovery to the said corporations of their true losses, before any action brought; and unreasonable suits in doubtful cases are encouraged, for the sake of such double damages, and full costs: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said recited act, as subjects the said corporations, or either of them, to pay double damages, besides full costs of suit, shall be and is hereby repealed; and that in all cases where by the said act or charters the said corporations, or either of them, are subjected to pay double damages, beside full costs of suit, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall recover against the same corporation or corporations only single damages, and full costs of suit; any thing in the said recited act, or in the charters of the said corporations, or either of them, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Royal Exchange assurance and London assurance, liable to single damages and costs of suit only.

C A P. XVI.

An act for taking off the duty upon all salt used in the curing and making of white herrings, and instead thereof laying a proportionable duty upon all white herrings consumed at home only; and for making an allowance for tobacco exported from Scotland, in the time therein mentioned; and for giving a farther relief to the refiners of rock salt.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for better securing the duties on salt; it is enacted, That all curers of fish shall be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt-works or salt-pits, any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law, for curing of fish for exportation, as they shall think proper for curing fish for foreign markets, without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof; in consequence whereof, all white herrings spent within this realm, are or should be cured with salt that has paid the duties; but in regard the same are cured promiscuously, it is difficult to distinguish them from such as are intended to be exported, whereby his Majesty may be defrauded in his revenue, without a proper remedy for preventing the same; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled,

At beginning of fishing-season for herrings, proprietors, &c. in England, &c. instead of the oath required by the act 5 Geo. 1. to make oath of the quantity of salt intended for curing fish for exportation, &c.

Except salt used for curing white herrings for home consumption, &c.

Curer of white herrings, after 25 March 1722. before he remove them (except for exportation) to make entry, and pay 3s. 4d. per barrel, &c. These duties revised by 5 Geo. 2. c. 6. s. 3. Quantity to be marked on casks. Upon entry, &c. permit to be given gratis.

and by the authority of the same, That at the beginning of every fishing-season for herrings, the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty-free for the curing of herrings for exportation, in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and Berwick upon Tweed, pursuant to the said act, or his or their agent or agents, shall, instead of the oath required by the said act, make oath in writing before the officer for the duty on salt, at the office nearest to the place where the said salt is lodged (who is hereby empowered to administer the same) declaring the quantity of the foreign or British salt respectively lodged for curing of fish, and that all the said salt is intended for the curing of fish for exportation only, and shall not, by his or their order, consent or connivance, directly or indirectly, be sold, given away, or any way delivered, but for the purpose aforesaid; except so much thereof as shall be used for curing such white herrings, as shall be entred with the officer of the place for home consumption, and charged with the duties by this act chargeable thereupon.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every maker or curer of white herrings, in that part of Great Britain call England, Wales and Berwick upon Tweed, from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, before he remove any white herrings (except for exportation) from the office or place where the same shall be cured, shall, from time to time, make entry thereof at the next salt-office, and shall pay to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, a duty of three shillings and four pence for every barrel, containing thirty two gallons, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity: and that every cask or vessel in which such white herrings shall be packed or put up, shall have a mark or marks on the head thereof, shewing the contents or quantity of every such cask or vessel; and upon entry and payment of the duty (each cask or vessel being marked as aforesaid) a permit shall be given gratis by the salt-officer, expressing the quantity of white herrings, for which the duties shall be paid as aforesaid, and the marks and numbers of such casks or vessels, and for what place the same are intended, and whether to be sent by land or water carriage, on pain of forfeiting the white herrings that shall be removed or carried away before entry be made, and the duty paid, and without the casks or vessels being marked, and permit obtained as aforesaid, and of the casks or vessels, in which such herrings shall be found, and also the sum of forty shillings for every cask or vessel so removed, to be recovered from the person or persons who shall so remove or carry away the same; one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer or officers who shall seize, see or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered and levied in such manner, and with such power of mitigation, as any fine, penalty or forfeiture, may be sued for, recovered, levied and mitigated by any law of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no assize, protection, privilege or wager of law shall shall be granted or allowed, not any more than one imparlance; and all officers of his Majesty's customs, excise or duties upon salt, are hereby authorized and impowered to seize all such white herrings so removed or carried away before entry, and payment of duty, and all other things performed as aforesaid, and the said casks or vessels wherein such white herrings shall be found.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty-free, for curing white herrings for exportation, in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales and Berwick upon Tweed, his or their agent or agents, shall, in the account which after the end of every fishing-season, they are to deliver in writing into the salt-office, containing the quantity of fish exported or entered, and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, as by the former law is directed (and under the penalties thereby prescribed) express also the quantity of white herrings entered for home consumption, on which such salt has been used or consumed.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the duties of excise on salt (which now amount to three shillings and four pence per bushel on home-made salt, and six shillings and eight pence per bushel on foreign salt) or any of them, shall cease, determine or be redeemed by parliament, then the rate or duty by this act imposed upon white herrings shall cease, or be lessened in proportion to the duties on salt that shall so cease, determine or be redeemed; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And whereas an act passed in the eighth year of her late Majesty's reign, for continuing several impositions, additional impositions, and duties upon goods imported, to raise money by way of loan; for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten; and for better preventing frauds on drawbacks upon certificate goods, and for other purposes therein mentioned; in which act there were several regulations enacted to be complied with, in order to entitle the exporters of tobaccos to their debentures; which new regulations being made to commence from the seven and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and ten, by which time the same could not be known in Scotland, several parcels of tobaccos through ignorance were exported from thence, without regard to the regulation laid down in the said act, the debentures of which tobaccos have been refused to be made forth and allowed to the merchants upon that account only; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all tobaccos exported from Scotland after the seven and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and ten, and before the seventh day of May next following, the barons of the exchequer in Scotland shall cause the debentures to be made forth and allowed to the merchants, according to the law then in force, before the seven and twentieth day of March one thousand seven

VI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for better securing the duties on salt; it is enacted, That the curers of fish shall be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt-works or salt-pits any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law for curing fish for exportation, as they shall think proper for curing fish for foreign markets without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof: and whereas the refiners of salt from rock-salt cannot have equal benefit of the said act with the proprietors of other salt, the said refiners being obliged to pay, or give security to pay, the duty before the rock-salt be removed from the pits, and cannot draw it back, there being no provision made in what manner the said duty shall be drawn back; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, it shall and may be lawful for any refiner of rock-salt to deliver in the presence of an officer of the salt-duties, to any curer or curers of fish, any such quantity of refined salt, where the same is allowed by law for curing fish for exportation, as they shall think proper for curing fish for foreign markets; and the collector of the salt-duties shall give a certificate under his hand, expressing the true quantity delivered, and to whom, and whither to be carried; and the officer of the place whither the same shall be carried for the curing of fish for foreign markets, shall give a certificate of the true quantity brought thither, and lodged in a warehouse under the lock and key of the said officer, as well as the proprietor of the said salt; and if it shall appear to be the full quantity that was first delivered (making reasonable allowance for waste) such certificate shall be accepted by the collector of the duties on salt at the rock-pits, towards discharging the security given for the duty on the rock-salt made use of in making the said refined salt; and that upon the warehousing any such refined salt, or any other salt delivered duty-free, for the curing fish for foreign markets, that has been brought by sea in any ship or vessel whatsoever, the master or his mate, or the boatswain of such ship or vessel, shall make oath before the officer of the salt duties (who is hereby impowered to administer the same) that all the salt he took in or loaded at the place of loading (mentioning the quantity) is truly delivered to be lodged in a warehouse under the lock and key of the officer, and that there was no salt added to it or taken from it at such place of loading, or since he came from it, to the best of his knowledge and belief, under the penalty of forfeiting double the value of the salt that shall be otherwise delivered, and ten shillings per bushel; and if it shall happen that the vessel on which such refined salt as aforesaid, is shipped, shall either perish at sea, or be taken by enemies, with such salt on board her, that in such case any merchant or person, owner of the said salt, shall, upon proof made before the justices of the peace at the quarter-sessions held for the county, riding, division or town, wherein he doth inhabit, of the loss of such salt so shipped, receive from the said sessions a certificate that such proof was made before them; and upon producing the said certificate to the collector of the salt-duties at the rock-pits, such certificate shall be accepted by such collector, towards discharging the security given for the duty on the rock-salt made use of in making such refined salt.

An act for more equal paying and better collecting certain small sums therein mentioned, for relief of shipwrecked mariners, and distressed persons (his Majesty's subjects) in the kingdom of Portugal; and for other pious and charitable purposes usually contributed to by the merchants trading to Portugal.

WHEREAS it is just and reasonable that all British merchants trading to Portugal, should proportionably contribute to the relief of shipwrecked mariners, and other distressed persons, your Majesty's subjects there, and to the other pious and charitable purposes herein after mentioned: and whereas it hath been usual for the consul general for the time being, appointed for all persons trading from the kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland, to the kingdoms and dominions of Portugal, or his deputy consuls, with the majority of the British merchants and factors there, to receive and recover (for the purposes aforesaid) from all British merchants and factors residing in Portugal, and all others your Majesty's subjects trading thither from any of your Majesty's dominions, so much money as should not exceed four Reis per Mill Reis, upon the valuation of their goods in the customhouse of Lisbon; and for all corn, grain, butter, and other goods, which pay no custom to the King of Portugal, so much money as should not exceed four Reis per Mill Reis, and what they should be valued at, to be paid to such treasurer as should be annually chosen by such consul, and the majority of the British merchants and factors, in the same manner as two Reis per Mill for relief of shipwrecked mariners, and other distressed persons, your Majesty's subjects, have been usually collected; and that such treasurer should, out of the said money, pay yearly to the minister residing there, three hundred Mill Reis per annum, for his maintenance and subsistence, to pray, preach and exercise his ministerial function; and that the remainder of the said money should be disposed of, from time to time, according to the directions of the said consul, with the majority of the said merchants and factors: and whereas several persons have of late consigned goods and merchandizes exported from this kingdom, Ireland, and other your Majesty's dominions, unto strangers and foreigners residing at Lisbon, and elsewhere in the dominions of the King of Portugal, and have thereby not only eluded the pious and charitable purposes aforesaid, but have occasioned an unequal charge on your Majesty's other trading subjects: and whereas it will be for the ease and advantage of your Majesty's subjects in general trading to Portugal, to alter the payments before-mentioned, and put the national expence of the said trade upon a just and equitable foot: may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, it shall be lawful to and for such person or persons as shall be authorized and appointed, from time to time, by the majority of the British merchants and factors residing in Portugal, being assembled with the consul general for the time being, appointed or to be appointed for your Majesty's subjects trading to Portugal, or with his deputy-consul or deputy-consuls, or any of them, in any of the ports or places in Portugal, or any of the dominions thereof, to receive and recover from all masters, or other chief officers or commanders of all British ships or vessels trading from Great Britain or Ireland, or any other part of your Majesty's dominions, to any of the kingdoms or dominions of the King of Portugal, the following sums (to be employed for the pious and charitable purposes here-in mentioned) that is to say, any sum or sums of money not exceeding two hundred Reis per ton, on all tonnage goods, (except wheat, barley, rye, coals, timber, boards and lumber) and any sum or sums of money not exceeding one hundred Reis per ton, on all wheat, barley, rye, coals, timber, boards and lumber; and any sum or sums of money, not exceeding fifteen per centum on the freight of all other goods and merchandizes exported from any of your Majesty's dominions to Lisbon, or any other port or place in any of the dominions of the King of Portugal, and all bills of lading of such ships and vessels, shall specify to pay the said monies accordingly, under the denomination of contribution, as per act of parliament, or to that effect; and the persons paying the same shall be reimbursed by their respective freighters, or by the persons to whom the said goods and merchandizes shall be consigned, or who shall receive the same: and in case no bill of lading shall appear, or no freight or tonnage is settled between the owner or owners of the goods or merchandizes and the master or commander of any British ship or vessel trading as aforesaid, then the freight or tonnage of such goods or merchandizes shall be valued by two indifferent British merchants on the place; one to be chosen and appointed by the consul general, or his deputy consul, and the other by the master or commander of such ship or vessel, within ten days next after unlading the said goods; and in case the two persons so chosen shall not agree and award the same in five days next after such appointment, such two persons shall then chuse a third person (being a British merchant on the place) as an umpire who shall decide and determine the said valuation of freight or tonnage in three three days, and such sums shall be paid in either case (for the purposes aforesaid) as shall be agreeable to this act.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all masters, commanders, or other chief officers of all British ships and vessels, trading from Great Britain or Ireland, or any other of your Majesty's dominions, to any of the dominions of the King of Portugal, and unloading or delivering the ship or vessel, or any of the cargo there, shall, within ten days after the arrival of such ship or vessel, deliver to the consul general, or deputy consul residing there, or to such other person or persons as shall be appointed for that purpose, as aforesaid, a true manifest in writing upon oath, specifying the particulars of the whole cargo of such ship and vessel so unloaded or delivered, or of such part thereof as shall be unloaded or delivered there, and to whom consigned, which oath such consul general, deputy consul, or other person or persons to be appointed as aforesaid, is and are hereby respectively impowered and required to administer gratis, upon request.

All masters, &c. within ten days after their arrival in Portugal, to deliver on oath to the consul general, &c. a manifest of the cargo, &c.

III. And for better collecting the payment of the said monies herein before directed to be paid for the pious and charitable purposes aforesaid; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said consul general or his deputy consul, in any of the dominions of the King of Portugal, shall, and they are hereby respectively authorized and required to detain the clearances outward of all such British or Irish ships and vessels, and not to give or deliver any dispatch or passport for any such ship or vessel, until payment be made, as aforesaid.

An act to prevent the clandestine running of goods and the danger of infection thereby; and to prevent ships breaking their quarantine; and to subject copper-ore of the production of the British plantations to such regulations, as other enumerated commodities of the like production are subject.

FORASMUCH as the laws already made to prevent the secret landing of prohibited and uncushtomed goods have been found insufficient for that purpose, it being notorious that such infamous and pernicious practices are still continued in open defiance of the laws, to the great diminution of the publick revenues, the discouragement of honest traders, and during the time of infection abroad, to the endangering the health and lives of many thousands of his Majesty's innocent subjects, by bringing into this kingdom, from infected places, goods apt to retain infection: and whereas by an act passed in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncushtomed goods; and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, it was enacted, That any ship, ship, vessel or boat of the burthen of fifteen tons, or under, wherein any brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters or spirits of any kind whatsoever should be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven or creek thereof (except as therein is excepted) such ship, vessel or boat, with all her tackle, furniture and apparel, or the value thereof, should be forfeited and lost, and should and might be seized, recovered, broke up and sold, as therein mentioned, which forfeiture is, by an act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office and house-money, extended to vessels of thirty tuns: and whereas to elude the intent of the said laws many persons do now carry on a clandestine trade by importing those goods in ships and vessels above the burthen of thirty tuns: for the prevention thereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any foreign brandy, arrack, strong waters or spirits of any kind whatsoever shall, from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven or creek thereof, in any ship, vessel or boat of the burthen of forty tuns or under, according to the admeasurement prescribed in the last mentioned act (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship, vessel or boat, not exceeding two gallons for each such seaman) every such ship, vessel or boat, with all her tackle, furniture and apparel, as also all such brandy, arrack, strong waters or spirits, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in such manner and form, as is prescribed in the said acts concerning ships, vessels and boats of fifteen or thirty tuns as aforesaid; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

means of bringing in the infection: for the preventing whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, if any boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, rowing or made or built to row with more than four oars, shall be found upon the water or in any bargehouse, workhouse, shed or other place within any of the counties of Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, or Essex, or in the river of Thames either above or below London-Bridge, or within the limits of the ports of London, Sandwich or Ipswich, or the members or creeks to them, or either of them respectively belonging, such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, with all her tackle and furniture, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs; and the owner or owners thereof, or any person using or rowing in such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, shall also forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds; and such seizure and forfeiture shall and may be prosecuted in the manner herein after mentioned; and after the seizure and condemnation of such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, the principal officers of his Majesty's customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of such condemnation, are hereby directed to cause such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley to be burnt and wholly destroyed, and the tackle, furniture and apparel thereunto belonging to be publicly sold to the best advantage, the produce whereof to be divided as herein after mentioned; the reasonable charges of prosecuting, selling and burning as aforesaid being first deducted.

IV. Provided always, That this act shall not extend or be construed to extend to any barge or galley belonging to or to belong to his Majesty, or the royal family, or any of them, or to any long-boat, yaul or pinnace belonging to and used in the service of any merchant-ship or vessel, or to such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, as shall be licensed by the lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, or the major part of the same commissioners for the time being; which licences shall be in writing, signed by the said lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, or the major part of such commissioners for the time being, and shall be granted without any fee or charge whatsoever.

V. Provided always, That no such licence shall be granted, but upon sufficient security to be given to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by the owner or owners of such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, by bond, in such penalty as the lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral for the time being, shall find to be reasonable, with condition that the same shall not be made use of in the clandestine running of uncustomed and prohibited goods; which security the said lord high admiral, or the commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, who shall grant such licence, licence, are hereby impowered and required to take for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Persons passing from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two all and every person and persons, who shall be found passing (knowingly and willingly) with any foreign goods or commodities landed from any ship or vessel, without the due entry and payment of the duties by law charged thereon, in his, her or their custody, from any of the coasts, of this kingdom, or within the space of twenty miles of any of the said coasts, and shall be more than five persons in company, or shall carry any offensive arms or weapons, or wear any visard, mask or other disguise, when passing with such goods or commodities as aforesaid, or shall forcibly hinder or resist any of the officers of the customs or excise in the seizing or securing any sorts or kinds of run goods or commodities, shall be deemed and taken to be runners of foreign goods and commodities within the meaning of this present act, and (being convicted of or for any of the said offences, for which he, she or they so convicted are by this present act declared to be deemed and taken to be runners of foreign goods and commodities) shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall, for such his, her or their offences, be transported as a felon to some or one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, there to remain for the space of seven years, in the same manner as felons are appointed to be transported by an act made in the fourth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the preventing of robbery, burglary and other felonies; and for the more effectual transportation of felons and unlawful exporters of wool; and for declaring the law in some points against pirates; and by another act made in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery and burglary and other felonies; and for the more effectual transportation of felons; and if any such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland before the expiration of the said seven years, he, she or they so returning shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against him, her or them, as persons attainted of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Persons passing with foreign goods landed without entry, and being more than five, and resisting officers, &c. to be transported.

6 Geo. 1. c. 23.

Returning into Great Britain or Ireland, felony.

VII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if any runner of foreign goods or commodities as aforesaid shall, within two months after such his offence, and before his conviction, discover two or more of his accomplices therein to the commissioners of the customs or excise in England or Scotland respectively, so as they, or two of them at least, be convicted of such offence, the offender or offenders so discovering shall have and receive the sum of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, as a reward for such his discovery; so as the value of the goods recovered for the use of his Majesty on such discovery shall exceed the sum of fifty pounds; and such person so discovering shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his or her offence.

Offender before conviction discovering two accomplices within two months, to have 40 l. for each, and acquitted, &c.

VIII. And

Other persons discovering in three months, to have 40l.
over and above
any other reward.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, if any other person or persons shall, within three months after such offence shall have been committed, discover to the said commissioners respectively any person or persons who shall have been guilty of such offence, so as such offender or offenders be convicted thereof, such discoverer or discoverers shall have and receive the like reward of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, over and above any other reward or recompence, which he or they may be entitled unto, on account of the goods so carried or conveyed away, which shall be recovered by means of such his or their discovery, or on account of the penalties which shall be recovered for the running of the said goods, so as the value of the said goods recovered for the use of his Majesty on such discovery shall exceed the sum of fifty pounds.

Reward to be paid by the receivers general and cashiers of the customs and excise, by order of the commissioners in England and Scotland
respectively.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs and excise in England and Scotland respectively shall cause the several rewards of forty pounds for the discovery of the offenders before-mentioned, to be paid by the respective receiver general or cashier of the customs and excise for the time being, out of any publick money in his or their hands under the management of the said commissioners, in proportion to the duties payable on the goods so clandestinely run, for which such person or persons shall be convicted, upon producing to them a certificate or certificates under the hand of the judge or justice of the court before whom such offender or offenders shall be tried, certifying the conviction of the offender or offenders, and the money paid by any receiver general or cashier as aforesaid shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts, as so much money paid to his Majesty, and such receiver general or cashier is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Persons receiving goods, &c. clandestinely run, &c. forfeit 20l.

X. And forasmuch as the persons using such clandestine trade are greatly encouraged to continue the same, by reason great numbers of persons, for their private lucre, receive and buy the goods and merchandizes so by them clandestinely imported contrary to law, which may be a means of bringing in the infection: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall receive or buy any goods, wares or merchandizes so clandestinely run or imported, before the same shall have legally been condemned, knowing the same to be so clandestinely run or imported, and shall be thereof lawfully convicted upon his, her or their appearance or default, upon the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or by the confession of the party, by one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county, division, or liberty where such offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found (which oath such justice or justices of the peace are hereby required to administer) the person so convicted shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds; one moiety moiety thereof to the informer, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed, the same to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal or hands and seals of such justice or justices before whom such offender shall be convicted as aforesaid; and for want of such distress every such offender shall by such justice or justices be committed to prison, there to remain without bail or mainprize for the space of three months.

XI. And whereas several considerable dealers in foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters have and keep very large stocks or quantities of foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters for sale, many whereof live upon or near the coasts of this kingdom, and thereby have or may have opportunities for furnishing themselves with the said brandy, spirits or strong waters, either by running the same themselves, or procuring it from others who have or shall run it: and whereas many of the said dealers are gotten into a practice of receiving into their custody great quantities of spirits made in this kingdom, which for the most part are brought to them from London, with permit or certificate that the duties of the same have been paid, which spirits are either drawn so low, or by mixing the same with water made of so mean a quality, that of themselves they are of little or no value, and by having those spirits in their custody, the said dealers have opportunities of increasing their stocks of foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, which they either run themselves, or procure others to do it for them; and when such increase is discovered by the officers of the excise, the same is pretended to have been made by a mixture of the said mean British spirits with their foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, whereas in truth they really destroy the said British spirits, and do not mix the same with their foreign goods, whereby the practice of running the same is become difficult to be found out and discovered, and the pernicious trade of running the said foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters successfully carried on: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two all dealers in foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, who shall then have, or from thenceforth receive into their custody, any British spirits, shall keep the same separate and apart, and in separate cellars, vaults or other places, from their foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, upon pain of forfeiting the sum of ten shillings for every gallon of British spirits which shall be found in any vault, cellar or other place where any dealer in foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters shall have or keep any foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, together with the casks and other vessels wherein the same British spirits shall be found.

All dealers in foreign brandy, &c. to keep them separate from British spirits, on penalty of 10s. for every gallon British, and forfeiture of casks.

XII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any officer of the excise shall find any increase of foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters in the hands of any such dealer, over and above the quantity which such officer found in such dealer's custody at the time of such officer's last preceding survey upon such dealer, such increase shall be deemed and taken to be made by foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters,

Increase of foreign brandy, &c. found by officer after former survey, to be deemed as brandy without permit, &c.

Such brandy,
&c. with cask;

waters, for which no duties were paid, and which had been privately brought by such dealer into the place where such increase shall be found, without any permit or certificate of the payment of the duty thereof, or any previous entry or notice to any officer of excise of bringing the same; and so much of the said foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, as shall be found so increased, shall, together with the cask or other vessel wherein the same shall be so contained, be forfeited and lost; and shall and may be seized and secured by such officer and officers of excise who shall so find and discover the same, unless the owner thereof shall make it appear, that such increase was made either by mixing some of his stock of British spirits, whereof the officer of excise had taken an account, with his foreign brandy, spirits, or strong waters in the presence of the officer of excise of the division where the said increase shall be found, or by foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters brought into the place where such increase shall be found, with a permit or certificate of the payment of the duties thereof, or that the same had been formerly condemned, or was part of some person's stock in hand on the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and that due notice was given to the officer of excise at the said division of the bringing in the same, before the same was so brought in.

Foreign brandy, tho' less than one gallon, without permit, &c. forfeited, with cask.

XIII. *And whereas many retailers of foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters are furnished with the brandy, spirits or strong waters which they retail by persons who run the same, or their accomplices, in small quantities, viz. less than one gallon at a time, and when the officers of the excise find such small quantities in the hands of such retailers, they refuse to produce any permit or certificate for the same, alledging, that no such permit or certificate are required by law for any quantity of such brandy, spirits or strong waters under the quantity of one gallon, whereby the runners thereof find means to dispose of great quantities of such run brandy, spirits or strong waters: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two no foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, although the same be under the quantity of one gallon, shall be received or taken into the custody or possession of any such retailer, or any person or persons for the use of any such retailer, without a permit or certificate signed by some officer of the customs or excise, signifying that the duties thereof were paid, or secured to be paid, or that the same had been condemned as forfeited; or was part of some person's stock in hand on the first day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty, upon pain of forfeiting all such foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, as shall be so found in the custody of such retailer or any other person or persons for the use of any such retailer, without a permit or certificate, together with the cask, bottle or other vessel wherein the same shall be so found; any law, statute or provision to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.*

XIV. And whereas by virtue of an act passed in the session of parliament holden in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, obliging all such ships, persons and goods coming from places that are or shall be mentioned in his Majesty's proclamation, to perform quarantine, it is enacted, That in case any commander, master or other person taking charge of any ship liable to perform quarantine shall not, within convenient time, after due notice given for that purpose by the proper officer, cause such ship or vessel and the lading thereof, to perform quarantine respectively, then such ship or vessel is forfeited, and the commander, master or other person as aforesaid forfeits two hundred pounds: and whereas the commanders, masters or other persons taking charge of such ships or vessels do pretend, after they are put into the place or places to perform quarantine, to be bound to parts beyond seas, or some other port or place of this kingdom, and do frequently depart from such places without the licence of the proper officer appointed to see the quarantine duly performed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act; for remedy whereof, be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if the commander, master or other person taking charge of any ship or vessel liable to perform quarantine, shall depart with or permit or suffer such ship or vessel to depart from the place or places appointed for the performance of quarantine, without leave or licence of the proper officer or officers appointed to see the same performed, such ship or vessel, with her tackle, furniture and apparel, shall be forfeited to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the commander, master or other person as aforesaid shall also forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds; one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the informer or prosecutor.

26 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Ships departing without licence from places appointed for quarantine forfeited, and commanders, &c. to forfeit 200 l.

XV. And whereas several persons guilty of the clandestine running of brandy or other customable and prohibited goods, or of receiving such goods, knowing the same to have been so run, do frequently remove from their usual places of abode into some other county, and are there called by other than their true names, to avoid their being prosecuted with effect for such their notorious offences; be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall, after the said five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be guilty of any offence or offences contrary to the true intent and meaning of this or any other act of parliament made for the preventing clandestine running of brandy or other customable or prohibited goods, or of receiving such goods into his or their house, shop or warehouse, custody or possession, knowing the same to be so run, such person and persons shall and may be prosecuted for any of the offences or matters aforesaid, by action, bill, plaint or information, and thereupon a Capias in the first process, specifying the sum of the penalty sued for, shall and may issue; and such person or persons shall be obliged to give sufficient bail or security by natural-born subjects or denizens, to the person or persons to whom such Capias shall be directed, to appear in the court out of which such Capias shall issue at the day of return turn of such writ, to answer such suit and prosecution, and shall likewise, at the time of such appearing, give sufficient bail or security by such persons as aforesaid in the said court, to answer and pay all the forfeitures and penalties incurred for such offence or offences, in case he or they shall be convicted thereof, or to yield his or their body or bodies to prison.

8 Ann. c. 7.

8 Ann. c. 13.

XVI. And whereas by two several acts passed in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, the one, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise upon several imported commodities, and for other purposes therein mentioned; the other, intituled, An act for continuing several impositions, additional impositions and duties upon goods imported, to raise money by way of loan for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten; and for taking off the oversea duty on coals exported in British bottoms; and for preventing frauds in drawbacks upon certificate goods, and other purposes therein mentioned, it is thereby respectively enacted, That if any sort of goods whatsoever, liable to the payment of duties, be unshipped with intention to be laid on land (customs and other duties not being first paid or secured) or if any prohibited goods whatsoever be imported into any part of Great Britain, or in case any tobacco or other foreign goods contained or specified in any certificate, whereupon any drawback is to be made, or whereupon any debenture is to be made forth for such drawback, shall, when shipped for exportation, be landed again in any part of Great Britain (except as therein is excepted) the vessels and boats, and all the horses and other cattle and carriages whatsoever, used in the landing, relanding, removing, carriage or other conveyance of the aforesaid goods, shall be forfeited and lost, and may be sued for, recovered and distributed in such manner as by the said act is provided and directed; which laws have not had the good effects thereby proposed, in regard that the keeping and maintaining the horses so seized, from the time of seizure to the time of condemnation in his Majesty's court of exchequer, is very chargeable, and for that the charge of condemning such vessels, boats and horses as aforesaid is very great, whereby officers are discouraged from making such seizures, and the smugglers encouraged in their illegal practices: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Seizures of vessels, &c. of 15 tons or under, how to be proceeded upon.

That all seizures of vessels or boats of the burthen of fifteen tuns, or under, which shall be made after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, by virtue of the said acts, or either of them, or of any other act relating to the revenue of customs, for carrying or conveying uncustomed or prohibited goods from ships inward or for relanding certificate or debenture goods from ships outwards, and that all seizures of horses, or other cattle or carriages whatsoever, which shall be made after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, for being used in the removing, carriage or conveyance of such goods, contrary to the said acts, or any of them, shall and may be examined into, proceeded upon, heard, adjudged and determined by and before two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace residing near the place where.

where such seizure shall be made, in such manner, and after such summons or publick notice given, as by an act passed in the sixth year of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office and house-money, seizures of brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters (except as therein is excepted) may be examined into, proceeded upon, heard, adjudged and determined, before two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace, and such their respective judgments shall be and are hereby declared to be taken and adjudged to be good, valid and effectual in the law, and final to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and not liable to any appeal, or any writ or writs of Certiorari; any law, statute or provision to the contrary notwithstanding. No Certiorari.

XVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority Justices of aforesaid, That any two or more justices of the peace of the cities of London and Westminster, shall have the like power and authority in the summoning, examining, proceeding, hearing, adjudging and determining such seizures, as are or shall be made within the cities of London or Westminster respectively, as any two justices of the peace of any other county or place have; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVIII. And whereas foreign goods are frequently taken in at sea by masters of coasting vessels, who privately land the same, to the prejudice of the revenue, and the encouragement of the foul traders: for the prevention whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any goods brought or coming into any port within the kingdom of Great Britain, from any other port within the said kingdom, by coast cocquet, transire, let-pafs or certificate, in any ship or vessel, shall, from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be unshipped to be landed or put on shore, before such cocquet, transire, let-pafs or certificate, shall be delivered to the customer or collector and comptroller of the port or place of her arrival, and warrant or sufferance made and given from such customer, collector and comptroller for the landing or discharging thereof, the master, purser, boatswain, or other mariner, taking charge of such ship or vessel, out of which the goods shall be landed or put on shore, knowing and consenting thereunto, shall forfeit the value of the goods so unshipped; and if any goods of foreign growth, production or manufacture, coming coastwise, as aforesaid, shall be landed without the presence of an officer of the customs, such foreign goods, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIX. And whereas by an act made in the sixth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing of frauds and abuses on damaged wines, and for lengthening the time for the drawbacks on the exportation of wines, it is enacted, That in case any merchant or other person importing wines, shall find the same, or any part thereof so damaged, corrupt or unmerchantable, that he shall

CAP. XX.

An act for paying off and cancelling one million of exchequer-bills, and to give ease to the South-Sea company, in respect of its present obligation, to circulate or contribute towards circulating exchequer-bills; and to give further time to that company for repayment of one million which was lent to them; and for issuing a further sum in new exchequer-bills, towards his Majesty's supply, to be discharged and cancelled, when the said company shall repay the million owing by them; and that the exchequer-bills, which are to continue, may be circulated at easy and moderate rates; and for appropriating the supplies granted to his Majesty in this session of parliament; and for relief of the sufferers at Nevis and Saint Christophers, by an invasion of the French in the late war; and for laying a further duty on apples imported; and for ascertaining the duties on pictures imported.

6 Geo. I. c. 4.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas amongst divers matters and things contained in an act of parliament, made and passed in the sixth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for enabling the South-Sea company to increase their present capital stock and fund, by redeeming such publick debts and incumbrances as are therein mentioned; and for raising money to be applied for lessening several of the publick debts and incumbrances; and for calling in the present exchequer-bills remaining uncanceled; and for making forth new bills in lieu thereof, to be circulated and exchanged upon demand at or near the exchequer, it was recited or mentioned, That after the application of such monies as are therein specified, the principal monies to remain due upon bills, commonly called exchequer-bills, made forth by virtue of former acts of parliament in that behalf, and would then be in or out of the exchequer uncanceled and undischarged, would by estimation amount unto eight hundred ninety six thousand six hundred sixty two pounds ten shillings or thereabouts, besides interest on them or some of them; and it was thereby enacted, That the said residuary bills should be brought in to be changed for new bills, upon such notice, and in such manner, as was thereby prescribed; and that the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, should cause new bills to be prepared and made forth at the receipt of the exchequer, for any sum or sums of money, whereof the principal should not exceed the said eight hundred ninety six thousand six hundred sixty two pounds ten shillings, adding thereunto the interest monies which should appear to be due thereupon; and that such new bills shall bear an interest not exceeding the rate of two pence per centum per diem; and it was thereby enacted, That the said company, or their court of directors in their behalf, should, from time to time, during the term of seven years, to be reckoned from the feast of the nativity *nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and twenty, furnish, supply and pay to trustees to be chosen or constituted, as is therein mentioned, so much ready money, in the lawful coins of this realm, as should be sufficient to enable such trustees to exchange all such of the said bills to be made forth by virtue of that act, as should be demanded at the publick office of the said trustees, at any time or times within the said term of seven years, by paying (in such ready money) upon every such demand, all the principal monies contained in every such bill, and the interest which should then be due thereupon, and so toties quoties, as often as any such bill should be demanded; and in case, during that or any future session or sessions of parliament, any other act or acts of parliament was or should be made for making forth any further sum or sums in exchequer-bills, to be circulated by trustees at or near the exchequer, and to be current at any time or times, within or during the said term of seven years, or for any part of the same term, at the exchequer, and in the publick revenues and taxes, upon credit of such fund or security, or of such monies to be borrowed thereupon, as by authority of parliament should be established or appointed, to support the currency thereof, then the said company were thereby enjoined and required by themselves, or their court of directors for the time being (from time to time, during the said term of seven years, or for so much of that term as the exchequer-bills, to be made forth by such other or future act or acts of parliament, should have a joint currency with the said bills to be made forth by virtue of the act in part before recited, or be current together or at the same time) to furnish, supply and pay to such trustees in 6 Geo. 1. c. 4.

 lawful coins of this realm, a proportional part of such ready money, as should be sufficient to enable the same trustees to exchange all or any of the bills which should be so current, whether they were bills made forth by virtue of the act in part before recited, or any other act or acts of that or any future session of parliament, as often as any such bills shall be demanded within the said term of seven years, by paying all the principal monies contained in such bill, and the interest which 6 Geo. 1. c. 10.
 should upon every such demand be due thereupon, and so toties quoties, as often as the same should be demanded; and that such proportional parts should, from time to time, be ascertained and determined in the manner thereby prescribed (that is to say) as the sum total of the principal monies contained in all the said bills then uncanceled and undischarged, should be to ten hundred thousand pounds, so the whole sum, which at any time or times during the said term should be necessary and called for to support the currency of all the said bills, should be to the proportional part to be furnished by the said company toward supporting such currency: and it was thereby provided and enacted, That if at any time or times thereafter, provision should be made by authority of parliament, of so much money in the lawful coins of this kingdom, as should be sufficient to pay off and discharge all the principal and interest which should be due on the said exchequer-bills, to be made forth by virtue of that act as aforesaid, or any proportion thereof at a time; and if by like authority the same coined monies should be actually brought and paid into the receipt of the exchequer for that purpose, then the same should be applied for or towards the paying off and discharging the same bills, or such proportion thereof, so far as such money would extend, by paying to the respective bearer or bearers of the same bill or bills then standing out, the principal and interest which should be due thereupon, and placing such coined money, or any part thereof, in lieu of any the said exchequer-bills which should be made forth by virtue of that act, and should then be in the office or offices of any teller or tellers of the exchequer, to answer such payments whereunto the same bills so remaining in such office or offices should then be legally subject or liable, and that such payments should be answered under such penalties, forfeitures and disabilities as were prescribed by any former law or statute concerning the money for which such bills did lie in the exchequer, to prevent the diverting or misapplying the same; and from and after such payments to the bearer or bearers, or such placing of money in lieu of bills in the said office or offices of the said teller or tellers, to answer such payments as aforesaid, (and not sooner) the several and respective bills themselves, which should be so paid off, or for which coined money should be so placed, should be cancelled, and the said company should repay to the respective tellers, so much interest as remained due on the same bills respectively, at the time or times when they were last paid into the exchequer, before the cancelling thereof, as by the said act in part before recited, relation being thereunto had, may more fully appear: and whereas in and by another act of parliament made and passed in the said sixth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making forth new exchequer-bills, not exceeding one million, at a certain interest; and for lending the same to the South-Sea company at an higher interest, upon security of repaying the same, and such high interest, into the exchequer, for uses to which the fund for lessening the publick debts (called the sinking fund) is applicable; and for circulating and exchanging upon demand the said bills at or near the exchequer, the commissioners of your Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, were authorized, at any time or times within one year, reckoning from the tenth day of May one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, to prepare and make, or cause to be prepared or made, at the said receipt of the exchequer, in such method and form as they shall think most convenient, any number of new exchequer-bills, so as the principal sums to be contained therein, should not in the whole exceed one million of pounds (over and above the exchequer-bills which were to be current, pursuant to the act first before recited) and that the said new bills so to be prepared and made, should bear an interest not exceeding the rate of two pence per centum per diem, and to be payable to the bearers thereof respectively; nevertheless such interest is thereby enacted to be abated and saved upon such of the said bills, as should at any time or times be in the receipt of the exchequer, or in the hands or power of any receiver or collector of any taxes, aids or revenues whatsoever, payable to your Majesty, your heirs or successors, during such time or times respectively, as such bills should be or remain in the said receipt, or in such hands or power as aforesaid; and the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being,

ing, were thereby impowered to issue, or cause to be issued, by way of loan or advance, all such bills as should be prepared by virtue of that act, not exceeding as aforesaid, to the said South-Sea company, or to some person or persons in trust for them, the same company giving security upon their then present and to be increased annuity or yearly fund, and upon their weekly or other payments to be made at the exchequer, for or upon account of their said annuity or yearly fund, for repayment of the principal sums so lent, with an interest not exceeding the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, at such day or days, time or times, as should be agreed upon by and between the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, on behalf of the publick, and the said company, or their court of directors on their behalf, so as no such day or time should be more remote than the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, or the end of the then next session of parliament; and the said commissioners of the treasury, and the high treasurer for the time being, were thereby directed and required to take especial care, that upon repayment of the principal money so to be lent, the same, with the interest or increase accruing thereupon, should be received and applied, in the first place, to the paying off and discharging the said new exchequer-bills to be made forth in pursuance of that act; and that the surplus thereof (after paying off and discharging the same new exchequer-bills) should be placed at the said receipt of the exchequer, to and for the same uses, intents and purposes, to which the monies of the surplusses, excesses and overplus monies, commonly called the sinking fund, were applicable; and in default of paying the said monies so to be lent, with the said interest or increase thereof, at the day or days, time or times, to be limited pursuant to that act, then the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the said high treasurer for the time being, were thereby authorized and required to cause the money so lent, to be stopt out of the monies, which weekly or otherwise shall be payable to the said South-Sea company at the exchequer, for or upon their then present or to be increased annuity or yearly fund, together with so much more as the interest of the money so unpaid should amount unto at the said rate, not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, and to cause the principal and interest so stopt, to be applied and placed in the exchequer as aforesaid; and to the end the said bills should be made forth by virtue of the act last mentioned, might the better obtain a currency for so long time as they were intended to be current, in pursuance of that act; it was thereby enacted, That as well the sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred seventy three pounds four shillings and ten pence half-penny, then remaining in the exchequer, which was advanced by the said company, pursuant to an act of the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, and the monies which (from and after the application of the sum of five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, for discharging and cancelling exchequer-bills made forth by former acts in that behalf, or reserving sufficient thereof in the exchequer for that purpose) should arise of or for the said surplusses, excesses and overplusses, commonly called the sinking fund, should be a fund or security for furnishing such proportions of ready money, from time to time, as are therein mentioned, for and towards exchanging and circulating the exchequer-bills to be made forth by virtue of that and the said other act of that session of parliament, or either of them, as often as the same bills or any of them should be demanded, during their joint currency; and it was thereby further enacted, That the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, should (so long as the said exchequer-bills to be made forth by virtue of that act, should have a joint currency with the said bills, to be made forth by virtue of the said first recited act, or be current together or at the same time) furnish, supply and pay, to the said trustees for the time being, out of the monies, from time to time, being in the receipt of the exchequer, of the fund or security before in that act settled for that purpose, in the lawful coins of this realm, on behalf of the publick, a proportional part of such ready money, as shall be necessary to enable the said trustees to exchange all or any of the bills which should be so current (whether they be bills made forth by virtue of that or the said other act of the same session of parliament) as often as any such bill should be demanded, or within twenty four hours after, by paying all the principal monies contained in every such bill, and the interest, which shall, upon every such demand, be due thereupon, and so toties quoties, as often as the same shall be demanded; which proportional part so, from time to time, to be furnished on behalf of the publick, shall be so much as, together with the proportional part, which, from time to time, should or ought to be furnished by the said company as aforesaid, should be sufficient to enable the trustees to support the currency of the said bills from time to time; and in the act last mentioned there is inserted a proviso, That if at any time or times hereafter provision should be made by authority of parliament, of so much money in the lawful coin of this kingdom, as should be sufficient to pay off and discharge all the principal and interest, which should be due upon the said exchequer-bills to be made forth by virtue of that act, or any proportion thereof at a time; and if by like authority the same monies should be actually brought and paid into the receipt of the exchequer for that purpose, then the same should be applied for or towards paying off the same bills, or such proportion thereof, so far as such money would extend, by paying to the respective bearer or bearers of the same bills then standing out, the principal and interest which should be due thereupon, and by placing such coined money, or any part thereof, in lieu of any of the same exchequer-bills, which should then be in the office or offices of any teller or tellers of the exchequer, to answer such payments whereunto the same bills so remaining in such office or offices, should then be legally subject and liable; which payments should be answered with the said money in specie, under such penalties, forfeitures and disabilities, as are prescribed by any former laws or statutes concerning the money for which such bills did lie in the exchequer, to prevent the diverting or misapplying the same; and from and after such payments to the bearer or bearers, or such placing of money in lieu of bills in the said office or offices of the said teller or tellers, to answer such payments as aforesaid, and not sooner, the severall and respective bills themselves, which shall be so paid paid off, or for which coined money shall be so placed, should be cancelled; and it is thereby also provided and enacted, That if before the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, or before the end of the session of parliament then next ensuing, coined monies shall not be raised and brought into the receipt of the exchequer, sufficient to pay off and discharge all the exchequer-bills which should be made forth by virtue of that act, that then and in such case, immediately upon the end of such session of parliament next after the said first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, all or any of the monies then remaining in the receipt of the exchequer, of the said sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred seventy three pounds four shillings and ten pence half-penny (if the same, or any part thereof, shall then remain there not issued to the purposes in the last mentioned act directed) and all the monies which, from and after the end of the said session of parliament next after the said first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, should quarterly arise into the exchequer of or for all the said surplusses, excesses and overplusses, denominated the sinking fund, as aforesaid, or of or for such increase thereof, as shall be made by repaying the money which should be lent to the said company as aforesaid, with interest, and all or any the monies (if any should be then remaining in the receipt of the exchequer) of the loans which might have been made there by virtue of that act, for answering the said proportions for circulating and exchanging the said bills, or so much of the monies aforesaid, as should be sufficient to discharge or complete the discharging of all the exchequer-bills, which shall have been made forth by virtue of that act, shall be applied for and towards discharging and cancelling the same, until they should all be paid off, discharged and cancelled, or so much of the said monies should be reserved in the exchequer, as should be sufficient for that purpose, as by the act last in part recited, relation being thereunto had, also may more fully appear: and whereas, pursuant to the act last mentioned, the said exchequer-bills, amounting to one million, were on the seventh day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, issued by way of loan or advance to the said South-Sea company upon a security under their common seal, by an instrument or writing bearing date the fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, for repayment of the same in good and lawful money of Great Britain, into the exchequer, at the end of one year, which was to be reckoned from the time of issuing the said bills, with interest after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum: and whereas among many matters and things contained in another act of parliament made and passed in the seventh year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to enable the South-Sea company to 7Geo. 2. Stat. 1, ingraft part of their capital stock and fund into the stock and fund of the bank of England, and another part thereof into the stock and fund of the East-India company; and for giving further time for payments to be made by the said South-Sea company for the use of the publick, it was provided, enacted and declared, That the said South-Sea company, at their own costs and charges, on or before the seventh day of June which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, should well and truly repay, XLIV. Provided always, That out of the monies arising or to arise at the exchequer as aforesaid, of the said surplusses, excesses or overplusses, called the sinking fund, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, to reward the officers and clerks in the said receipt for their pains and service in paying the same annuities, and to satisfy such incident charges as shall necessarily attend the payment thereof; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLV. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time, upon publick notice to be print-

WHEREAS of late divers frauds and abuses have been committed by forging and counterfeiting the hands of some of the proprietors of the shares of and in the capital stock and funds of such body or bodies politick or corporate, as are established by act or acts of parliament in that behalf, or some of them, or by forging or counterfeiting the hands of persons entitled to the dividends attending the said shares, or some of them, or by forging or counterfeiting the hands of persons entitled to annuities, in respect whereof the proprietors have transferrable shares in a capital stock or stocks established by act or acts of parliament, in proportion to their respective annuities; and divers frauds and abuses have been or may be committed by persons falsely and deceitfully personating the true and real proprietors of the said shares in stock, annuities and dividends, or some of them: now for the better preventing such pernicious practices for the future, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any person or persons whatsoever, from and after the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, shall forge or counterfeit, or procure to be forged or counterfeited, or knowingly and wilfully act or assist in the forging or counterfeiting any letter of attorney, or other authority or instrument to transfer, assign, sell or convey any such share or shares, or any part of such share or shares of and in such capital stock or stocks as aforesaid, or any of them, or to receive any such annuity or annuities, dividend or dividends as aforesaid, or any of them, or any part thereof, or shall forge or counterfeit, or procure to be forged or counterfeited, or knowingly and wilfully act or assist in the forging or counterfeiting any the name or names of any the proprietors, or counterfeiting names of proprietors, &c.

II. And whereas by an instrument in writing, bearing date the ninth day of December one thousand seven hundred and twenty, under the bands and seals of the then commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, sundry principal sums therein mentioned, amounting together to eleven millions one hundred seventy two thousand five hundred ninety three pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence, were declared to be added to the capital stock of the South-Sea company; and in respect of such stock several yearly sums, making together five hundred thirty nine thousand thirty six pounds three shillings and eleven pence, were thereby declared to be added to the annuity or yearly fund of the said company, and to commence or take place from the feast of Saint Michael the archangel then last past: and whereas seven millions five hundred fifty eight thousand three hundred and fifteen pounds ten shillings and three pence, part of the said additional stock of eleven millions one hundred seventy two thousand five hundred ninety three pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence, was for principal sums subscribed into the said company the fifteenth day of October one thousand seven hundred and twenty, for which an annuity at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, was payable at the bank of England, by virtue of an act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, according to one duplicate of a book of subscriptions, signed and attested by three of the late managers for taking such subscriptions, as in the said instrument is more fully and at large set forth: and whereas it is evident, That the said principal sum of seven millions five hundred fifty eight thousand three hundred fifteen pounds ten shillings and three pence was a mistaken principal sum, for that the said late managers, or those employed under them, in bringing over the totals of sundry pages in the said duplicate-book, to make one total at the end thereof, had omitted to bring over a subscription of two thousand pounds contained in the said book under the letter B, (page thirty three) and several subscriptions under the letter M, beginning page thirty three and ending page forty, and the subscriptions so omitted to be brought over, do amount to *sixty seven thousand eight hundred thirty one pounds six shillings and ten pences; and by means of the said mistake, the said company have had less additional stock and additional annuity declared by the said instrument than they ought to have had; that is to say, sixty seven thousand eight hundred thirty one pounds six shillings and ten pence in stock, and three thousand three hundred and ninety one pounds eleven shillings and four pence less in additional annuity for that stock, which annuity was to commence and take effect, in point of payment, from the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel one thousand seven hundred and twenty as aforesaid: Now for rectifying the said mistakes, and to the end the said company may have and enjoy so much as is their right; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall and may rectify the mistakes or errors committed as aforesaid, by any new instrument or instruments under their hands and seals, thereby declaring, settling and determining, that the principal sums, amounting to the said sum of sixty seven thousand eight hundred thirty one pounds six shillings and ten pence, are and shall be added to the present capital or joint stock of the said company; and that the yearly sum of three thousand three hundred ninety one pounds eleven shillings and four pence, being computed at the rate of five pounds per centum on the said principal sum of sixty seven thousand eight hundred thirty one pounds six shillings and ten pence, is and shall be added in respect of such their additional stock, to the present annuity or yearly fund of the said company, and shall commence and take effect from the said feast of Saint Michael the archangel one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and continue and be payable for such time and times, and in such manner and form, and out of such particular duties, rates, revenues and other provisions as in and by the act of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign were prescribed or intended; in case such mistakes had not been made, and subject to such reduction, powers of redemption, conditions, restrictions and other matters and things as in and by the same act, or any other act now in force, were provided or intended touching or concerning the same; and the said commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, by such their instrument or instruments in writing, shall and may declare, settle and determine, that every member of the said company in proportion to his, her or their respective shares in the capital stock thereof, increased by such addition, hath and shall have credit in the books of the said company, for his, her or their proportion or share, of and in the whole capital stock so increased, according to the true meaning of the act or acts of parliament in that behalf.*

thousand six hundred and eighteen pounds fifteen shillings, were declared to be added to the capital stock of the said company, and in respect of such stock, several yearly sums, making together four hundred twenty seven thousand five hundred and eighty pounds eighteen shillings and nine pence, after the rate of five pounds per centum, were thereby declared to be added to the annuity or yearly fund of the said company, to commence and take effect from the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary then last past, according to a duplicate of a book of subscriptions made on the twenty third day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty, signed and attested by three of the late managers for taking in such subscriptions, as in the said instrument is more fully and at large set forth: and whereas it is evident, that the said principal sum of eight millions five hundred fifty one thousand six hundred eighteen pounds and fifteen shillings was a mistaken principal sum, for that the said late managers and directors, or those employed under them, did in one of their duplicates, containing part of the said eight millions five hundred fifty one thousand six hundred eighteen pounds and fifteen shillings, and the annuity to be paid to the said company thereupon (page eighty) insert a subscribed annuity of Sir Harcourt Master, as if the same had been forty five pounds per annum, and a credit was taken therein of nine hundred pounds stock for the same, although in truth the annuity which he actually subscribed, was no more than twenty five pounds per annum, and the company's stock for the same should have been no more than five hundred pounds, and the addition which ought to have been made to the said company's annuity or yearly fund in respect thereof, ought to have been twenty five pounds per annum, and no more: now for rectifying the mistake last mentioned, which tends to the wrong and prejudice of the publick, and to the end the publick may have right done in respect thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them now being, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall and may, by any proper memorandum or memorandums, to be endorsed or made upon the said instrument, dated the twenty eighth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and upon the subscription-books, wherein the errors or mistakes last mentioned are inserted or comprehended, cause the sum of four hundred pounds, part of the said capital sum of eight millions five hundred fifty one thousand six hundred eighteen pounds and fifteen shillings, and twenty pounds per annum, part of the said sum of four hundred twenty seven thousand five hundred eighty pounds eighteen shillings and nine pence per annum, to be abated and sunk from the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary one thousand seven hundred and twenty; and if any payment of the said sum of twenty pounds per annum has been received by the said company at the exchequer, it is hereby enacted, That the money so received shall be repaid into his Majesty's exchequer, or be stopt and refunded out of the next payment to be there made to the said company.

C A P. XXIV.

An act for the more effectual suppressing of piracy.

WHEREAS the number of persons committing piracies, felonies and robberies upon the seas, is of late very much increased; and notwithstanding the laws already made and now in being, many idle and profligate persons have turned pirates, and betaken themselves to that wicked course of life, whereby the trade and navigation into remote parts will greatly suffer, unless some further provision be speedily made for bringing such persons, and all others, who shall be any ways aiding and assisting, or in confederacy with them, to condign punishment; be it therefore declared and enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any commander or master of any ship or vessel, or any other person or persons, shall from and after the twenty fifth day of March which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, any wise trade with any pirate, by truck, barter, exchange, or in any other manner, or shall furnish any pirate, felon or robber upon the seas, with any ammunition, provision or stores of any kind, or shall fit out

After March 25, 1722. commanders of ships or others, trading with pirates, furnishing them with stores, corresponding with them, &c.

but any ship or vessel knowingly, and with a design to trade with, or supply, or correspond with any pirate, felon or robber upon the seas, or if any person or persons shall any ways consult, combine, confederate or correspond with any pirate, felon or robber on the seas, knowing him to be guilty of any such piracy, felony or robbery, such offender and offenders and every of them, shall in each and every of the said cases be deemed, adjudged and taken to be guilty of piracy, felony and robbery, and he and they shall and may be inquired of, tried, heard and adjudged of and for all or any the matters aforesaid, according to the statute made in the twenty eighth year of King Henry the Eighth for pirates, and the statute made in the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the more effectual suppressing of piracy, which by an act made in the sixth year of his present Majesty is made perpetual, and he and they being convicted of all or any the matters aforesaid, shall suffer such pains of death, loss of lands, goods and chattels, as pirates, felons and robbers upon the seas, ought to suffer; and in case any person or persons belonging to any ship or vessel whatsoever, upon meeting any merchant-ship or vessel on the high seas, or in any port, haven or creek whatsoever, shall forcibly board or enter into such ship or vessel, and though they do not seize and carry off such ship or vessel, shall throw over-board, or destroy any part of the goods or merchandizes belonging to such ship or vessel, the person or persons who shall be guilty thereof, shall in all respects be deemed and punished as pirates as aforesaid.

shall be adjudged guilty of piracy, &c. according to the 28 H. 8. c. 15. and 12 Geo. 3. c. 7. See 18 Geo. 2. c. 30.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every ship or vessel which shall be fitted out with a design to trade with, or supply, or correspond with any pirate, and all and every goods and merchandizes put on board the same for any intent or purpose to trade with any pirate, felon or robber on the seas, shall be ipso facto forfeited; one moiety thereof to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety to the person or persons who shall first make discovery, and give information of such intent or design; and such person or persons who shall first make such discovery, shall and may sue for and recover the said ship or vessel, and all and every the goods and merchandizes on board the same, in the high court of admiralty.

Persons belonging to any vessel, forcibly boarding any merchant-ship, and throwing any goods over-board, shall be punished as pirates.

Ships fitted out to trade with pirates, and the goods forfeited, half to the crown, half to the discoverers.

To be sued for in the admiralty.

III. And whereas there are some defects in the laws for bringing persons, who are accessaries to piracy and robbery upon the seas, to condign punishment, if the principal who committed such piracy and robbery, is not or cannot be apprehended and brought to justice; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons whatsoever, who by the said statute made in the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of King William the Third, are declared to be accessary or accessaries to any piracy or robbery therein mentioned, are hereby declared, and shall be deemed and taken to be principal pirates, felons and robbers, and shall and may, from and after the said twenty fifth day of Persons declared accessaries to piracy by 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. shall be deemed principals, and after March 25, 1722. suffer as such.

March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be inquired of, heard, determined and adjudged, in the same manner as persons guilty of piracy and robbery may and ought to be inquired of, tried, heard, determined and adjudged by the said statute made in the eleventh and twelfth years of his late majesty King William, and being thereupon attainted and convicted, shall suffer such pains of death, loss of lands, goods and chattels, and in like manner as pirates and robbers ought by the said act to suffer.

Offenders convicted on this act, excluded the benefit of clergy.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every offender or offenders convicted of any piracy, felony or robbery by virtue of this act, shall not be admitted to have the benefit of clergy, but be utterly excluded of and from the same.

Seamen maimed in fight against pirates, shall receive the rewards in 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. and be admitted into Greenwich Hospital.

V. And to the end that a further encouragement may be given to all seamen and mariners to fight and defend their ships from pirates, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any seaman or mariner on board any merchant-ship or vessel, or any other ship or vessel, shall be maimed in fight against any pirate, every such seaman and mariner, upon due proof of his being maimed in such fight, shall not only have and receive the rewards already appointed by a statute made in the twenty second and twenty third years of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent the delivering up of merchant-ships, and for the increase of good and serviceable seamen, but shall also be admitted into and provided for in Greenwich Hospital, preferable to any other seaman or mariner who is disabled from service or getting a livelihood merely by his age.

Masters or seamen not defending themselves against pirates, or who shall utter any discouraging words, shall, if the ship be taken, forfeit their wages to the owners, and suffer six months imprisonment.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any commander, master, or other officer, or any seaman or mariner of any merchant-ship or vessel which carries guns and arms, shall not when they are attacked by any pirate, or by any ship or vessel on which any such pirate is on board, fight and endeavour to defend themselves, and their said ship or vessel from being taken by the said pirate, or shall utter any words, to discourage the other mariners from defending the ship, and by reason thereof the said ship or vessel shall fall into the hands of such pirate, then and in every such case every such commander or master, or other officer, and every seaman or mariner, who shall not fight and endeavour to defend and save the said ship or vessel, or who shall utter any such words as aforesaid, shall lose and forfeit all and every part of the wages due to him and them respectively, to the owner and owners of the said ship or vessel, and shall not be permitted to sue for or recover the same, or any part thereof, in any court either of law or equity, and as a farther punishment shall suffer six months imprisonment.

Masters shall not advance to any seaman above half his wages, while

VIII. And whereas great interruptions and inconveniencies may attend his Majesty's service, by the captains or commanders, or other officers of his Majesty's ships or vessels of war, their receiving on board such ships or vessels goods and merchandizes, and trading there-with contrary to instructions, which strictly forbid their doing the same: to prevent therefore the said interruptions and inconveniencies for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any captain, commander, or other officer of any of his Majesty's ships or vessels of war, whether such ship or vessel shall be employed at home or abroad, shall from and after the twenty ninth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, receive on board, or permit to be received on board, such ship or vessel of war, any goods or merchandizes whatsoever, in order to trade or merchandize with the same, either upon his own or any other person's account, except gold, silver or jewels, and except the goods or merchandizes belonging to any merchant-ship or vessel which may be shipwrecked, or in imminent danger of being shipwrecked either on the high seas, or in any port, creek or harbour, within his Majesty's dominions at home or abroad, or elsewhere, in order to the preserving them for their proper owners; and except such goods or merchandizes as they shall at any time be ordered to take or receive on board, by order of the lord high admiral of Great Britain, or the commissioners for executing that office for the time being, or any three or more of them; every such captain, commander or officer of any of his Majesty's ships or vessels of war so offending, shall upon his being convicted thereof by a court martial, lose and forfeit the command and office he then shall have in the said ship or vessel of war, and shall be, and he is hereby for ever afterwards rendered incapable to serve any longer in the same, or in any other place or office in the naval service of his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and such captain, commander, or other officer offending as aforesaid, shall as a further punishment for his said offence,

An act for supplying some defects in the statute of the twenty third of King Henry the Eighth, intituled, An act for obligations to be taken by two chief justices, the mayor of the staple, and the recorder of London, and for setting down the time of signing judgments in the principality of Wales, and counties palatine.

23 H. 8. c. 6.

In what manner the rolls appointed by 23 H. 8. c. 6. to be made of recognizances in the nature of a statute-staple, after March 25, 1722. shall be varied.

WHEREAS recognizances in the nature of a statute-staple, which are by the statute of the twenty third of King Henry the Eighth, appointed to be taken by the two chief justices, the mayor of the staple, and the recorder of London, are common and beneficial securities; but in regard the same are liable to damage and loss that may happen by fire, and otherwise, and by reason of difficulties arising by defects in the said statute, great inconveniencies do accrue to his Majesty's subjects: for remedy thereof, and for making the said security more effectual, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the rolls appointed by the said recited statute to be made of such recognizances, shall be varied and made in manner following; (that is to say) The clerk of the said recognizances for the time being, or his deputy, shall yearly from thenceforth prepare and keep three parchment-rolls as usual, and shall at the times of acknowledging of every such recognizance, fairly write or ingross, instead of the heads or contents thereof, on the said rolls, the full tenor, in hæc verba, of every such recognizance; and that one of the said rolls shall contain all the recognizances to be taken before the chief justice of the King's bench for the time being; and one other of them shall contain all the recognizances to be taken before the chief justice of the court of common pleas for the time being; and the other of them shall contain all the recognizances before the mayor of the staple at Windsor and recorder of London for the time being; and that at the time of every such acknowledgment the respective persons, before whom such recognizances shall be taken, and also the party and parties acknowledging the same, shall also sign their respective names to the roll or inrolment of every recognizance so taken under the inrolment thereof, as well as sign and seal the same recognizance; and that all the said three rolls so signed shall at the end of every year be fixed together, and be thereby made one roll, as accustomed, and be and remain in the custody of the clerk of the recognizances, or his deputy, in his publick office in London or Middlesex, who shall keep a docket to refer to the said roll or rolls, for the benefit of searches by purchasers and others (as used to be) to which docket also shall be added the day, month and year of every such acknowledgment.

Clerk of the recognizances to keep a docket for searches.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any loss or damage shall happen to any such recognizance, the same shall and may, from any of the said rolls, so to be kept in the custody of the said clerk, or his deputy, in order to have process thereon, be by him or them, by certificate under his or their seal, certified into chancery in like manner as recognizances by the said recited act are directed, and as if the said recognizance had not been lost or damaged; and that to such certificate, and all other certificates of such recognizances, shall be annexed a true transcript of the entry of such recognizance to be taken from the said roll or rolls in his or their custody; and further, that in case of any such loss or damage, a like certificate, with such transcript annexed as aforesaid, shall be made, and be left and remain with the clerk of the petty-bag-office in chancery, and shall be as good and effectual as if the said recognizance under seal had been left in the same office, as hath been used upon the issuing out of process in the same office; and that in order to prove such statutes and recognizances, in case of any such loss or damage, a true copy or copies from the said roll or rolls, in the custody of the said clerk, or his deputy, made and signed by the said clerk or his deputy, and duly proved, shall be deemed good evidence of such recognizances, and be of the same validity, to all intents and purposes, as if the said original recognizances were produced under seal.

Any loss happening to such recognizance, shall be certified by the clerk, or his deputy, into chancery.
23 H. 2. c. 6.
A transcript of the entry to be annexed to such certificate;

III. And whereas by the said statute of the twenty third of King Henry the Eighth, there was due to his Majesty a fee of one half-penny in the pound (according to the value or sum entered into and contained in every such recognizance) to be paid on sealing the first process and in case of loss, a copy from the roll, signed, &c. shall be good evidence of such statute.

The prosecutor shall deliver into the office a note testifying the sum intended to be extended.

proceeds on every such recognizance, as in the said act is appointed, which is very heavy on every prosecutor on every such recognizance, by reason such sum so entered into, is sometimes only intended as a penalty for the payment of a lesser sum, or for securing damages for the non-performance of covenants, or otherwise; and whereas the fees and charges taken or demanded by sheriffs in getting an extent or execution, and Liberate and possession or seisin, executed on every such recognizance, are very expensive, in regard the same are not settled: for remedy in all and every the said cases, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the prosecutor of every such recognizance shall, at the time of suing out the first process, or a writ of extent thereon, deliver in to the officer (who shall make out such process or extent) a note in writing under his hand, testifying the sum or value of the damages thereby intended to be extended or levied thereon, which sum or value the said officer shall insert in the said writ to be only extended or levied thereon, and no more; and that the said poundage of one halfpenny payable on all process as aforesaid, shall be taken and paid only for every pound, according to the said sum or value so inserted, and intended to be extended or levied as aforesaid, and not otherwise.

One halfpenny per pound only, to be taken as poundage.

In what cases the chancery may award re-extents.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case it shall, at any time or times, before or after the filing or returning of any Liberate or Liberates sued out on any such extent or extents, be made appear to the court of chancery, that sufficient has not been extended and levied, or sufficiently extended and levied, to satisfy such recognizance; or that any omission, error or mistake has happened in making, suing out, executing or returning any of the said writs, or any process thereupon; or should it happen that any lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall hereafter be evicted from any person or persons, who shall have extended the same by virtue of any such writ or process as aforesaid; that then and in every such case the said court of chancery shall and may award one or more re-extent or re-extents for the satisfying the same as aforesaid, and that writs of Liberate or Liberates may be sued out thereupon; any law or statute to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

No sheriff shall take more fees than are appointed by the act 3 Geo. 1. c. 15. sect. 16.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no sheriff of any county shall take for the extent and Liberate, and Habere facias possessionem or Seisinam, on the real estate, and levy on the personal estate, by virtue of such extent, any more than the same fees as are appointed by an act made in the third year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better regulating the office of sheriffs, and for ascertaining their fees; and the fees for suing out their patents and passing their accounts, for executing a writ of Elegit and Habere facias possessionem or Seisinam, under the like penalties and forfeitures, and to be in like manner recovered against every sheriff or person therein offending, as the same are mentioned and appointed in and by the same act.

VI. And

VI. And whereas the provision which by an act of parliament made in the twenty ninth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for prevention of frauds and perjuries, was made for setting down the day of the month and year of signing judgments in his Majesty's courts of Westminster both proved very beneficial to purchasers, but hath not yet been extended to the courts of the principality of Wales, or of the counties palatine: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, any judge or officer of any of the courts of great session in the principality of Wales, or courts of session in the counties palatine of Chester, Lancaster and Durham, that shall sign any judgments, shall at the signing the same, without fee for doing the same, set down the day of the month and year of his so doing, upon the paper-book, docket or record which he shall sign, which day of the month and year shall be also entred upon the margin of the roll of the record where the said judgment shall be entred, and that such judgments, as against purchasers bona fide for valuable consideration of lands, tenements or hereditaments to be charged thereby, shall in consideration of law, be judgments only from such times as they shall be so signed, and shall not relate to the first day of the session whereof they are entred, or the day of the return of the original or filing the bail; any law, usage or course of any court to the contrary notwithstanding.

How judgment shall be signed in the courts of the grand session in Wales, and in the courts of session in the counties palatine, and from what time they shall relate.

No sharer shall transfer his share till water be brought into the reservoir intended to be made near Oliver's Mount.

WHEREAS an accidental dreadful fire happened within the town of Aberdeen, on or about the thirtieth day of October one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, whereby the office, commonly called the commissar clerks office, was suddenly consumed, and at the same time the registers and records therein of all testaments and confirmations, all acts of curacy, judicial renunciations, ratifications, decreats, dispositions, bonds, bills, and other writs and evidences, together with the principal writings themselves, then in the said office as the warrants of extracts and precepts, were intirely burnt and destroyed, whereby many persons are and will be in great danger of losing their rights, by reason the extracts of such writings and precepts as are in their hands, will not be sufficient, as the law now stands, to defend them against actions of improbation: for relieving therefore of such persons, and for preventing any inconveniency or prejudice that may at any time happen to them from such actions of improbation, be it enacted, &c.

WHEREAS the governors of the hospital of King James, founded in Charter-house within the county of Middlesex, at the humble petition and only costs and charges of Thomas Sutton, esquire, are a body corporate and politick, by the name of the governors of the lands, possessions, revenues and goods of the hospital of King James, founded in Charter-House within the county of Middlesex, at the humble petition and only costs and charges of Thomas Sutton, ton, esquire. And whereas the number of the said governors is sixteen, and consequently, whilst the said number is full, by law there must be nine of the said sixteen present to make any corporate assembly, or do any corporate act: and whereas by reason of the great quality and stations of several of the governors, and the distance of their respective habitations and places of abode, it is by experience found difficult to get an assembly of nine, so often as the affairs of the said corporation do require; and inasmuch as by law the consent of five is sufficient to do a corporate act, supposing nine to be present: may it therefore please your Majesty, That it may be enacted, &c.

The acts and deeds of any five of the governors of the Charter-House, duly assembled there, shall be deemed the acts and deeds of the corporation, as if done at a corporate meeting by all the governors.
